“Running is the greatest metaphor for life, because you get out of it what you put into it.”

“Running can help you loose weight. Running can build muscle tone. Running can improve your complexion. Running can strengthen your heart and make it work more efficiently. Running can increase your aerobic capacity and lower your blood pressure. Running can relax you, help you quit smoking, and reduce the risk of heart disease. Running can reduce depression and lift your spirits. Running can help you think and make you more creative. Running can make you more athletic and energetic and full of vitality. Running can improve your self-image and make you more self-confident. In short, running can change your entire outlook on life and make a new person of you.”

LAUREN SIEGEL'S STREAK NEARS 20 YEARS; OVER 100,000 LIFETIME MILES

When I was asked to submit my story, I thought, why me? I'm not the fastest, nor is my Streak the longest, but my Streak saved my life. If I can help one person find the courage to change their life and find happiness, as I did, then I guess my story is worth telling.

I began running in 1975, when a professional ballet career was cut short by knee injuries. After healing from surgery, I needed to find an activity to replace the grueling six days a week training to be a dancer. That's how I found running, at a time when not many 15 year old girls ran long distance on their own. I quickly fell in love with running, and began to bring home many awards from racing. My top performance was a 1:06:10 at the Broad Street Run 10 Mile Race, followed by many sub 1:30 Half marathons, and 3:25 marathons. I cannot run six minute miles anymore, but I train hard, and I'm lucky to still be Age Grading the same times now, at age 59, as back in my younger days. I can't wait to move up to a new Age Group!

I'm very proud to have passed 100,000 Lifetime Miles this year, and I'm now listed in that Registry, too! Not many women have achieved this, Streaking helps build miles, another bonus!

My Streak began on October 15, 1999, almost 20 years as I write this. I increased running from six days to seven, because I was the sole caregiver to my youngest daughter, who has Special Needs. She was a very difficult child back then, and the 30-60 minutes a day I ran was the only thing I did for myself, and the only time I was alone. It became like a vacation, those daily runs, from the impossible life I was living as her mom, while also trying to survive an abusive marriage. My running was the elephant in the room in my marriage. My husband belittled me for Streaking, competing, and everything else. I never spoke about my running, getting up early as to be home before he woke up, to avoid his rages. I qualified for Boston three times, but never got there, he just wasn't going to let that happen, and I had to carefully pick my battles. The torment I would have endured from him ended my dreams of Boston. I finally began to see that if I could run through illness, bad weather, cancer surgery, a Special Needs child, and decades of abuse, then I could do anything. My Streak gave me the strength to no longer fear his rage, and now I fear nothing after living with a monster. The night he tried to kill me by trying to run me down with his car was when I hit bottom. I truly expected to die that night, but I didn't. I got up and ran the next morning, and then called a lawyer. I kept telling myself that I've run through pain and sorrow, every day, and I would never let anyone treat me like that ever again.

Now I'm with a wonderful man who respects, supports, and loves me unconditionally. We both started running track with a USATF team, traveling to many states for meets and races. I also run all of the USATF Grand Prix Road Races, and many races from 5k to marathons. I may not be the fastest on the track, I'm new at it, and sometimes I'm last, but I have fun. Because life is short. I train hard and run my best, and if I do that, I'm happy.

When I think how I haven't missed a day of running in almost twenty years, it seems crazy, who does that? We do! The Streaking community is so supportive and kind, whether your Streak is one week, one month, or many decades, every runner is treated with respect. I'm very proud to be a member of SRI/USRSA, a diverse group who does this crazy thing that we do each day. My wish is someday we can have a Streakers celebration, all together! And, of course, we would run!

It is true, Streaking saved my life. It got me through some very dark days, and let me find the strength to change my life. We all deserve to be happy, and running everyday helped me find happiness.

15 Years Running; Double Digit Streak Number Two
By: Neil Scott (June 2, 2019)

*when my daily run was done today
my heart was full of memories 15 years deep and thousands of miles wide*

Mile by mile, step by step. They add up to 15 years running.

I'm 73 years old. I still enjoy every day as a sports radio update anchor, producer/host of two radio shows, and an unabashed lover of life. In my spare time, I write poetry and gravitate towards intimate musical experiences, especially house concerts.

Running every day has kept me alive. Alive and well!

This is my second streak of consecutive running days...the first one ending after over 17 years and a non-running surgery that sidelined me for 12 days, followed by the current streak.

I now have two streaks of double-digit years, one of only about a half dozen runners.

The years have been kind to my knees. And my knees have been kind to my feet. I am not as fast as I used to be; some would say that I am half-fast (which seems somehow fitting, especially when said quickly)!

All of the thousands of miles have been in the comfort of Brooks shoes, which I consider the very best. When I first started running, I was told that good shoes were essential, and when you find a shoe that works, stay with it. For me, it was Brooks. (I still miss the Brooks Chariot!)

Each mile has made me a better person, a more focused and disciplined person, and one who has quietly gone about the pleasure of running - one mile at a time, enjoying every single one ... well, at least most of them. There was that blinding blizzard in Cleveland running behind the snow plow and the monsoon in New York during the marathon! Oh yeah, and the scorching temps in Palm Desert. But overall, it has been a gigantic unending love affair!

I have done a half dozen marathons. Four NYC Marathons, one Boston and my first marathon, which was in Seattle. You never forget your first!

There has only been one injury. It happened during my last NYC Marathon in 2001. I developed a pain in my left knee early on. A sane runner would have pulled out to run another day. Not me. I had more guts than brains and was determined to finish that race. Nearly six hours later (it took me longer to complete that marathon than the time it took to fly from Seattle to NYC) I crossed that finish line, victorious in my completion, but hurting like crazy!

I flew home and had an MRI, which revealed a grade three tear in the medial meniscus, with surgery advised. During this time, I was still able to eke out at least a mile, albeit slowly. Very slowly (fortunately, the USRSA does not have a speed requirement)!

My friend Steve Kelley, columnist for the Seattle Times, did a column about my streak and impending surgery.

<http://community.seattletimes.nwsourc.com/archive/?date=20010105&slug=kell05>

A woman saw the column and contacted me, asking if I had ever considered magnets. I told her that I loved magnets. They were all over my refrigerator, holding up pictures of my kids! She brushed aside my lame attempt at humor and suggested medical magnets. At the time, I was covering the Seattle Supersonics basketball team for national radio networks. After a game one night, I asked the trainer, Frank Furtado, what he thought about magnets. He said that half the team used them, and for some they seem to work well, for others they don't. He said the worst that would happen, would be that nothing would happen. So, dreading surgery, and wanting to quiet this woman who kept badgering me about magnets, I skeptically opted for one disc-shaped magnet in a sleeve on my knee and magnetic insoles in my running shoes. And I continued my slow, painful and careful daily runs. About three weeks later, I realized the pain seemed to be gone. I increased my mileage, then my speed. No pain! And from there, I just kept on running.

I never started out to be a runner... in fact, I was always last on the high school track, which I hated. "You better give up those cigarettes, young man," the coach Mr. Haight would yell at me. That really pissed me off, since I never smoked.

When I started my daily runs, I was just a young man who wanted to take better care of myself. I was not in great shape (or even in good shape, now that I think of it). I started out by running from my house to the corner and was out of breath, and the next day I ran to the corner plus a mailbox, then several blocks the following day, and I was suddenly on my running way, day after day, mile after mile.

I mostly run alone. Time spent, is serenity purchased. It's my time, plain and simple; each day, every day. It's a private place for me to go.

It's a barometer of sorts. When I finish my daily run, I know that all the cylinders of my being are still firing.

I've run in a driving rain, blinding blizzards, and on busy days and quiet nights. I've run at all times, in all conditions and in countless cities and towns. On morning when I would take a 6AM flight from Seattle to NYC, I'd get up at 3AM for a run to jump start my journey.

I've put one foot in front of the other and repeated as needed in the U.S., Canada and Mexico, as well as various cities in Russia and various cities in Europe.

When my run of runs is finally over I will celebrate with sadness and joy. However, hopefully I will run on the day that I die, allowing people to accurately say, "He ran himself to death!" What a way to go!

I've done a few runs barefoot and I once ran naked (in the Bare Buns Run). I've been chased by some and I've chased others. I've run in storms of sadness, and in true celebrations of life. It has been, and continues to be, my common denominator.

I've fallen a few times, always scampering back onto the path, none the worse for the wear, except for bruised pride, bloody hands and knees, and a cracked iPhone screen. I've run in the sweltering heat of the California desert and in the thin air mountains of Utah. I've even run with President Clinton during one of his Seattle visits (I was told by the secret service: "Just don't pass him!").

Why do I run? For one thing, one day I may not be able to. But today I can; I will. By the way, it's harder to hit a moving target. For another, it's for the unlimited love of being alive and celebrating that gift with myself. It's a gift from me, to me; a gift that keeps on giving.

What was my most memorable run? Today's run! Same answer on each new day. One day at a time; one mile at a time.

No matter where I am, there I run!

STILL RUNNING

*i don't run as fast as i used to but i still do it everyday day by day
mile after mile*

*and on my runs
I also still chase dreams
every single day with the fascination of a child who i now hold prisoner in an old man's body*

Rod Zambrows and Ben Dillow

IN THE SCHEME OF THINGS
August 19, 2019
Ben Dillow

I ran today.

I recorded my “Monday normal 10” jog/walk in the journal and noted I was up early to beat the anticipated three-digit heat. Pretty nice early morning air with a hint of autumn sniffing around.

Ran yesterday as well.

Ran with my buddy Rod who was finishing the third year in his streak. For me? I was embracing the end of my 38th year of running—every day—without fail (you know the routine!) for 13,880 days—69,000 miles (and change) but in some ways I feel that Rod’s accomplishment equal to or greater than mine. I suspect that almost any “streaker” will admit in some ways it gets easier the longer you go. At 3 years “resolve” has yet to fully take root, and mischief and life compete to allow indecision to simmer and opportunities to stumble to percolate, but by the time you get past—what? 10 years—15? The “run” has become so much a part of your life that it’s simply second nature.

You stop asking “will” and simply focus on “when.”

It would be disingenuous to say that I hit August 19th each year with indifference; there is a sense of accomplishment and satisfaction that accompanies “the streak,” and I probably should end this little accounting with that acknowledgment, but I must also say that “life” the last little bit has altered the “the streak” in “the scheme of things” and its importance feels very muted. The run is one thing of many that grabs my attention, channels my energy, engages my heart.

But its not the only thing.

The phone rang after my run today; it was the wife of my long-time dear friend Leo. How many hours we’ve shared harassing, kidding, kibitzing, competing, playing and in sharing other’s company. Life had gotten away from us a bit since we shared several years in a college teaching appointment in Iowa in the mid-1960s. He had long ago moved on to Arkansas and I to California, but we had always stayed in touch—I thought! Thus, I was shocked two weeks ago to open FB one morning and see him, a shadow of his old self, looking up from a hospital bed. I quickly called and learned he had engaged the slippery slope of life events (growing dementia, fall, stroke) and in quick order had moved from home to hospital to hospice. He passed late this morning to another world before I had a chance to say goodbye—or to tell him I loved him.

Again.

Two weeks ago, I finished a very satisfying round of golf with my good friend Roger. It was three-digit heat here in the desert—did I mention that? We played anyway—had the course virtually to our self. As we finished, shortly after 7, we lingered in the parking lot, seeking perhaps in the pleasant evening air to extend the day. The radiant colors of a setting sun joined a cool breeze wafting across empty fairways making folly of the mid-day heat.

I said, “Roger, whatever you had for lunch today you ought to eat every day for you’ve never played better. Your drives were long and found the middle of the fairway, your putts the back of the cup—aren’t you glad we played?”

“Indeed,” he said, “next Friday?” “Of course!” I replied.

I loaded my clubs and shoes, got in my car and drove home.

Roger, gifted writer, artist, speaker, never made it. Death. Sudden. Unannounced. Uncompromising. I don’t even think I said “goodbye.”

A professor heads to his University office at Cal State Fullerton yesterday to start the fall term. He is stabbed to death in the parking lot before exiting his car.

A wedding celebration begins in Afghanistan. The dancing and singing and celebration ended abruptly by a suicide bomber bringing instant death to himself and 63 others.

Our news seemingly rings anew daily with yet one more hideous instance of gun violence—El Paso and Dayton added to Gilroy, which was added to Sandy Hook, Denver, Orlando, Charlotte—these were awful, but only the tip of the iceberg. There are more guns in America than people. We comprise less than 5% of the world’s population yet own 45% of the privately held firearms. There have been more than 2000 shootings since Sandy Hook, but Washington remains unmoved.

I read today (perhaps apocryphal?) that our President, mum on guns but clear that global warming is a hoax, has offered to buy Greenland—he should wait a bit—with the hottest summer on record, Greenland has lost 12 billion tons of ice each day this July. If the King of Deals just waits a bit longer—

In the scheme of things, sliding a modest personal accomplishment into the dinner conversation as the evening news reporting yet more obscenities from our southern border, or some new American city ravaged by guns, or answering yet another phone call reminding me of the precarious gift of life, means that finding pleasure in running might seem—well might seem unseemly.

And yet—and yet under these clouds of darkness the sun shines.

--my oldest son turned 53 last week. He was 16 and in high school when my streak started. His daughter, my oldest granddaughter, a gifted pianist, athlete, honors student heads to her first year in high school. She stopped by yesterday and gave grandma and I a foretaste of heaven. Energized, optimistic, forward looking, engaged! More than a breath of fresh air by a factor of a hundred.

She and her cousins have never known a Grandpa Dillow who didn't run every day—but in the scheme of things, as the start of her high school awaits, “the streak” didn't seem all that important—to either of us.

My second son, 50 this past May, asked me to officiate his summer wedding. He was 12 when the streak started! We received his and Jennifer's wedding pictures back from the photographer last night—more than a thousand shots, and not a single picture of a sweaty runner in the mix—but hundreds of two beautiful folks embarking on their first days of forever—megawatt smiles reflecting unbridled joy.

The photographer's “targets” were unerring.

His oldest son, ColeB, heads off this week for this senior year at the University of Arizona—his entire life spans the second half of my streak. He stopped by this afternoon before leaving for Tucson and we talked about the Dodgers and about his life after Arizona and Arizona's top ranked basketball team—

“The streak” didn't come up.

My youngest grandson, Carson, came bolting out of his first day of 5th grade class last week saying, “You can't believe how cool my teacher is! I love her!”

The streak didn't come up.

In the scheme of things, as I approach my 9th decade on the planet, I feel deeply blessed by good health, good luck, and a touch of resolve that has allowed me to write down 13,880 in my journal tonight.

But in truth?

I feel much more blessed to snuggle up to a wife tonight I first met more than 60 years ago--on the first day of college; we've been “streaking” ever since. Now that is a streak worthy of celebration!

So, what now?

I will gladly adjust my daily run to make room for Alea's next concert, Hailey's next soccer game, Carson's Open House—and with any luck? Perhaps Heidi can give me reason not to listen to tonight's news.

But tomorrow morning—early—before the alarm sounds—I'll slip out of bed, foolishly thinking I'm quiet enough not to disturb mom—hoping to get 13,881 in before it gets too hot—and well before the 7:00 news tries to define my day!

Steve DeBoer

Females Traversing the Tundra Daily in Ever-Increasing Numbers By: Steve DeBoer

The advent of women streakers in the US (I mean the clothed kind) occurred a decade after men started to embrace the concept of daily running – Bob Ray in 1967, Mark Covert in 1968 being the earliest who registered their streaks (with the exception of Ted Corbitt, whose first documented streak began in 1953). Elaine Rountree of WY was first in 1977 and Julie Maxwell of MN was second in 1978. These were the only 2 women who had run daily for at least 1 year as of January 1980, since #3, Margaret Blackstock of GA started in September of 1979. However, Margaret was the first to register her streak, having also been the only woman listed on George Hancock's initial US Running Streak list in 1994 (1 of 51 persons or 2%). These streaks have now all ended, as has that of Alicia Brophy of MA, who began her 30 years streak in November of 1980. Her streak lasted 102 days less than Margaret's. They are listed as #37 and #38 longest on the retired list. Julie broke her ankle in December 2011, at 33 years and 159 days, now the longest female retired streak, 29th longest overall. She then returned to streak running in March 2012 and has now run daily for over 7 years.

There are a few other women who have running streaks over 30 years. We thought Barb Latta of NC had the longest streak, begun in December 1983, after Julie broke her ankle, but five years ago, Lois Bastien, from FL, contacted the organization, to tell us that she has been doing daily runs since April 1980. She has now surpassed 39 years and, at age 82, is the first female streaking after age 80 (#26 on the active list). Barb is 77, and is the only other woman over 75 actively streaking, now for 35 ½ years. Sue Favor of CA is one year behind Barb, and then comes Judy Mick of VA, who started Nov 1985. Diana Nelson of IL has had some major injuries and almost lost her leg, but at age 72, is now almost 12 years into her second streak, her first lasting from Jan 1982 until Oct 2007. In 2010, Lois, Barb, Margaret, Diana and Ruth Gorman were the only women running daily over the age of 60; there are now 32 females over 60 and ten more age 59. There are 72 females registered on Streak Runners International (SRI), but only 1 (Christel Prause of Germany) is over age 60 and none are under age 20. There are another 19 women on the SRI retired list.

On the younger side, Rachel Barnhill of CA, began daily runs in January 2014, when she was 11 ½ years old. Other youngsters are Robin Lentine of MN, who began on her 15th birthday, and Paige Pearson of WA, who got her start (2002-2005 retired) when 13 years 1 month. But the youngest before 2015 was Keziah Wilde of MA, whose 7-year streak began May 2012, at the age of 9 years, 11 months. Since then we have added 15 more, including 4 that began before age 8 (Jenna Thorson – 7 yrs 10 mo; Molly Hampton – 7 yrs 9 mo; Lauren Thorson – 5 yrs 9 mo; Sierra Stempke – 3 yrs 11 mo). Sierra is the youngest streak runner ever. MN has the most that started under age 15 with 6.

Up to January 1990, 13 of 264 streak runners all time (4.9%) were women; by January 2000 there were 16 women of 374 (4.3%); by January 2010 there had been 88 women of 586 (14.9%). As of July 2016, that percentage had risen to 28% (280 of 1000). States where at least 39% of their daily runners are female (14 of them, up from 5 in 2016) are MN, NH, & WI (39%), RI & OR (40%), NY (42%), HI & NM (43%), UT & WY (53%), DC & ME (56%), MT (60%), and AK (5 of 7 or 71%)! Counting all females who have had a streak there have been 777 of them as of July 10, 2019 (some not registered). On the current active and registered list, there are 565 of 1546 (36%) that are women. If we only look at those who made it to 365 days in the last 3 years, 338 of 759 are women, or 44.6%!

Barb Latta was our first streak runner at age 40, 50, 60 & 70, since Lois Bastien had not registered yet. Barb is also the only woman listed who has run in all 50 states (and 25 countries). Barb Elia, who had an unregistered streak, has now run over 500 marathons & ultras. As for total lifetime mileage, as of 12-31-2018, several were at or over 80,000 – Carolyn Mather (217,942 – not registered), Barb Elia (145,900), Barb Latta (136,980), Sherry Case (129,493), Victoria Leafgren (105,930 – not registered), Tammy Slusser (102,083), Lauren Siegel (101,121), Diana Nelson (95,171), and Deb Dilling (87,400). The most miles run in one year are 7921 by Carolyn Mather in 2016, 3841 by Sherry Case, 3810 by Debbie Ciccati, and 3807 by Nancy Harmon.

As of July 10, 2019, here are some Stats by State regarding the number of women who have run daily, followed by numbers 3 years ago. Also noted are the top 10 per million residents. Some are counted more than once if they have lived in more than one state at least 6 months or currently split their residence between 2 different locations.

ND, and WV have never had a female streaking daily for 365 days or longer. Most recent additions were ME & DE in 2017. Currently 47 states + DC have an active woman running daily.

Since so few women ran daily before 2000, I did not list top 6 states. However, in 2010, the data showed this:

TOP 6 Number-Wise		Top 6 Percentage-Wise (Per million residents)
CA	12	WY	1.76
PA	6	MT	1.01
IL	6	MA	0.76
MA	5	NH	0.76

NJ	4	MN	0.56

PS As Mark Washburne mentioned in the last issue of the Streak Registry, I met Jon Sutherland, who has the longest active running streak in the world. I traveled to West Hills, CA and ran a few miles with him the last two days of his 50th year of daily runs (May 24 and 25). Despite numerous injuries over the years and a current diagnosis of atrial fibrillation which has slowed his pace, it is still amazing what he has done, having run over 193,000 of his 197,000 lifetime miles during those 50 years and following in the footsteps of his Junior College teammate, Mark Covert, who had the longest US running streak until retiring July 2013, at 45 years.

Jon was the only one in his family that ran of 6 kids. After Jon's dad, Donald (NO, not the actor!) died, Jon was given a journal his grandfather had written. Turned out grandfather Leslie was a fast miler – running the 5th fastest time in the US in 1919 (4:34 was his time, the best was a 4:19 by John Paul Jones). Jon was also a good baseball player and part of his running was to get in better shape for baseball. He continued pitching in Junior College. In fact, his last game he pitched a no-hitter and still lost (an error resulted in an inside-the-park homerun). Afterwards, his dad gave him the ball and signed it, « Now you are free to concentrate on running! »

Besides Jon, I got to meet and run with Mark Washburne, our organization president, and his wife, Diane, who came from New Jersey to recognize and celebrate Jon's anniversary. We had lunch with Mark Covert on the 24th and Mark signed my copy of his autobiography (co-written with his son, Chris), Never Missed. I also enjoyed having him share the details of the 1972 Olympic Marathon Trials race, in which he finished 7th.

I have also had a couple of anniversaries recently. On June 7th, I reached 48 years of daily runs going at least 1 mile daily (actually only 3 of those days have been the minimum). Then on July 20th, I celebrated my 49th anniversary of running every day, though I did not always run a full mile the first 10 ½ months.

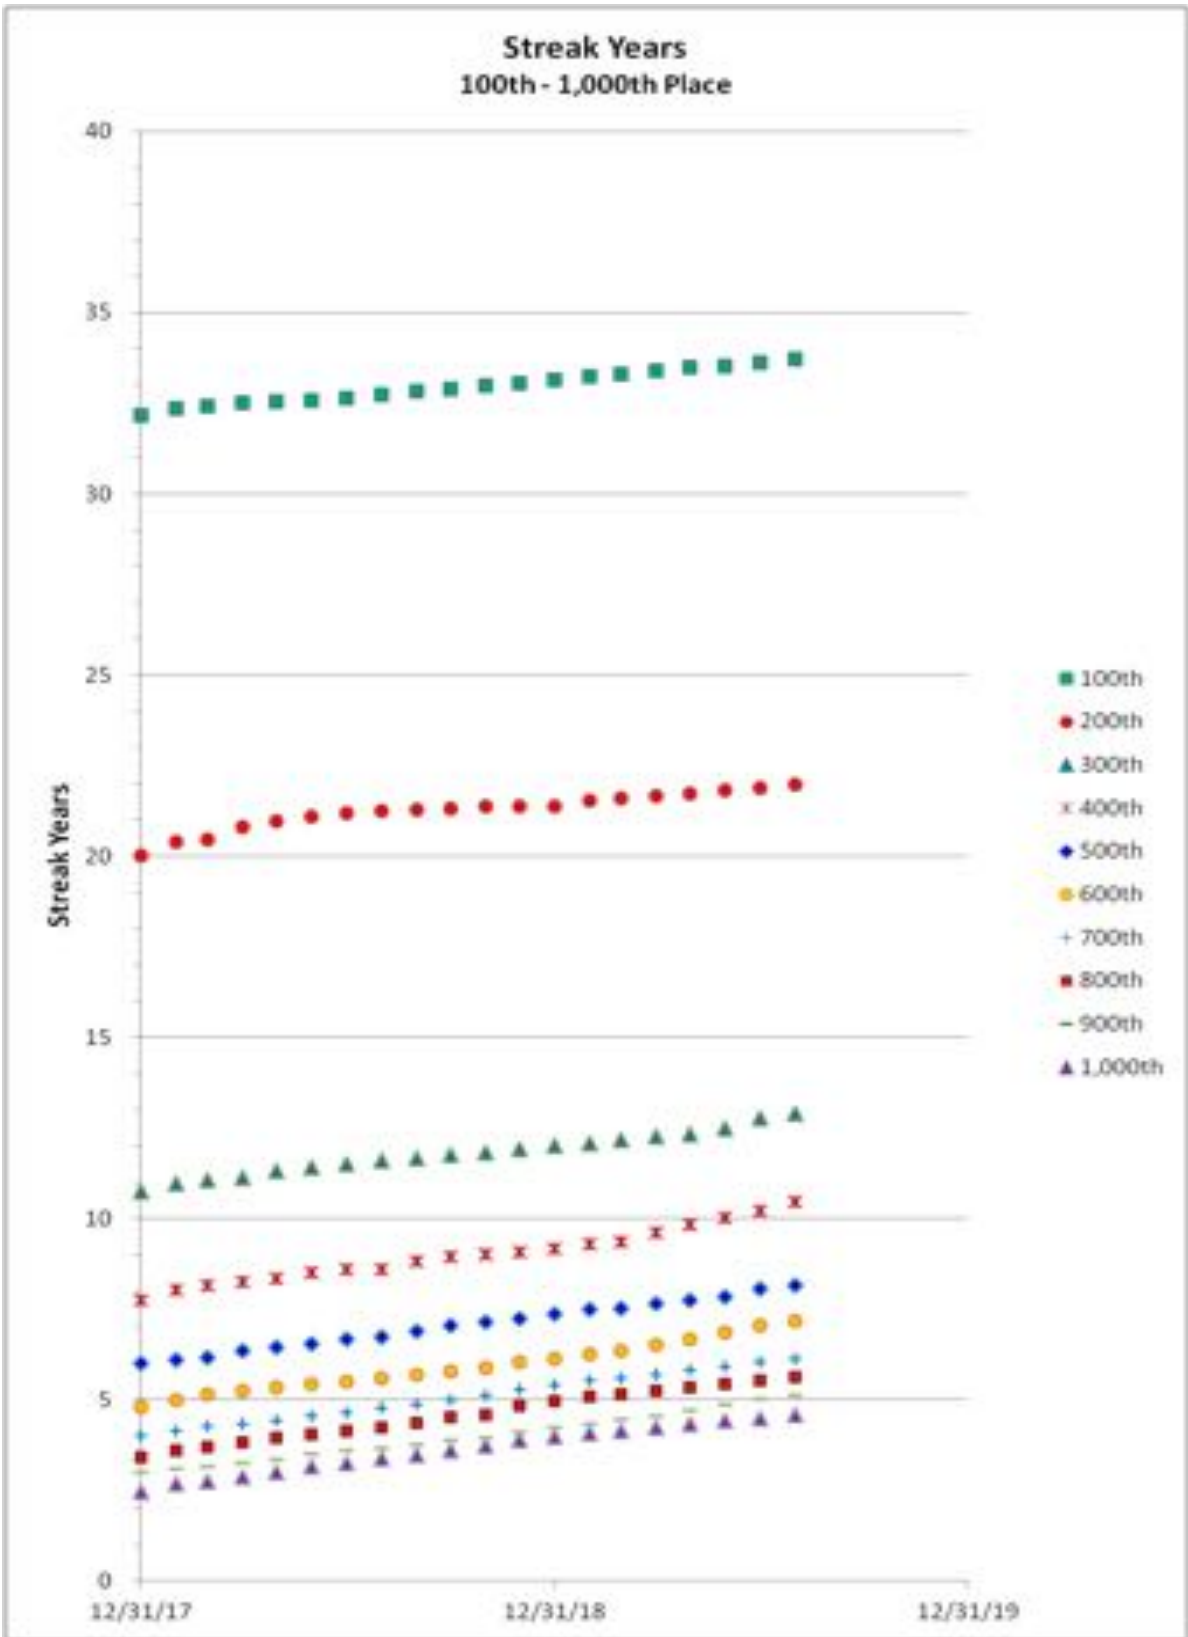

It was the 3rd time I have run a race on this day and the first time I finished 1st! Well actually, the Byron 5K was cancelled, but I ran the course anyway and only experienced some light rain. Then I decided to run the course the opposite direction and half-way the deluge came, complete with thunder, lightning and 20-30 mph winds. I had to find shelter behind a small building for ten minutes, until the wind died down.

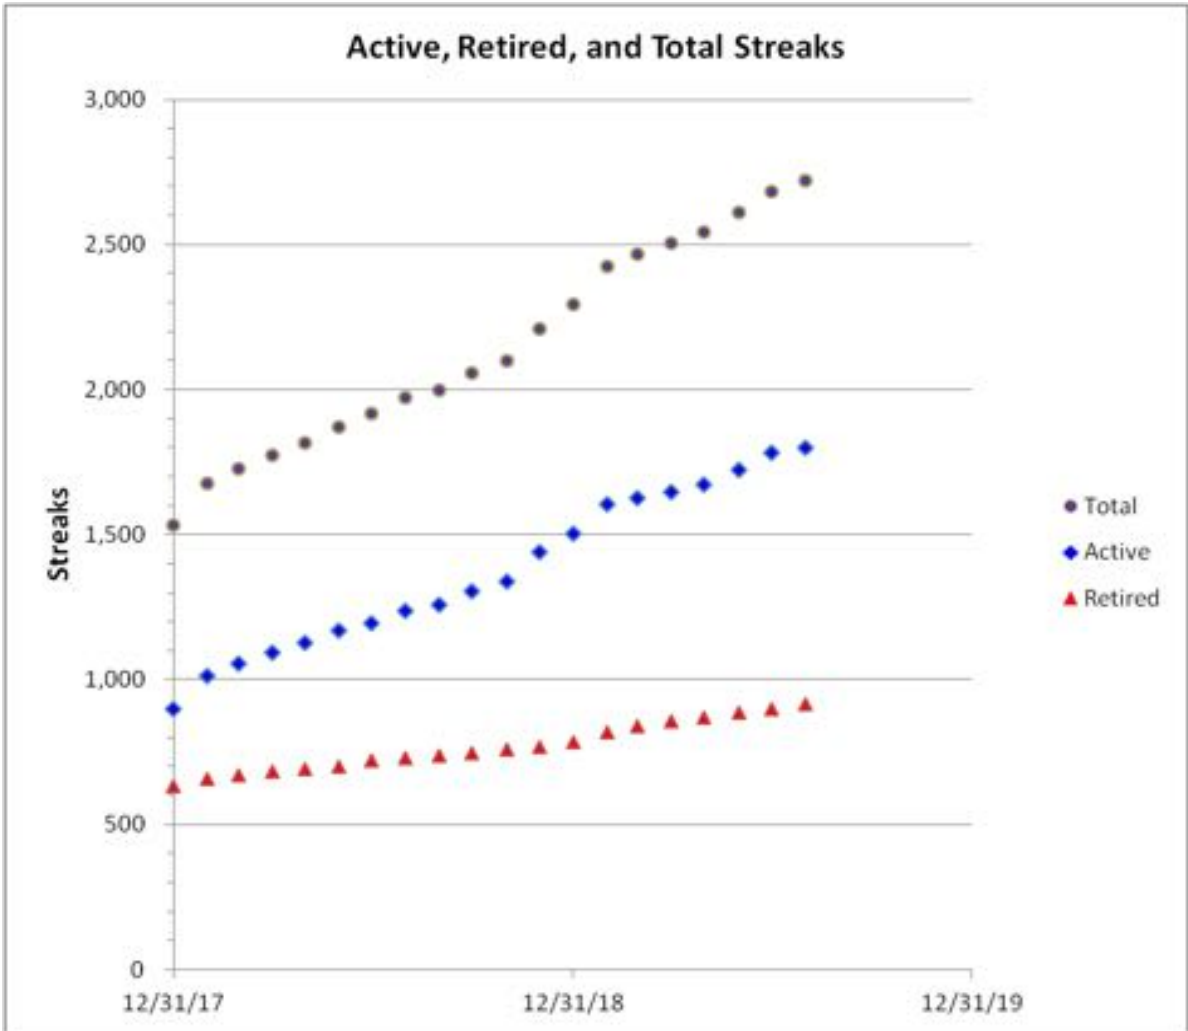

So, this will be one of my more memorable anniversary runs but not the slowest - last year was slower as I jogged to loosen up for the Byron race being held the following day. At least today I did 4:58 for the last half-mile! When I added them all up, including that first time, 2 miles with brother Dave in 1970, I have averaged 9.65 miles for those 50 runs, slightly higher than the 9.33 average since my official 1971 streak began.

LARRY DOOLEY BECOMES LIFETIME MEMBER OF SRI/USRSA

My streak started on 8/25/2005. As a "traveling salesperson," I find myself in many unusual places to keep my streak alive. I have had many very short circular laps around hotel parking lots, hallways of hotels, blistering hot days, and bitter cold mornings. In other words, I am no different than any other dedicated runner.

I start every day with a run not just to keep my streak alive but it is my "morning coffee." I can't imagine my life without it. I have run before and after surgeries (last one was in February to remove a melanoma leaving behind over 50 stitches in my back). Some of these runs are not the prettiest or most rewarding but I do it because I want to do it.

More importantly when I tell people about my streak they are astonished. I quickly remind them, however, I am nowhere near where the great streaks are. My goal is to get into the top of the streaks and stay healthy doing it.

GREGORY LLOYD'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I'm pleased to report my streak continues and just passed five years. I started on my own 5km-daily streak without knowing there were others, but media around Ron Hill retiring revealed the SRI, and that I was one! Like many streak runners I've now persevered through desert heat, arctic winters, mountainous marathons and (perhaps ill-advised) minor injury. I've met many new friends, and gotten hooked on and involved in the parkrun community. I hope to continue streak running for as long as good fortune and good health allow.

Marie Lacour

MARIE LACOUR JOINS USRSA

My name is Marie Lacour. I have run a minimum a mile a day since August 2017.

I am a newfound runner in the grand scheme of things. A lifelong fitness enthusiast, I waited to start a family until my mid thirties—a slave to the rat race of corporate America, and a love for travel. The fall of 2014 I felt ready to have a baby.

During my pregnancy, my doctor told me that I could continue with the same level of physical intensity that I had pre-natal. I had never run before, but the only thing that I enjoyed was jog intervals. By the time my son was born, I had fallen in love with running. I was encouraged to register for my first race, just a short 5K several months after having my son. I won the race, the whole race... Apparently, the 40 pounds baby weight off supercharged my pace.

Fast forward a year, and several races, including a couple a half-marathons under my belt, the thrill was diminishing. A run coach who I met at the Lake Houston YMCA in Kingwood, TX encouraged me to do a 30 day “Run Streak.” It was to start August 1, 2017. I needed an extra day to get my mind right and ready. Nonetheless, the Streak lives on.

You learn a lot about yourself when you commit to a streak, follow through, and maintain. When you get out of bed with the stomach flu to make sure that you get in a mile minimum, throwing up mid run and continuing on; that’s a high level of commitment or crazy, haha!

The greatest gift the run streak has given me is strength to endure, confidence and self-worth (that had been broken down for years by someone I will refrain from naming), belief in myself that I am capable of more than I ever thought imaginable, and a proactive approach to life- bigger goals, less fear, more empowerment.

JOHN THOMSON'S STREAK
HITS 2 YEAR;
"How I met Robin."

I was overlooked, just a little guy on a crowded start line. I brought everything I'd need for the run: water, my mints, sunglasses, ball cap. The only thing I didn't have with me was doubt. When all was said and done I had just run my first mile in under 5 minutes. The total time for the mile and a half was 7:32. That race solidified my past as a runner and laid the base for my running future.

Since those early military days, I've run thru the years, not always consistently, but always.

I've run with and without running partners, both have pros and cons, both are and were fun, but in the end, it's always about the run.

A couple years ago I was making a comeback. Training was going well. I was smiling a lot thinking about my accomplishments: 45 marathons, untold halves, 10 and 5 k's. I met this young lady at the gym. We talked, tried a few workouts and runs together. Somehow, it all worked out. I was running a half marathon streak at the time. She joined me when I was at 30 weekly halves. When she finished her very first half marathon, she exclaimed, "holy bananas Batman, I did it." Since then, she's been Robin and I've been Batman.

Since starting this present streak on my 61st birthday, Sheryl and I have run over a hundred half marathons together. We've experienced blood sweat and tears. I've laughed more in the past 2 years than I did in the previous 61 years.

It's my birthday today (18 June). It's also my streakaversary (2 years). Streak running has changed the way I see my running. It's changed my life. I had doubts about it in the beginning, but I soon left those doubts behind.

CAMILLE BOON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I recently was lucky enough to celebrate my 2-year streak anniversary on May 28, 2019. I started on a whim after a friend challenged me to try the Runner's World Summer Streak. She told me it was Memorial Day to Labor Day. I didn't bother to check the details but decided it sounded like a good idea. I was a dedicated 5 day a week runner before, always with Friday and Sunday off, but would do anything for a running friend.

Well, Runner's World later published a retraction that they meant Memorial Day to the 4th of July, but I was already hooked. I loved the streak. I discovered the joy/challenge of running a mile after hard days. Without realizing it when I started, the streak allowed me to increase my weekly mileage without compromising running health. During my streak, from ages 39-41, so far, I have set PRs in the 5K, 10K, 10-mile, Half Marathon and Marathon.

My proudest accomplishments during the two years have been four marathons (16 lifetime), running in four countries, and running in all weather conditions, snow and Hurricane Harvey included. The latter got me in some trouble with my family but all ok in the end.

It is inspiration to read about you all, keep running and streaking!

EVAN FACKLER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

The past two years have been an unintentional experiment in how to inconvenience people around me. Eight hours north of Vancouver, Canada, I had a friend drive behind me while I got in my daily run along a winding dirt road during a visit to a ghost town. I left Chicago Midway during a layover to run a few miles around the airport before being plane-bound on a transatlantic flight. And I researched places to run in Heathrow airport only to misinterpret the instructions and have to end the day running through Barcelona at night. My wife had to endure daily stops while we moved across the country so I could run up some trail or another, and every overnight visit to a friend's house started with the question, "So, where should we run in the morning?" I'm sure it was pretty annoying.

On my 31st birthday, 365 days into the streak, I celebrated with a self-designed 50-k through Seattle, where I was living at the time. It was my first ultra-marathon and a good friend gave up his morning to run the first ten miles with me. Meeting my wife at work near the end of the run, she ran alongside me while I promptly got us lost and then blamed her for it.

Now a year later and two years in, I'm not reproducing the effort with a 32-mile run. Instead, I'll go for a leisurely jog and copiously express my gratitude to all the great family and friends around me who had to pause what they were doing so I could go on one of my little runs. Somehow not once did they suggest that maybe I skip a day, just this once. Although I'm sure they thought it!

Happy running everyone,

SUSANNE STRACHOTA'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I celebrate five years of running today [26 June 2019]. Wow!

A lot has changed in the last five years. To begin, five years ago I was a single grad student, living in Madison, Wisconsin. I've since graduated, moved to Minnesota, Florida and then Ohio; I married, had a baby and started a new job. Through all that change though, I've continued to run. In the last five years I've run on four different continents, in 13 different countries, in several marathons, with countless supportive running partners, including my most loyal partners, my dog, husband and baby.

Cheers to at least another five years!

MIKE DIMIELE'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

It's very exciting to hit the 7-year running streak mark. This all started 7 years ago when my friend Brett told me about the running streak association, it seemed like a challenge and we aren't big on turning down challenges!

We ran 3 miles every day for the first year and I try to stick to that most days, but based on the amount of time I have I'll go between 2 miles and 5 miles each day.

Running became more about the 1 thing I do each day. If I can't find 30 minutes for my health each day, then I am doing something wrong.

When people ask me what do I recommend about getting a streak going, I normally say to keep the big runs to big deals and the small runs to your daily. Running takes a hit to your body and you need to love it to be willing to commit.

I enjoyed many social runs with friends in my local social club, called the Tyrone Harriers. If anyone reading this newsletter happens to visit Johannesburg, look us up! BRIAN CLEVEN STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

Nine years has flown by since the start of my streak in July of 2010 after I had completed my first Ironman Triathlon in Coeur D'Alene, Idaho. A wedding in November of 2011, a daughter Natasha in January of 2015, and starting a new job with Bellin Health in January of 2017 after 8 ½ years at my past hospital have been the life highlights during my streak.

Each year I average about 15-20 events ranging from 1 mile running races up to 140.6 Ironman Triathlons (4 completed, signed up for 2 this year, Madison in September and Louisville in October).

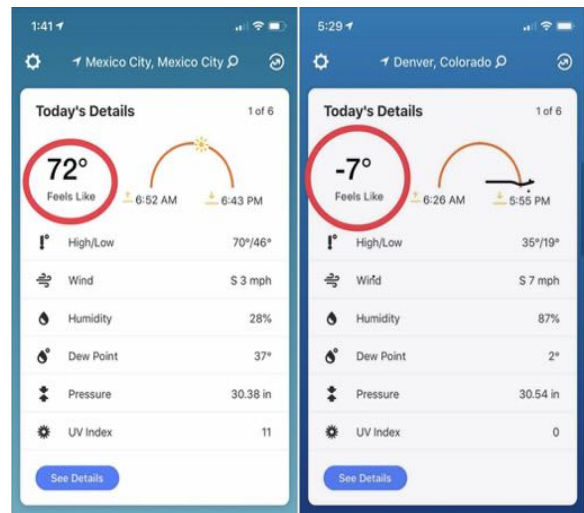

My little girl has been following in Mommy and Daddy's footsteps running her first kids run last August 2018 at the race where I had run my first ever 5K in 2003.

This year has been really good with finishes in the Top 10% in almost every event along with an overall win at a Duathlon at the end of June!

Along with working towards reaching my 10-year streak anniversary next July I have been setting the framework to produce a low cost, family friendly 2 mile "Bellin Health Marinette Heart Run/Walk and Kids Run" for March 28th, 2020.

Running, triathlons, and streaking has provided me motivation and vision, so I hope to offer that gift to my community for years to come!

Keeping the streak alive for me this past year has meant running in Mexico, Argentina, Chile, Brazil and England along with more US states than I can recall.

Craziest temperature differential involved a run one day in Denver, where the windchill was -7F, and 24 hrs later doing it again in 72F Mexico City. That's an effective temp diff of nearly 80 degrees. Oh, and it was all part of the same business trip, which made packing a challenge.

So excited to be reaching the 5-year mark! It is challenging!! My work travel has taken off, currently traveling 11 or 12 weeks, so unfortunately, I have way more than I would like of the 1 mile runs, but often that is all that I have time for. When I was younger, I had a goal to visit every state- and I completed that goal. Now that I am part of this amazing group, I now want to do a race in every state! I know many do a 1/2 or full in each state, but I am fine with just a race in every state (& trying to make work pay for as much of it as possible!!) I have seen some AMAZING places!!

One example- I had a meeting in Florida, so once the meeting concluded, I rented a car and drove to Jekyll Island! That weekend they had a choice of either a full (NOT trained) or a 10k (which I did). I LOVE that place!! So Beautiful!!! Touch chilly in early part of the year but WOW!! I also recently ran a 1/2 marathon in Harpers Ferry West Virginia! WOW! If not for this group and my new goal, I would never have seen all of that amazing beauty that we have right here in our own country!

I also put on a successful (highest so far!) MS is BS 5k in early June to raise money for Multiple Sclerosis- which I am battling. I am fortunate that my biggest complaint is fatigue, but I do not vomit from the heat around mile 2 of my long runs- which is a bummer because I need my breakfast calories! I now just run with a granola bar and figure- hey- free calories!

Thank you to this group for keeping me going. I hope to be writing an update at my 10 year mark!!! Run Happy!

I didn't plan on Streak running past the end of 2017, when a friend asked me to streak to the end of the year with her. But I found that running everyday helped me to run stronger, longer and to recover faster, without injury or pain. I began my streak the day I ran my first 50k race on July 22, 2017.

I run 2 miles minimum a day and have run 5268 miles to date. I have run a 500-mile month due to some crazy encouragement from some amazing friends. I have also run a 50-mile race, run rim to rim to rim at the Grand Canyon & qualified to run Boston in 2020. I know this may not seem to relate to streak running, but I believe that running the day after a hard challenge has kept me injury free.

I also love the streak running community. They are so inspirational, with the new and exciting ways they find to challenge themselves. I hope to continue my streak. With a surgery coming up I'll be relying on the advice of others to run thru to get my comma! Happy streaking!

JODI STILP'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I am still streaking. I have run an average of 2,000 miles a year since my streak started and am grateful for every mile, every memory made, and every race finished.

In these four years, my husband has successfully finished his doctorate while working full time and helping me raise our crew of four active teenagers.

I ran through my son's entire high school career... he just graduated and is headed to college in the fall and his sister is right behind him.

My run streak has been grief therapy, business strategizing, and friendship building. I even won a marathon and finished an ultra relay.

I have run at rest areas on road trips, between water polo and basketball games, at the end of long hikes, on trails, on the road and everything in between.

My streak is a stabilizing force in the chaotic season of raising four kids to adulthood and running a business. I am just so thankful... for all of it. Run on friends.

After a lifetime of soccer, I started running races in 2007 typically racing a local 10K and a half marathon each year, with zero training. I just showed up on race day.

Training for races started in the spring of 2010 when I signed up for my first full marathon in Richmond, VA. I have since run many races of all distances, including 31 full marathons and 20 ultras. This includes finishing two 100 milers and eight 100Ks.

I have also been a member of a few pace teams and I have paced about 25 half marathons and a few fulls. I particularly enjoy pacing the 2:45 group for the half, because it is very relaxed pace which allows for more interaction with the runners and the pace group usually includes many first timers. The satisfaction and joy in the faces of these new runners at the finish line is a real treat for a pace team leader.

I have to credit my brother Chris for getting me into running. He started running marathons several years before I did and he encouraged me to follow suit. I then moved into long ultras and after he paced me for my 1st 100-miler at Umstead, I convinced him to sign up and we ran and finished the next 100 together. As we live in different cities we typically travel and race together a few times per year.

I started streaking when I decided to participate in the annual Runners World Holiday Streak in November 2011. I stopped that in March 2012 after 111 days, but started again after a 3-day break. The second streak lasted 854 days. Then I tried to convince myself that I am not a run-streaker and missed 3 random days of running in 2015. On New Year's Eve in 2015, I told my brother Chris that I had never run 366 days in a year; so I was planning to run every day in 2016 to get 366. He said he would do it too. So we did and we are still running every day, being on our 4th year in now. His streak started in November 2015, so he is about 30 days ahead of me and I won't stop until he does! 😊

My other streak is that I have run at least 100 miles for 91 consecutive months (Dec 2011). I keep a meticulous record of all my runs and and my shoe mileage.

On June 22, 2019, I was Thrilled to be completing my 11th Consecutive Year of Daily Running!

However, as all Dedicated Daily Runners will know, it is during those days of Illness, Ailments, and Injury which cause the Stress of possibly ending your Daily Running Streak!

On July 8th, 2018, I was completing my Daily Run a couple blocks from my home, when a Nasty Road Pothole reached upward and grabbed onto my Running Shoe! Down I went on to the Broken Blacktop Road Surface!

Severe Pain and Blood were streaming from my Right Leg Tibia Bone, just under the kneecap! OK, how did that just happen?

I have been a Distance Runner since my Freshman Year at Riverside Brookfield High School in Riverside, Illinois. Some 58 Years of Training and Racing!

As a High School and University Mathematics Teacher and Cross Country and Track Coach, I should know how to navigated Pothole Roads by Now!

But, No! There I was sprawled out on my hometown Road! Almost 3 Square Inches of Skin Missing and Severe Pain on the Tibia Condyle. After analyzing the Pain and Injury, I decided to get back up and somehow completed my Five Mile Run for the day!

Running the next day and for almost the next three months the Pain Continued!

Fortunately, the Tibia was not broken, and the Pain subsided just two weeks before the Chicago Marathon on October 7th, 2018.

Race day for Chicago was also a Tough Challenge! Cold Temperatures with Heavy Rain many times and Strong Winds! Prior to heading to the Columbus Drive Starting Line, I had decided to remove my Racing Tights. Fearing they would get Soaked and become Very Heavy!

As a result of the Wet, Very Cold, and Windy Weather, both of my Quads became like Blocks of Ice! My Racing HOKA Shoes and Racing Socks became the Heavy Weights to carry for 26.2 Miles!

Fortunately, I crossed the Finish Line under five hours, with 4 Hours 58 Minutes. Much Slower than planned, but better than what I was anticipating due to the race day Weather!

My Racing Schedule was completed with the Chicago Jingle Bell 5 Km on December 8, 2018. A Very Cold, Windy Morning with Sheets of Ice many places on the course. Slow Finish Times, but plenty of Hot Chocolate at the Finish Line Tables!

Congratulations to all the Members who are the Daily Running Enthusiasts in the USRSA Association!

Like Sherry Case, I've had painful back and hip issues the last few months. I substituted some Aqua jogging for land runs so I guess my running streak should be retired as of 4/9/2019 (1195 days) – my first time in the pool, with no land run. For the last 3 months, I've mostly suffered through 20-25 minutes running at 11-minute pace and occasional Aqua jogging. I see an orthopedic specialist this Thursday and hopefully will get a plan for healing.

Plenty of emotions surged towards my fingertips as I was typing into the search engine to go find information on where my own personal running streak would compare to those who have chosen to share in the same passion.

Would it be top-ten? Would it be in the thousands? I was clueless, yet very nervous and excited.

I was blown away in awe, seeing the enormous numbers from the days people have been able to accomplish. Then I proceeded to open 'The Streak Registry' and it was like a welcome home page. People who really know the commitment, with the desire and love to lace them up every day.

Amber Young's post on her aiming to capture her first buckle (100 Miler) made me think of myself in the same position years ago. Felt like a home I tried to avoid for a long time but glad now I shared my streak and feel the amazement of others with the same goals.

Running never was something I enjoyed. Growing up and playing soccer, the idea of running was used as punishment. I ran nearly every day prior to the streak. Forgive me for not knowing the exact amount, but prior to the streak, there were a few streaks of like 14 to 18 days.

The idea of going on this streak really came to fruition as Cal Ripkin Jr., was on the verge of breaking Major League Baseball's consecutive game streak all-time record.

I thought this was a unique way for me to capture something a little different that I could call my own. Eventually I reached his consecutive mark of 2,632, but by then my mind was set on just running regardless of Ripken.

I love running. I encourage anyone who has an interest to begin to take their first steps in this marvelous life improving hobby.

Remember if you sign up for a race and there are 100 people slower than you, then you'll finish first. If another 100 show up in another race and they are faster, sadly you will finish last.

In other words, running is about you!

No one else...

MATTHEW SCHAUF'S STREAK HITS 16 YEARS

I don't have much to share for news regarding my running streak, which considering the circumstances, no news is typically good news. I have maintained my streak of at least 100-mile weeks. Saturday the 27th of July concluded my 139th straight week. Not sure how many more I will attempt to complete but 143 weeks would equate to doing so for just over 1,000 days.

This spring, I had a couple of interesting Sunday morning long runs while traveling with our track and field team. In March, we were in Boston, MA for indoor nationals and then Atlanta, GA for spring break. Since each trip ended on Sunday with an early morning departure from the hotel, I began my 20-21 mile long run at 1AM since that would be midnight back home, and hence a new week. It was a little scary to be running so early in the morning in an unfamiliar place, but I don't like to travel before I have extended my streak by another day.

ROGER RAYMOND'S NEW STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

As I pass the 5-year mark for the second time I am very happy to be running. As many of you know, I fell down on day number 3,955 of my previous streak. This resulted in two breaks to my Femur and was traumatic in pain as well as losing the streak.

Early that year (2013) I ran my 3rd Boston Marathon and was really in a good place in the running community. I was closing in on a 4th comma, which appears to be important to many. I am pretty certain it is not since every day running is a victory especially as we grow older.

I sent a message to Mark Covert in late July expressing my thanks to him for the inspiration that he has been to this club and so many of us. It is hard for me to grasp that he and others were sharp enough to keep records of their running so many years ago.

At 18 I was more into living all the joy of the late 1960's and running was just something I did as an athlete...it didn't dawn on me to record my efforts. They did not include running a mile everyday but I did workout and ran often.

As a high school cross country coach, I speak about our group often. It is not my recommendation that they run everyday. It makes sense I think to rest some!

Most of us "streakers" throw that idea out the window as we hit the roads every single day. Some make a year, some don't. Many rise through the ranks and some don't. It will end for all of us at some point. I try not to dwell on that anymore. It is more compelling to me to be grateful for the gift we have been given for however long it lasts.

Ironically, I fell down on completely flat asphalt on the 5-year date. As I was falling I knew I couldn't stop what was awaiting me. It is a little scary. Luck was with me and only a few scrapes, bumps, bruises and blood... blood not so unusual these days as I seem to bleed if I run into a door!

My goal when I restarted my streak was to top my previous number. A daunting task at 63 years old.back to that comma thing, I have the first three so I don't get a 4th by my rules for another 2100 days. I hope I make it, but if not it will be okay. I have made 46.2% of the way and we shall see about what remains.

Bottom line is that the run each day is important in itself and it may be the last. Enjoy the sky, trees, grass and yes even snow if that is what is present. I admire all of your efforts and wish you the best. I wish you great success as you pursue your goals.

NANCY WEST'S STREAK HITS 12 YEARS

It feels like "no news is good news" as I reach my 12th streakaversary! It's been a 100% healthy year, which is wonderful to report.

The years 2016-2018 had their share of orthopedic issues, from posterior tibial tendonitis to arthritis, but keeping my daily mileage in the 3-5 mile range seems to have resolved all of that. Hooray!

Ran this year in Massachusetts, Maine, Colorado and England -- nothing too exotic, but Regents Park in London was definitely a highlight.

My 20-year-old son (who "streaked" with me from 2007-2009) started a streak in early June, so hopefully a year from now he'll be on the registry as well!

JOHN WINOWIECKI'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Wow, seven years! Really doesn't feel like it's been that long but I'm happy to be setting my sites on crossing into double digits now.

One thing is for sure, being a part of this group has drilled into me the awareness that life is full of ups and downs. Holding on and staying focused on the things we want to accomplish takes persistence and dedication.

It's been an adventure filled year for my wife and I including a decent amount of travel for work and a cross country move.

What's becoming wild about the daily practice of running is that it seems to be one of the few daily activities that helps keep me grounded now.

My daily task list is a simple one, and running is one of those few things that has become a nearly subconscious part of every day.

Seven years in and I can admit I'm not a consistent runner in terms of a few things, including time of day. But I do know this, until I get my run in my day feels incomplete and lacking. I'm so grateful to continue enjoying this community and the energy, motivation, and lessons that continue to show up along the way. What an incredible blessing!

HELEN DEGENNARO'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Two miles/day. Two years and counting! I started running 7 years ago after quitting smoking. About 3 years ago I got interested in streak running and after a couple failed attempts, I am now entering my second year with no plans of stopping.

I've had some close calls with cancelled flights, a shoulder injury, and most recently a colonoscopy, but managed to squeeze in two miles of running/shuffling for the past 730 days.

I'm a marathon runner, full Ironman finisher, and am hitting the trails of Leadville this weekend in the famed 100-mile race.

Running has done so much for me physically, mentally and socially. I have met so many amazing people through this journey that are now such an important part of my life. The running community is incredible and I can't imagine life without running. I am grateful every day I lace up and so blessed to be able to continue this crazy streak!

SONJA WHATSON JOINS SRI FROM ENGLAND

Once upon a time, I used to be a decent athlete; sub-20min 5km, sub-1:30 half marathon. My last big race was an Ironman in August 2011. Then followed my first pregnancy; almost 8 years on and 3 children later, I still suffer from spells of ill health. However, last year I was so fed-up that I decided to start a running streak; possibly foolish, or one of the best decisions I've ever made. I went into it with an open mind; I started with 1 week, then 2 weeks, then 1 month, 2 months.....and here we are, a whole year later, and officially a streak runner!

I've run through many an illness and some injuries; I am sure most doctors would have told me off countless times. Whilst my fitness still isn't great, there is no way I would be where I am now without having started that running streak. It's given me quite a lot, most of all a bit of confidence again; onwards and upwards!

Distance run in 1st Year: 1,069.7km
Fastest mile: 6:15, Slowest mile: 9:45
Most bizarre run: in Sorrento, Italy, in 40C heat, wearing a dress and sparkly sandals
Worst run: too many to count; unwell for at least 1/3 of the runs
Best run: along the promenade in Ventnor, on the Isle of Wight: a 5km in 22:38

THOMAS MCDOW'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 853 DAY

On Thursday, August 1, 2019, I went to the hospital emergency room for a minor matter. They wanted several tests the next day. They recommended I stay in the hospital overnight. I explained the importance of my streak. They assured me I would be home the next day.

As the next day wore on and they did not release me. I walked a hall in the hospital with my GPS and determined it was one-tenth of a mile. Asked what I was doing, I told them. They said I could walk but could not run. I explained walking does not count. I offered to run in the hall, on a treadmill (suggesting they give me a stress test), or around the outside of the hospital. They were unrelenting and it got ugly. They won. I was, and still am, angry. My streak, which began on April 1, 2017, ended after 853 days with my August 1, 2019, run.

One all-time favorite quote, which I use often when asked about my streak, is from Crash Davis in Bull Durham: "Never screw with a winning streak," but he did not say screw.

MERCEDES MUROLO'S NEW STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I am so very silly about this. I had no idea that this was the birthday of my 3rd running streak till I checked my email. THANK YOU! I have two retired streaks: the first dating back to Christmas of '93; so today I wax nostalgic for the days of an actual printed USRSA newsletter.

I am older and slower but never more devoted or enthusiastic. I have been running for a couple hours a day since January and as my marathons approach I try to step it up to 2 X a day this week. We are having a rather paralyzing heat wave in Sonoma county so... I really have not begun to prep for The Humboldt Redwoods Marathon on October 13 quite yet. I run only 2 a year, but it seems one is always right round the bend - a symptom of my vintage status.

When I ran my first marathon in Paris in 1984, I met two memorable women runners: one 66 and the other near 80. I told them that my goal was to be like them and run right into my golden years. HmMMMM.

Carroll Larremore

CARROLL LARREMORE'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Today [18 August 2019] is Run Streak Day 742. Like most, when I saw the information in Runner's World magazine about streaking, I was just going to streak for a limited period of time...but then I found the online Runner's World Facebook group and the support I received in that group became something I looked forward to every day. It pushed me and kept me going on my streak and I began to become involved with other's streaking and would look for them each day to see if they were meeting their goals, as well.

I have been running every dang day for over two years now and the discipline of doing so has benefited me in all arenas of my life. I have learned to override any excuses, be it lethargy, weather or illness. I run No Matter What. It has helped develop a trust in myself that, at my age of 63, has been profound. Should't I have learned to trust what I say to myself at this point? Sure, but, as a result of streaking, that trust occupies a larger space inside than ever before. When I say I'll do something, you can bet I'm coming through.

I have been a volunteer with the American Red Cross for ten years as a Disaster Responder. I have deployed three, maybe four, times during my streak for weeks at a time. I was always nervous about losing the streak during these times, as I never knew what to expect with regards to living conditions and weather conditions, but I have managed to keep the streak going. There are times I have run in hotel hallways, hotel parking lots or in circles in a hotel room as outside wasn't safe, but the streak continued through those times.

I am headed to the Runner's World Festival in October in Bethlehem, Pa. I have met a few fellow streakers when they have traveled through my home state of Colorado, but will be meeting a number of them in October.

I am honored to be a part of the Run Streak Community.

Jemal Swoboda

JEMAL SWOBODA'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Woot! Woot! Very happy to ring in my 2nd year of daily running on July 28, 2019. I celebrated the anniversary that I've been slowly moving toward in style with an overnight pacing run in beautiful (and very steep!) Ouray, Colorado. My good friend was running the Ouray 50-mile trail run and I joined him for the last 29 miles that included 11,500 feet of elevation gain. Even though I hit the milestone around 12:30 AM, I made sure to start a new run on my Garmin as we were coming to the finish with the sun coming up just to have a record of a least a mile every day since 2017. I also hit my secondary goal on this run of another 100-mile month - my 24th straight.

I honestly had no idea what I was getting myself into back in 2017 when my streak started but it's really true that running every day just becomes part of the daily routine. I've stopped asking Siri how long it has been since I started and now I just count the months.

For me, running is just part of a healthy and balanced life. I run a startup (Dabble.co) that powers local events and classes and it has been a tough few years. Running each day gives me a chance for self-care, a welcomed distraction, and gives me something that I can control in the midst of a lot of uncertainty. I can't imagine not running in a day - just as I couldn't imagine not brushing my teeth or making the bed. Here's to another day, another month, and hopefully another year of healthy and happy movement. Cheers to all!

BRIAN DOERR'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 712 DAYS

Sadly, I had to end my streak at 712 days due to an IT Band issue that my doctor called "a mess." It was keeping me from sitting and sleeping comfortably.

I tried to streak through it but in the end decided that I needed to heal up rather than run and delay the process any further.

During my streak I logged 1253 miles. I also broke my 5K PR @22:11 and finished 3rd in my age group at the same time.

I have several races lined up for the fall and will look to streak again in the future.

JIM WOOLAM'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1608 DAYS

I need to update my streak information: Began 1/1/2015 and Ended 5/27/2019.

My streak ended because of a hip operation. Back out on the road and began my new streak on my 87th birthday: 8/13/2019.

Thank you for the nice write up about the organization in the Runner's World Magazine in the March Issue. I was excited to be one of the members due to my age.

I am a dedicated and committed runner to the program. Will continue as long as God lets me.

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

This Fall 2019 issue is our Diamond (75th) edition of The Streak Registry. Started in April 2001, we now have successfully published seventy-five (75) TSR newsletters containing pictures, profiles, and statistics of streak runners without missing a single quarter.

To celebrate #75, we are fortunate to have Lauren Siegel grace our cover and be our lead story. Always humble, Lauren begins her essay for us by asking, “When I was asked to submit my story, I thought, why me?” Lauren, however, is truly one of the shining diamonds of our running streak association. This can be attested to by anyone who spends any time on the SRI Facebook page where Lauren seems to always have a kind word for anyone who posts about a streak ending or a celebratory picture for anyone posting about a streak anniversary. I was reminded of Lauren’s world-wide running streak following when I accidentally ran into Ireland’s top streak runners, Tom and Mairead Blennerhasset, at this year’s Boston Marathon after Tom spotted the running streak sweatshirt I was wearing. The Irish streak runners had very kind things to say about our association and mentioned Lauren as the person they would like to meet while in the United States. I hope that they were able to meet and I also hope that you were able to read Lauren’s inspiring story in this Diamond issue of TSR.

Realizing we have many “diamonds in the rough” athletes in our association, we began offering for sale this year running streak anniversary plaques on our website. If you know of anyone having a big anniversary coming up that you want to acknowledge (like Lauren Siegel’s 20th running streak anniversary on October 15th) or you want a permanent reminder of your own anniversary achievement, please click here to see our “Shop” section on our website where we have running streak plaques and clothing for purchase: <https://www.runeveryday.com/shop.php>

As for me, this year marks 35 years since I first pinned a number to my shirt and ran the 1984 Patriot’s Path 10K in Morris Township, New Jersey. I have since competed in over 850 races including 37 marathons and the last 15 consecutive Boston Marathons. In truth as I age in my 60s, I have seen my times steadily decline and thought my best racing was behind me but have found new hope by increasing my mileage and, of all things, buying new running shoes.

Inspired by many of you, I have set a goal for myself to run 2,000 miles a year. I have met the goal for the last decade but really struggled in 2018 to reach the 2,000 yearly total due to an injury following the November Philadelphia Marathon. I finally hit the 2,000 mark on the last day of 2018 but my injury limited the mileage I could run at the start of 2019. On 30 June 2019, my yearly total stood at 915 miles and I thought I better get to work if I am going to reach my 2K mileage goal for 2019. I am happy to report that I am back on track again by averaging over 50 miles a week for the last seven weeks and having my highest monthly total ever – 245.7 miles – for the month of July. Hopefully, my increase mileage will lead to another 2,000-mile year and, if lucky, also another BQ at the Marine Corp Marathon this October 27th in Arlington, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

My other obsession this year is over new running shoes. At the beginning of the year, I noticed some of my running friends were wearing the new Nike Vaporfly 4% Flynit and having great success. While they cost a crazy amount, I treated myself to a pair of the shoes and saw dramatic improvements including going from a 24:08 in a 5k in February to a 22:08 by June. I have also seen dramatic improvements in my times for other distances since buying the racing shoes.

In America, there is a comedian named Jeff Foxworthy who does a comedy routine called, “You know you are a redneck if . . .” Others on Facebook came up with a runner’s version of Foxworthy’s humor by noting, “You know you are a runner if your most expensive shoes are your running shoes.” By that definition, I proudly claim my runner and streak runner status.

As always, I want to wish everyone good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!
