RUNNING STREAK LEGEND RON HILL PASSES AT 82

By: Mark Washburne

Ron Hill, of Hyde, England, who was “one of the greatest marathon runners of all time” and “inspired the ‘streaking’ movement by running every day for more than 52 years,” died on May 23, 2021, at the age of 82. “It is with immense sadness we today mourn the passing of British running legend Dr. Ron Hill MBE [Member of the Order of the British Empire], our founder, our inspiration, a husband, a father, a grandfather, a runner,” noted Dr. Hill’s clothing company, Ronhill, in confirming the news of his death on social media. “We send our thoughts to May, Graham, Steve and all the family at this time.”

Streak Runners International (SRI) also sends our condolences to his widow May, sons Graham and Steve, and his entire family. While Dr. Hill did not become a member of our running streak association until 2014 just before his 50th running streak anniversary, he was often mentioned in our newsletter as the inspiration to many streak runners from around the world. In tribute to his many running accomplishments, here are some of the articles about him that we have posted in The Streak Registry (TSR) over the years.

Traversing the Tundra in England: Dr. Ron Hill at 50 years
By: Steve DeBoer

Former Olympian (or should that be Olympian since once you are one, you always are one?) Ron Hill of England, who started his running streak on 21 December 1964, will, God willing, reach 50 years of consecutive days of running, 26.2 years of which were twice daily, on 20 December 2014.

I actually traversed English tundra in 2004, when my mom, wife, children and I went to visit Mom's ancestral home in Fitzhead a small (264 population) village in the county of Somerset. It has been in existence since at least 1178 AD. Her 8-great grandfather, John Rockwell, sailed for New England in 1634 and never returned home. His parents are buried in the St. James church cemetery there. The Rockwell Family Foundation helped with some church repairs and donated an outdoor bench, which we all got to sit on when I wasn't running.

I contacted Ron to see if we could meet while I was in the country, but he was racing in some foreign country that week, so we never got together. However, I recently contacted him again about his streak and am very happy to report his responses are below:

1. Why did you start Running every day? Did you know anyone else those first few years that ran daily?

I had a disastrous Tokyo 1964 Olympics, 18th in the 10,000metres and 19th in the Marathon, after going there with second fastest marathon in the world and third fastest 6 miles in the world. After the Olympic Marathon, October 21st, I had a total of 8 days off the last day being 20th December. I decided that day that to fully realize my potential I needed to train every day. I did not know of anyone who ran every day.

2. What has been your longest and shortest run?

My shortest run has been 1 mile and my longest has been 28 miles. On the 23rd of December I began a "twice a day, once on Sunday streak, under "Ron Hill Rules," which allowed me on about 5 "special circumstances" occasions to run ½ mile only on my second run of the day. I kept that going for 26.2 years.

3. How many countries have you run in? Raced in? How many lifetime races run?

I have raced in 100 countries and have run but not raced in Haiti and The Bahamas. 2416 lifetime races.

4. How many marathons have you run? How many were run under 2 hours 30 minutes and how many under 3 hours?

I have run 115 marathons plus one in 1962 where I DNF'd. 28 finishes under 2:20; 66 were under 2:30; 114 were under 3:00.

5. Describe any times you thought you might NOT be able to run, the reason why, and how you were able to complete the run.

September 9th 1993 I was in a head-on car crash (not my fault), which broke my sternum in two. Luckily I had run 3 miles that morning. I was hospitalized overnight. I ran 1 mile a day for the next 9 days then began to build up the distance.

6. Please recount a few most memorable/favorite/successful races as well as a few major disappointments, including your analysis of why they went well or poorly.

Winning the English Cross-Country Championships in 1966 and 1968. Cross-Country was my first love starting out. Winning the European Championships Marathon on the original marathon course from Marathon to Athens, 1969. Winning Boston in 1970, the first Briton to win the race and in a course record time on an awful weather day. Winning the British Commonwealth Championship Marathon, Edinburgh, 1970, in a time of 2:09:28, World Record (?) at that time. Disappointments: Olympics Tokyo – too long away from home; Olympics Mexico, in the wrong event, 10,000m., selectors fault, could have had a medal in the Marathon – was in the form of my life. Munich Olympic Marathon, 6th place. Selectors again! I was forced to run a trial which I ran in 2:12:51; trained at altitude beforehand and did the glycogen loading diet to (my) destruction.

7. Do you currently know personally or know of any people who run every day in England and where do they reside?

The only other person I know in the UK who has a streak is a guy who lives in County Durham in the north east of England. His name is Paul Smith and he is on day 2880. He says that I inspired him to begin and he is quite a character. I will email you a recent mail I received from him so you have a contact if you need it. Incidentally, a running apparel business, which I founded in 1970 and for which I am an ambassador has just launched a brand marketing campaign entitled, "RUN EVERY DAY."

8. Any current challenges to continuing your daily runs?

No challenges whatsoever! I'm ticking along at around 25 miles a week with no intention to stop when I reach 50 years. I'm the same weight I was when I was 20 years old and I find the mental and physical benefits are tremendous.

9. How many miles have you run during your streak and how many miles did you run prior to December 20, 1964?

I have recorded in my training logs, which began September 1956 whilst I was still at grammar school (high school), 159,753 miles. 25,427 were before I began my streak; therefore my streak miles are 134,326.

So there you have it. An interview with Ron Hill, the first human being, male or female, in our Solar System, to run every day for 50 years (hope I don't jinx him by publishing this a few weeks before the official anniversary!)

Ron Hill

DR. RON HILL COMPLETES 50 YEARS OF RUNNING EVERY DAY By: Mark Washburne

Congratulations to Dr. Ron Hill, 76, from Hyde, England in the United Kingdom, who on 20 December 2014 completed 50 years of running every day without missing a day. "Mission accomplished at a 5K Parkrun in Manchester's Heaton Park," said Dr. Hill in a statement to SRI/USRSA. "My streak total is 134,531.5 miles. My recorded miles - including pre-streak miles - are 159,962.5 and I intend to reach 160,000 miles on the last day of the year."

In other measures of time, Ron Hill's half a century of daily running amounts to 18,262 days or 2,608 weeks (plus 6 days) or 600 months. Started on 21 December 1964, Dr. Hill has the longest running streak in the world as listed by Streak Runners International (SRI) and the United States Running Streak Association (USRSA).

Besides possessing the longest known running streak in the world, Ron Hill is a three time Olympian. In the Tokyo Olympics of 1964, Dr. Hill placed 18th in the 10,000 meters, in a time of 29:53, and 19th in the marathon, in a time of 2:25:34. In the 1968 Summer Olympics in Mexico City, he placed 7th in the 10,000 meters and ironically ran the same time (29:53) as he had run four years earlier in Tokyo. Dr. Hill's final Olympic games was in Munich in 1972, where he placed 6th in the marathon in a time of 2:16:30 at the age of 33.

During Ron Hill's illustrious running career, he set world records for 10 miles (47:02, Leicester, England, April 1968; 46:44, Leicester, England, November 1968), 15 miles (72:48.2, Bolton, England, July 1965), 25 kilometers (75:22.6, Bolton, England, July 1965), and the 26.2 miles marathon (2:09:28, Edinburgh, Scotland, July 1970).

Ron Hill was also the second athlete to break 2:10 in the marathon. In 1970, Dr. Hill ran a personal best of 2:09:28 at the Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh, Scotland. At that point, the only faster marathon time was run by Australian Derek Clayton, who clocked a 2:08:33 in Antwerp, Belgium in May 1969. The Antwerp course, however, was suspected of being short by possibly 500 meters. "The course was measured using five cars and was never able to be remeasured," noted Dr. Hill in a 16 December 2014 email to SRI/USRSA. "The Belgians refused to answer any queries about the course." In July 2009, the Association of Road Racing Statisticians rejected the record set by the Derek Clayton at Antwerp for the course being short and now lists Dr. Hill's 2:09:28 as the world fastest marathon at the time it was set in 1970.

Ron Hill also set a course record for the Boston Marathon. In 1970, he was the victor of the 74th edition of that race in a time of 2:10:30. His 1970 win eclipsed the old Boston Marathon course record set the year before by more than 3 minutes. Ron Hill also won gold medals for the marathon at the European Championships in Athens, Greece in 1969 and, as mentioned before, the Commonwealth Games in Scotland in 1970. During his lifetime, Dr. Hill finished 115 marathons, where he ran 112 of them in under 2:50, 103 in under 2:45, and 29 in under 2:20. His final marathon was the 100th running of the Boston Marathon in 1996, where he completed the historic course in a time of 3:12:46 at the age of 57.

Dr. Hill graduated with a Ph.D. in textile chemistry in 1964 from Manchester University. In 1970, he started Ron Hill Sports, "which pioneered various products including wrap-over shorts, mesh vests, waterproof running jackets and reflective strips." He sold the company in the early 1990s and has since started Hilly Clothing specializing in technical socks and other apparel. Ron Hill was also President of the Road Runners Club from 1987 to 1988.

In a recent statement to SRI/USRSA, Dr. Hill said he has no plans to stop his daily running at 50 years. "I'm ticking along at around 25 miles a week with no intention to stop when I reach 50 years," noted Dr. Hill in an email to SRI/USRSA in November 2014. "I'm the same weight I was when I was 20 years old and I find the mental and physical benefits are tremendous."

We here at SRI/USRSA wish Dr. Ron Hill continued success with his running and his now half century year old running streak.

RON HILL ENDS WORLD'S LONGEST RUNNING STREAK AFTER 52 YEARS
By: Mark Washburne

Dr. Ron Hill, 78, an entrepreneur from Hyde, England in the United Kingdom, has ended his five decades long running streak. "It is great sadness that I have to report the end of my streak," said Dr. Hill in a statement to Streak Runners International (SRI). "I have been having heart problems and have been waiting for some time now to have the problem diagnosed and hopefully rectified. 1 Mile runs have not helped and on Saturday 28th January I ran my last 1 Mile. After less than 400 metres my heart started to hurt and over the last 800 metres the problem got worse and worse. I thought I might die but just made it to 1 mile in 16 minutes and 34 seconds. There was no other option but to stop. I owed that to my wife family and friends plus myself."

Started on 21 December 1964, Dr. Hill's running streak lasted 19,032 days (52 years, 39 days) and was the longest running streak ever recorded in the world. We here at Streak Runners International wish Dr. Hill a speedy recovery and much success in the future.

For the working man, and more especially the married man, it is not easy to fit in around 100 miles a week without conflict to social and family life. But with careful planning it can be done. . . . The best way to train twice a day is by running to work and back.

- Ron Hill

I wondered what would happen if I went beyond my 120-130 miles per week. Would I reach another plane of fitness and capability? I had to find out . . . But I was never really happy. A lot of the time I felt slightly fatigued and towards the end of this increased training stint I seemed to be doing nothing but changing in and out of running gear.

FRED MUROLO'S STREAK OF 39+ YEARS ENDS AFTER BEING HOSPITALIZED FOR COVID-19

By: Fred Murolo

I started running before the streak, but I wasn't a runner back when I played football, hockey and baseball in high school. Running was conditioning or punishment. In college, when team sports faded, running was a way to stay in shape. I became a child of the first great American running boom of the 1970s, when Bill Rodgers and Frank Shorter captivated our attention and we all thought we could run near elite times if we would just train enough. (I learned otherwise.)

In 1977, I ran all summer with a friend and did 62 days in a row. My “running shoes” were canvas Converse Chuck Taylor low tops. Not much support, but they did the job. I broke that streak to go to a Grateful Dead concert at Raceway Park, New Jersey in September. I didn’t run again until the following spring.

In 1978, I again ran all summer. I decided to run the New York marathon in October, and I ramped up mileage back at college in the early fall. My sister gave me $30 to buy a pair of running shoes. I bought a pair of original Nike waffle trainers and wore them for all my long runs and through the marathon. I never did figure out how to officially enter the marathon, so I ran as a bandit, but I had a great time negotiating the boroughs of the City and finished in 3:52:10, with a big smile and two bloody nipples.

After that, I considered myself a runner. I ran the occasional local 5-mile race; but I didn’t run very much. I did a few miles a few times a week; I took whole winters off. A few years went by. In the fall of 1981, I was a graduate student at Penn State living in the neighboring town of Boalsburg, and I again decided to run more seriously. I bought a pair of Asics Montreals at the local running store and tried to get out there almost every day. By Thanksgiving my knee was sore from too much running too soon, and I took time off.

In December I made a New Year’s resolution to be more consistent in 1982, promising myself that I would run at least 300 days and go at least 1,000 miles. I got myself a pocket date book to chart my running for accountability. I started two days early, on December 30, 1981. I don’t remember why I didn’t run on December 29th, but the 30th was the day I got out there and ran from the house around the center of town, out to the highway and back around to the house, about 3.5 miles. The next afternoon, I ran again in a fluffy snowstorm, about 5.5 miles this time. Through the winter, I ran every day, thinking I should save the 65 days I was planning on taking off. Winter was cold and many of the runs were the 3.5-mile loop through town. On a few of the coldest, windiest days I did just 2 miles around the neighborhood. This became my minimum daily mileage without me thinking much about it. I didn’t realize it at the time, but I had taken an on-ramp to the highway of lifetime daily running. All I knew was it felt right to run every single day and chart it in my book.

I did just over 100 miles for January and February and then 130 in March. I did my first race of the year the first weekend of April, a local 10k a few towns away. I ran it in just over 41 minutes, my fastest time ever. The benefits of running every day seemed obvious, so I wasn’t about to skip a day as I chased a sub-40 10k. After several near misses, I finally ran a 38:17 in June 1982, then a PR 38:14 in July. I had visions of steady improvement, but I never did better than the 38s as I ran almost every weekend. I did manage a 29:35 5 miler, which was the perfect race, the best I could hope to do.

I entered a marathon in October (the inaugural Wineglass marathon in Corning NY) with hopes of qualifying for Boston, even though the standard was 2:50. I started out on pace, getting to the halfway mark in 1:25, but crashed and burned to a 3:20:40, taking over an hour to cover the final 6.2. Dejected as I was, I got out for the standard 3.5 the next day and knew I wouldn’t skip a day that year. I finished with 2,141 miles for 1982.

Over the holidays I told my sister Mercedes, who is a great streak runner in her own right, that I wanted to run 10,000 days in a row. I didn’t even know how many years that was; I was joking. Kind of.

Fred and Mercedes Murolo in 1986

Over the next several years, I made running a part of the daily routine, usually first thing in the morning, after brushing my teeth. I ran between 2,200 and 2,500 miles a year. I raced 5 miles or 10k with some regularity. Some years I ran a marathon, and the years rolled by. There was bad weather: I ran the morning of hurricanes. I ran right down the middle of the street after blizzards. I also endured the occasional pulled muscle, colds and flu, and just kept going. I learned that a tight wrap on a pulled hamstring or a rolled ankle would let me run an easy two miles. Running a couple miles with a cold or flu would loosen up the congestion and I could almost convince myself that it was good for me. There was no thought of taking a day off.

When I finished law school in 1986, I ran fewer miles for a few years as I started my career. Then in 1988, I started at a job that allowed me to run at lunch and the mileage and fitness came back. I ran over 3,000 miles in 1988 and 1989 and ran a marathon each year around 3:30. In 1990 I started a new job that demanded long hours and running suffered. I ran a few shorter races, but for the 1990s, I averaged fewer than 1,500 miles a year. I would get a morning run in and then work until late at night. Over the decade, I gained 30 pounds.

I rededicated myself to running farther and faster in 2000, but I had a long way to go. In 2001, I felt it coming together, losing the extra weight and gaining footspeed. In October, I ran a marathon in 3:16:50 at the Hudson-Mohawk Marathon in upstate New York. Although I had lost the speed of 25-year-old me, I paced that run evenly and felt great the whole race. This qualified me for Boston, which I ran three times, the last with my sister Mercedes.

In 2005, I felt the pull of the dark side – the ultramarathon. I started with a 24-hour race. I stayed for 12:30 and ran 53 miles. Then I ran a 50-miler at the Tussey Mountainback race in central Pennsylvania where I had started the streak. It took me 9:52. But my eyes were on the 100 mile distance and I entered the Vermont 100 for 2006. In my mind, if I could run a challenging 50-mile race in 9:52, surely I could do a 100 miler in under 24 hours.

Thus, I found myself in a field called Silver Hill Meadow in central Vermont at 3:45 am on a July morning. It was already warm and there was some ground fog. It promised to be hot and humid, but I thought if I just kept running slowly, I would finish with no problem. It was sweltering and my quads were so sore, but I made the halfway point in exactly 12 hours. I knew I was fading though. The next 18 miles took 7 hours of walking and stopping at aid stations. I arrived at the 68 mile mark and felt broken. I had huge blisters on my feet and I gave up. It seemed so obvious to me that I couldn't finish in my condition and at the pace I was going. So, first 100, dnf. My first dnf ever.

I sulked and doubted whether the 100-mile distance was something I even wanted to do. It seemed so random. But then I came to the understanding that these races were hard and I had to toughen up. I registered for the Umstead 100 in Raleigh, North Carolina at the end of March. During the race, I had moments of doubt, but I just kept moving forward and finished in 26:50. I was jubilant. I felt as if something fundamental had changed in me, that I could meet the tallest challenges and persist to a triumphant conclusion. Soon I realized that this feeling of empowerment, while wonderful and intoxicating, did not transfer to other aspects of my life. I was the same procrastinating guy who had to be told twice or even three times to mow the lawn, but I could finish a 100 miler.

I used my newfound 100 miler skills to go back and finish Vermont. I kept going back to Umstead and ran it 13 times. In total after my failure at Vermont, I ran 41 100-mile races, and finished them all, except one when I thought I was finished and stopped. When I realized I had another 3.4 mile loop, it was too late to get done within the cutoff. Yeah, that was plenty stupid. I have never been fast, but I have gone sub-24 hours 4 times in 100-milers. That's a benchmark of at least mid-pack mediocrity.

My crowning ultra achievement was running the Volstate race. It's a traverse of Tennessee in July, starting with a ferry crossing from Missouri to Kentucky, then entering the northwest corner of Tennessee and heading south and east. It finished in a cornfield in Georgia after a few miles in Alabama. 314 miles total. Not a stage race. No aid stations. The clock starts and the runners go. When they finish, they stop their clock. It took me just under 8 days, and it destroyed my feet and the rest of my body. And my mind. It was more journey run than race, and it was a killer. But finishing was great. And I ran the next day.

Through my ultra-life, I ran every day. At first, the days following 100s were tough, but the body gets used to what the mind thinks is doable. The years went by with me doing about 3-4 100 milers a year and the occasional shorter ultramarathon. And the occasional short race, like a fourth of July 5 miler.

Then Covid shut down the in-person races in 2020. I did a few virtual races, but I also took the opportunity to do two journey runs I had wanted to do for years. First, in June, two friends and I started at the monument at the northeast corner of Connecticut and ran southwest to the New York border, for a diagonal traverse of my little state. 157 miles. Then in August, three friends and I started in New Haven on the water and ran north on the Farmington Canal Rail Trail to the Massachusetts border and back. 114 miles. I realized that the shutdown wasn't just a loss; it was an opportunity.

So, I got back to December 30th and marked 39 years of running every day. Well over 100,000 miles, dozens of ultras and hundreds of shorter races. I looked forward to getting to 40 years and moving up a category. But ....

Throughout the shutdowns and advisories and restrictions, I was very careful. I tried not to put myself at risk for Covid. As a lifelong runner in good shape, I assumed I would have a mild case if infected, but I didn't want to have any case of Covid. Connecticut was rolling out vaccines for older people and was just about to open them up for people in my age group: 55-64. Then I had flu-like symptoms and tested positive.

I had over 14,300 consecutive days of running, and I kept going after the positive test. My breathing was getting worse, but I thought I could manage it. I went to the local ER one evening for treatment, but choose not to stay. I was still optimistic that I could manage at home and run through it. I ran February 26th, 3.1 miles, very slowly. My breathing felt compromised, but the run was doable. Then came February 27th. Breathing was worse. My wife had bought an oxygen saturation finger cuff to determine if my breathing was oxygenating my body adequately. It's supposed to be above 91 at a minimum. Mine was 80-82. I was slowly suffocating and I could feel it. Persistent person that I am (read "fool"), I put on my running clothes and shoes and ventured out. I made it about 75 yards and turned back. I couldn't breathe enough to run even at the slowest speed.

I ended up in the hospital that night on supplemental oxygen. First hospital stay was 22 days, 9 in intensive care, with some high flow oxygen to keep me alive and breathing on my own. Then I was discharged home with supplemental oxygen, and I was getting better before I started getting worse. I went back into the hospital to learn that I had pulmonary emboli, a common finding with Covid. Another 11 days in the hospital on blood thinners to shrink the clots and then home.

Here I sit at home, walking every day for rehab. I'm off that long streak highway that I hopped on in 1981. I have a retired streak of 14,000 something days. Never made that 40-year mark. And I'm not running. I just do not have enough pulmonary capacity to run yet, but I am hopeful it will turn in my favor. My messages for everyone are simple. Enjoy your health and streak. To me running every day is a celebration of the gifts of life and good health. But don't take any of it for granted. All streaks are transient, because our lives here are finite. And remember that your lives are not your streak, no matter how long the streak is. Life is more important than your streak.

Streak on, all! Hope to see you out on the road or trail when I can run again.

STREAKING...FULLY CLOTHED

By: Richard Westbrook

(Italicized section by Caroline Bell, writing for the Fleet Feet Journal)

I saw my first “streaker” at the Florida Relays in the early or mid-70's. I had a track team competing in the high school, middle school, and elementary school events. As I sat in the bleachers waiting for an open distance race to start, a blonde woman came running down the front straightaway wearing nothing but running shoes. The crowd started cheering upon seeing her running toward the first curve. Meet officials were caught off guard and were hesitant getting into action to stop her. She took advantage of the situation and picked up speed once in the curve. She left the track on the backside running through an open gate and onto a road that led to dormitories. We never knew if she was caught or ran to safety, but we were hoping for safety.

But, that is not the gist of this article about streaking. This is about running streaks...and, I'm pretty sure the runners involved in this streaking are clothed. Here, a running streak is consecutive days running at least 1-mile per day...not quite as glamorous, but steady and solid.

Believe it or not, there are various organizations whose sole focus is run streaking. The United States Running Streak Association (USRSA) established a national streak group for runners in 2000 and maintains a registry of active and retired streaks. According to them, a run streak is defined as running “at least one mile (1.61 kilometers) within each calendar day.”

Maintaining a regular running schedule can seem like a daunting task. Most average runners hit the roads between three and five days per week. If you're not familiar with the popular "run streak" trend, running every day may sound like something reserved for elite athletes and dedicated professionals. But thousands of amateur runners have joined the movement, logging miles every day to keep their streak alive.

From losing weight to setting a new PR, there are a variety of different reasons that drive runners to start a run streak. Making a commitment to run every day requires dedication and drive, not to mention time management skills. For some runners, logging miles every day is a way to replace the excitement of races that were cancelled due to the pandemic.

Committing to a run streak can help you stay motivated and force you to get off the couch. No matter what your motivation is, running a streak is a fun and rewarding way to challenge yourself. Checking the days off on the calendar can provide you with that exciting feeling of achieving something awesome.

My running streak started on December 29, 1973 on a bet with a friend and rival cross-country and track & field coach with the new year, 1974, fast approaching. We both ran and traveled to some races together. On one trip, we were discussing various aspects of distance running, and the conversation turned to running streaks. Now, this running streak thing was his idea, and that was for both of us to start a running streak on January 1, 1974 to see who could run the longest streak. I actually started a few days earlier to warm up for the streaking.

Well, my friend and rival, Don and family, drove to Minnesota to his in-law's home for the Christmas holidays that lasted through New Year's Day. Of course, there was a lot of snow that piled up into large drifts because it was Minnesota after all. That forced Don into the basement to run a ridiculous amount of laps around the furnace to get a mile completed. Those short laps with constant turning resulted in an inflamed hip that prevented him from running at all for the rest of January.

While Don was trashing himself in a basement, I was at home in Ft. Walton Beach, Florida with no snow to force basement running, and then, spent the holidays in Trion, Georgia...again, with no snow. So, my streak was anchored in December...a few days before the New Year. Don had nothing else to do with streak running. Me? I'm still streaking (clothed).

Everything is better in moderation, and this saying rings true for running as well. Running too much can have adverse effects on the body. Too much stress on your muscles and joints can cause fatigue and injury, and the mental energy required to run every day can be overwhelming. So, how does a run streak affect your body? The answer isn't as simple as you may think.

Recovery is a crucial part of any training regimen. In order to get stronger and faster, your body needs rest after the stress of a hard workout. If you're running every day, it might seem like there's no room in your schedule for rest. But it is possible to participate in a run streak while allowing your body to recover. "Active rest is a real thing. You can go for a short run at an even easier pace than most runs, which allows you to have the benefits of endorphins and keep the rhythm of your previous runs going," explains Nick Stump, owner and run coach at Fleet Feet Delray Beach.

According to a 2018 article published in Frontiers in Physiology by Dr. Oliver Dupuy, active recovery is shown to decrease the effects of delayed onset muscle soreness (DOMS). Going for a one to two mile run at an easy pace the day after a tough workout can help get blood flowing to your muscles, reducing soreness and inflammation. As long as you break up your hard sessions with some easy runs, you can still recover adequately while run streaking. Foam rolling, stretching and massage will also help to ensure a thorough recovery.

I've had a few problems while pursuing my streak. The most daunting one was being hospitalized for a day-and-a-half a few years ago. I had to scout out the hallways and stairways in the hospital so I could have an escape route to the outside. Once there, I could run (actually jog very slowly) in the parking lot and knock out a mile and keep the streak alive.

I found an exit door, but it had an alarm that would sound when opened after a certain time...and, that time frame included my escape time. So, I dressed in my clothes with the hospital gown underneath and calmly walked out through the lobby and returned when the run was over. No problem! Well, one little problem was jogging with that gown bunched up under my clothes, but I survived. The next day I was dismissed, so that problem was conquered.

Since then, there have been very few problems since I usually run first thing in the morning before any interference comes up. Minor injuries and such just reduced my runs to one mile to keep the streak alive. Weather presented its own kind of problems, but I just had to run into it and get it done. That has included blistering heat, energy draining humidity (those sound like Vol State), hurricane winds, lightning, flood waters, and other stuff.

I've had the aforementioned DOMS condition several times after marathons and ultras. That convinced me to run less in the next couple of days. But, the key there was that I did run at least one mile. Actually, I found that running 4 to 6 miles helped more with recovery than slogging through just 1 or 2 miles.

Lately, I've read a few articles concerning streaking and declaring that it isn't a good thing for smart runners to do, that a well-placed off day should be interspersed. Streak runners tend to run despite other priorities. They tend to run when not feeling well which may enhance an oncoming illness. They tend to run in the lead-up before a race when an off day or two before the race could result in better racing. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

Well, I also remember reading in high school that running a lot of distance would shorten one's life span. In college, I read that distance running would enhance one's life span. So, whaddya do? The present evidence seems to agree with the latter, and I agree with the present evidence.

So, I'll just keep on going every day. I'll probably read later that streaking is a pretty good thing to do mentally, physically, emotionally, imaginatively, and spiritually.

But, I know that already.

Bill Rodgers - "Crossing the finish line in Boston '75 wearing a mesh T-shirt he'd found in a dumpster - his brother Charlie having hand lettered BOSTON GBTC (Greater Boston Track Club) on it - and Nike racing flats sent to him by Pre."

MARATHON LEGEND BILL RODGERS:
"BUT I CAN'T RUN THAT FAST!"
By: Dave Dial

"But I can't run that fast!"

Those were the first words neophyte marathoner Bill Rodgers uttered when told his time after he'd demolished a world class field, including legendary streaker Ron Hill, in winning the 1975 Boston Marathon.

Rodgers' effort was a new American Record, 2:09:55, and on that cool breezy April day, little did he realize but he'd taken his first steps toward becoming the "King of the Roads."

"But I can't run that fast!"

Bill recalls making his first log entry on September 8, 1963 when at age 15 he'd just run a PR for the mile, 5:10. He's not sure what prompted him to begin keeping a log but in terms of becoming a runner, he simply enjoyed it and came to realize it suited him both physically and psychologically.

Bill credits his coach at Connecticut's Newington High School, Frank O'Rourke, for providing him with the guidance to ultimately run 2:07, 4:28.8 and 9:36 for the half-mile, mile and two-mile respectively while a prep student-athlete.

Rodgers began attending Wesleyan University in 1966 and found himself on the same team as Amby Burfoot and Jeff Galloway! Burfoot was actually Bill's roommate when Amby won the '68 Boston Marathon and came to be a mentor of sorts for Rodgers, introducing him to long runs and the essence of training to race longer distances.

While Rodgers enjoyed success collegiately, including notching an 8:58 two-mile, the war in Vietnam proved a major distraction for him. He was adamantly opposed to it but the inevitability of his being drafted upon graduating saw him applying for and being granted conscientious objector status.

Given the uncertainty of his future, he began drifting away from running and ultimately quit. Working as a hospital orderly as part of fulfilling his alternative service, Rodgers drank and began to smoke during those troubled times. However, following a two-year hiatus from running, a series of negative events ultimately proved both positive and fateful.

First, Rodgers was fired from his job for trying to organize a union and couldn't immediately find another one. Next, his motorcycle was stolen. With time on his hands and the need for mobility, not to mention desperately needing a mental escape, he rediscovered running.

Putting in hundreds of laps on Boston's Huntington Avenue YMCA, Bill worked his way up to 15 miles a day and soon began logging mileage outdoors. Thereafter, it wasn't long before former competitors and teammates, the likes of Burfoot, began seeing Bill on the starting line of races in the New England area.

Rodgers has never been fond of racing in the heat and was a DNF in his first attempt at Boston on a hot day in 1973. His second effort in '74, after falling under the tutelage of the Greater Boston Track Club's Bill Squires, proved far more successful. Bill ran 2:19:34, good for 14th place.

1974 would ultimately prove to be a pivotal time in Rodgers' running career. His increased mileage volume - including a 200+ mile week - coupled with Squires' coaching resulted in a 2nd place finish in the National AAU 20k Championship during the fall.

He was poised for a breakthrough.

In the early spring of '75 Rodgers shocked the world with a 3rd place finish at the IAAF World Cross Country Championships in Morocco - and then came Boston '75...

"But I can't run that fast!"

But he did, wearing Nike racing flats sent to him by Steve Prefontaine. In a sad twist, while Rodgers ascended to road racing's pinnacle in the years following, Pre would lose his life in a car crash barely a month after that race.

In the years to follow, Rodgers continued to succeed as a runner while earning his master's degree in Special Education from Boston College. Coincidentally, during this period he had to try to strike a balance between his training and work; he first taught adults with mental disabilities and later emotionally disturbed children.

While Rodgers found teaching rewarding, his desire to focus entirely on his running coupled with the "running boom" and relaxation of rules regulating amateur athletes, saw Bill first opening a running store bearing his name in 1977 and shortly thereafter a running apparel clothing line with garments bearing the BR logo.

The store, Bill Rodgers Running Center, was located in Boston's Cleveland Circle near the 23-mile mark of the Boston Marathon and only a mile from Boston College. With his older brother Charlie managing the store, ideal roads to train on and the BC track nearby, Bill was able to focus entirely on staying in peak form and the rest, as they say, is history...

When asked recently to reflect on his lengthy career as both an Open and Masters runner by his former team and roommate Burfoot for the 'Lifetime Running' website, Rodgers said he felt his 3rd in the '75 IAAF World Cross Country Championships, his Boston '75 win and making the US Olympic team in '76 ranked as the moments he was most proud of.

When asked about his favorite running quote, Rodgers answered with one of his own, "If you want to win a race, you have to go a little berserk!"

With Rodgers' "berserk" quote in mind, in 1978 he won 27 of the 30 races he entered, in '75, '77 and '79 Track & Field News named him #1 in the world in the marathon and he once held the WR for 25k on the track (1:14:11.8). Bill was also inducted into both the National Distance Running Hall of Fame ('98) and National Track & Field Hall of Fame ('99).

At 73 years young, Rodgers logged his 186,500th mile at the close of 2020, many years and miles removed from that initial log entry he made as a 15-year old. And that brings to mind another quote of his, my personal favorite:

"To be a consistent winner means not just preparing one day, one month or even one year - but for a lifetime."

Those are words to run - and live by...

Traversing the Tundra - 60% Solution Update

By: Steve DeBoer

For those of you not familiar with the most famous fictitious detective, Sherlock Holmes, one of his most well-known quotations was, "The game is afoot!" which obviously refers to the necessity of being very physically fit to work as a private investigator, with running being the fastest form of foot power. Mr. Holmes was also noted for using a 7% solution (of cocaine), when he had no interesting cases going on and got bored playing his violin. As streak runners, we have less of a propensity for "Coke," as things go better for us when we experience the 60% solution – that is the attempt to run daily for at least 60% of our lives. Among streak runners, it is more challenging than covering 100,000 miles (99 of our group have accomplished that, though we don't have Ted Corbitt's exact mileage yet).

Though Ted Corbitt and Bob Ray were the earliest US streak runners that have been certified, neither of them actually achieved 60% (Bob was at 55.9% when he retired his 38-year streak in 2005). Bob Hensley was the first to reach 60% in 1992. Mark Covert followed in 1995 and Steve DeBoer in 1996. For comparison, Ron Hill, who began his running streak December 1964, at age 26, did not reach 60% until age 67 in 2005 (he was at 66.51% when his 52-years of daily runs ended in January 2017).

Lois Bastien, who has the longest running streak by a woman (39 years) is only at 47%, since she began daily runs after age 42. She will not reach 60% until she is almost 108 years old! On the other hand, Sierra Stempke started her streak before age 4 and could reach 60% in one more year, just before her 10th birthday!!

Sixteen years ago there were only 9 runners in this category in the US. Now there are 53, some of whom are now below 60%, having discontinued streak running, with 3 more within 1% of that number. Bob Hensley was also the first to reach 70% in 2006, before his 3rd running streak ended. Now there are 10 that have been over 70%, including Joel Pearson, who began his streak before his 9th birthday.

Here is the list of those who have run at least one mile daily (along with their age and years of longest streak) for at least 60% of their life as of June 1, 2021:

Steve DeBoer was the first documented streak runner to have run daily for 75% of his life, though that was not "US Streak Association official," since he ran less than 1 mile several times the first 10 ½ months. Joel Pearson has passed Steve if we only count the one-mile minimum streaks. Ron Hill was the only person that we knew of outside of the US who had run daily over 60% of one's life (66% when daily runs ended). Recently, Simon Laporte of Quebec certified his streak and will soon be the second SRI registrant to go over 65%. Sue Favor was the first woman over 60%. Julie Maxwell, with two running streaks, now becomes the second.

MATTHEW SAVAGE JOINS USRSA; STREAK STARTED IN 1979

At age 70 as of February 13, 2021 I am still running a minimum of 5 miles per day averaging 50 to 55 miles per week. My plan is to run every day until age 75. My weigh hasn't varied more than 5 to 10 lbs. since age 28. I now weigh 145 lbs. During my Marathons I would go down to 138 lbs.

I am into my 42nd years of running every day and during that time lived in 5 different states while working for Coca-Cola 35 years. I have met and run with some amazing people who all had their ways to become a better runner. I worked in Michigan, Bay City and Grand Rapids, San Antonio, Texas, Chicago, Ill. Portage, Indiana, and Madison, Alabama. I still keep in contact with my running groups in all the states. I am now retired and a certified personal trainer.

ANDY REAGAN'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I just took a late-night run on the treadmill to mark 5 years of running every day, a rather boring way to celebrate this accomplishment. It was a stressful day and it was just me, my thoughts (no podcast) today, to relax (didn't even follow my training plan - oops).

In that same vein, every day is different. It's been amazing to watch my body adapt to running (I've gotten much better at it) and get to experience the full spectrum of New England weather.

I've been lucky to run on the days of birth for both of our kids, and had plenty of close calls on forgetting to run. I've run with socks through snowy fields, ran a sub 3 hour marathon, jogged thousands of miles with a kiddo in a jogging stroller, walk/ran for 50 miles at a time, ran 3 Boston marathons (one "virtual"), shuffled out and back in an airport terminal, sprinted a 1:20 half marathon (my fastest run?), ran after the power went out at 11:45pm during a windstorm, and even been woken up to run after falling asleep on a night "on the town." What an adventure it's been, and I hope it continues to be!

ROSTISLAV PRIC'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

My name is Rostislav. I'm from Czech Republic, 48 old. I have regularly run for around 6 years. My first streak was 668 days. This series was retired on August 6th 2018 due to my surgery. As from February 24th 2019 I run 5 km per day at least. I hope this passion will remain for a lot of years.

I started running in my mid 50-s when i signed up to run a half marathon (Napa to Sonoma) as a fundraiser for Crohns and Colitis Foundation in 2009. I ran quite a few races after that and discovered the running streak organization in April of 2014 (thanks to Lauren). I decided to give it a shot and made it through December 2016 when I got a bad case of flu. That streak was 985 days... so close to 1,000!!!

I made a few attempts at streaking until my latest try starting on 12/31/2019, which is still going. In my first streak I ran for 2826 miles, 3 marathons (2 Philadelphia and 1 Chicago), about 15 half marathons and many 10 and 5 milers, and 10Ks and 5Ks. I also ran 8 miles with Raven in Miami a couple of years ago and will be doing my second run with him in March.

I am proud of motivating my kids and friends to give running a try and am pleased that few are still doing it. I love running and streaking gives me the motivation to keep going. At 68 now I average about 2.5 miles per day and look forward to when in person racing will resume.

KEITH GILBERTSON JOINS USRSA AS LIFETIME MEMBER

Most of my running is very slow jogging outdoors, and all of it solo for nearly the last year. I spent the previous winter in the milder Piedmont region of North Carolina where I only saw ice once or twice on my runs.

During much of the pandemic I've been in the Cleveland, Ohio area for family and financial reasons. After many years away, I've had to adjust to winter running again, including about 3 weeks straight of snow and ice on the sidewalks in my neighborhood. It has melted now, so perhaps spring is nearly here.

When I'm not running or working I've been trying to keep myself and relatives happy and healthy during the pandemic, and I've been updating my technology skills to make them more relevant to modern projects.

MARIE AUGUSTSSON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

2 years of running every day!! Has been my savior this last Corona-year. Think I would have gone mad without the running. :)

And all the odd places and time of the day that the runs have taken place on. Been running in airports, on ferries, in Florida, Spain, Italy, UK, before and after cross-country skiing races... The list will go on and on!!

One thing is for sure - I will continue as long as I can. :)

ANN DAVENPORT'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

It is hard to believe that my streak is 8 years old! I guess that can be attributed to my "one day at a time" mindset.

The streak began on a trip to the Dominican Republic and I was lucky enough to round out year 8 in St. Croix, USVI.

I've shared many miles over the years with members of my running team, Northstar Running, especially my good friends Ellen Kendall & Lisa Millam (also fellow streakers).

I try to remember to be thankful every day that I'm able to continue running.

ALEXANDER KRULL'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Seven years. In some ways that time has flown by. In other ways it feels like it has been much longer. I am grateful for my run streak because it has been my anchor in mindfulness. Aside from the day-to-day, run-to-run meditative quality of the sport, there are numerous memories from these past few years that are indelibly linked to the running streak. There have been challenges and triumphs; the running streak has helped me to take them in stride (pun intended).

My run streak could have been (and likely should have been) two weeks older than it is. I was up to thirteen consecutive days as of March 8th, 2014. But on March 8th, a Saturday, I was working an event all day. The plan was to run after I finished up there. Of course, by the time we were finished, we all decided to go out for dinner and drinks. I've run after a meal and a few beers before. It's not always comfortable but no big deal. With that said, while I was at the restaurant, I got a call from some of my closest friends to hang out. It had been a while since I'd seen them, so I agreed and got a ride over. At this point it was about 8:00 p.m. Suffice to say, we ended up talking, catching up and watching the Wolf of Wall Street. Midnight came and midnight went with no run. But I took that experience and realized I was going to have to make sacrifices, or run at unconventional times, or just have some flexibility, if I was going to make a run streak work. So, I got out for my first run of the new streak on March 9th of 2014 and I haven't missed a day since.

That's not to say the next seven years have all been easy. I am sure many of you can relate to some of the things I have run through. I have been sick a handful of times over the past seven years. The occasional stomach bug or cold, really, nothing too serious. But sometimes you have those days. You don't feel well, you don't really want to be on your feet, much less running outside. But you get your gear on and you grit through it.

I had my wisdom teeth out in the last full week of August 2014. I wanted to secure my second consecutive 200-mile month so I went for a three-mile run at around 12:30 a.m. on the eve of my early morning surgery to get close enough that a few single mile days would get me to my goal.

A few years later, in the spring of 2017, I was suffering from a bad case of piriformis syndrome. I was able to run a mile or two each day, and sometimes more, but for the span of about a month I was going to PT a couple times a week and doing a lot of icing/hot baths.

I missed a couple of races I had signed up for, and that was a bummer, but I came back strong in the Buffalo Half Marathon on Memorial Day weekend. I've had any number of aches, pains, falls and sprains over the past seven years, but I've persevered because that is what run streakers do.

Really, though, the things that have stuck with me the most are the good things. I have experienced unparalleled camaraderie and friendship with people I have met through running clubs and races. I've had countless people come up to me over the years and ask me if I'm that guy they always see running all around town. I ran past a bachelorette party at a winery towards the end of a seventeen-mile run and ended up taking a photo shoot with them.

I have nicknames from strangers who see me running but don't know who I am. For example, not knowing my name, a group of people took to yelling "Bill!" or "Billy!" every time they saw me running by. For about a year I thought maybe they were mistaking me for someone else. Finally, just a couple days shy of the three-year anniversary of my run streak, I figured out what was going on. A car had stopped at an intersection I was crossing and a few people in the car shouted "Bill!" I stopped my watch and got their attention, asking if they thought I was someone else. As it turns out, they had seen me running over the past few years and wanted to cheer me on, but not knowing my name, they settled on "Bill" and cheered me on that way. Among the other favorite nicknames I've earned over the years are The Fast Dude, Speedy and Mr. Marmalade (long story, maybe for another time).

I've also had a lot of success running over the years, including a number of race wins in the local circuit. In 2018 I totaled over 5000 miles of running for the year, which remains a personal best (I ran 4500+ in 2016 and 4000+ in 2017). In 2019, following a great summer of racing, I managed a nearly 20-minute PR at the Chicago Marathon, coming in at 2:45:21. In the time it had taken me to run my previous personal best I had already run a marathon and drank two beers to boot! Just thirteen days later, I set a PR in the half marathon on my way to a win with a time of 1:16:23.

Plenty has happened over these past several years, and much of that has happened as a result of the streak. I'm thankful for every day I add to it. Best wishes to all of you in your respective streaks. The past seven years have been an absolute blast. Here's to the next seven!

JEFF ZEHA'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Today [14 March 2021] makes year 4 of what I now just call "the streak." For me, the streak means:

- 1) 3 mile minimum (5k for last couple years).
- 2) that 5k, must be done outdoors. Although I have supplemented with treadmill miles twice on up-tempo days.

I've navigated family (wife and 2 young kids), international travel, time zones, weather, injuries, and 3 marathons in my short stretch. It's been very impressive to see what others on the list have accomplished.

Now, I'm off to start year 5, with no exit strategy in sight.

LARRY ZALEWSKI'S STREAK HITS 12 YEARS

Though I would consider myself a serious runner since 1988, it's only recently that I've devoted my training to running daily. This February marked 12 consecutive years. I am blessed by God, my genes as well as my supportive and beautiful wife to be able to log almost 70 miles a week at age 55.

To say this past year was the most difficult would be an understatement. Routines are such a critical part of a runner's life and the last 12 months have tried their best to destroy that. But the streak continues.

Although I competed in only two official road races in 2020 (an all-time low) I did keep another streak alive - 29 years running the Wheeling, WV Ogden Half Marathon (formerly Elby's). Though that race was canceled I ran the entire official course on what would have been race day, often alongside heavy road traffic on National Road and on crumbling, dangerous sidewalks that no sane person would normally traverse.

In January, my dear, special father passed away. I will dedicate 2021 to his amazing love and spirit. He would always ask me, "how many miles did you run today?" and I would answer "a lot, dad!" Happy running to all!

Thank you for your kind congratulations on my 14-year streak! Little did I know, all those years ago, that I would be still doing this! For those of you on your first weeks of a streak, those trying to get to a year, those trying to earn that comma.... you are my inspiration!

ERIC DIPIETRO JOINS USRSA

I first started running in middle school when I learned that I was pretty fast over short distances and joined the track team as a sprinter. I continued running in high school after failing to make the baseball team. A knee injury senior year led to a hiatus until 2011 when a doctor told me I had high cholesterol and had to change my lifestyle.

I started running with a friend and it sucked a lot more than I remembered. I kept at it and eventually ran Chicago's Shamrock Shuffle 8K in 2012. I became hooked on racing and signed up for my first half marathon shortly after.

Next, I decided to keep pushing myself and signed up for the Chicago Marathon in 2013 for the year I turned 30. I suffered through a bout of Runner's knee after the marathon and after some rehabilitation decided I needed some consistency in my training to help prevent further injuries. Runner's World announces a 40-day streak challenge from Memorial Day to the 4th of July in 2014 that I participated in and haven't stopped since.

Since the streak started I joined the Marathon Maniacs and have run marathons in 29 states and another internationally in Berlin. I've also run 2 ultras (50 milers). Some of the challenges encountered during the streak include overcoming the soreness after my first 50 miler to get back out and get my mile in. I also once ran at 11:30PM at night in Munich after a long day of traveling and drinking.

I feel like run streaking has helped keep me honest in my training. If I didn't streak I'd probably fall into a habit of running infrequently. I also feel like the run streaking has helped with recovery. Some days may only be a slow 1-mile jog, but that gets the blood flowing through those sore muscles after a marathon.

In March 2020, I was asked to try working from home. As a Software Developer, I went home on a Monday evening with my laptop in hand. A few days later, the reality set in – this was going to last a little while and I needed to make sure I stayed as fit as I could.

On the Thursday morning, I woke up with the mantra “I am going to run every day until lockdown ends.” Well the lockdown never did end and I managed to get myself a running streak! The ability to get out every day was with gratitude – thankful that I was healthy enough to be able to get out and run. Little did I realize over a year later and I’d still be working at home!

I didn’t go out with the intention of hitting a year – I don’t think I could have lasted if that was my plan (despite everyone asking and telling me that a year had to be my goal). I just kept getting, seeing out each month, doing my monthly half marathon. I set myself a minimum target of 5k a day.

A few weeks before the year – I discovered Streak Runners International and that was when my goal became the year. On March 18th I ran for my 365th consecutive day, the following day I registered my streak. I’m sticking with it, going to see where and how far it can go from here. Joining the Facebook group, you get to see all the massive achievements of the active streaks, that mixed with the community spirit shown in the group provides the inspiration to keep going!

I started running 2 days after my mom passed away in March of 2020 as a tribute to her life. My job had recently been moved to work from home which gave me the time and ability to make a run streak successful.

I have run in Texas, Virginia, Georgia and Colorado over the past twelve months. I have run in 7 degrees and 107 degrees! My goal for 2021 is not only to run daily but to log a minimum of 500 miles.

I am 56 years old, married for 32 years and have 3 grown sons and a daughter-in-law as well as 2 grand-dogs. I work as a Bank regulator having been in banking and finance for a career spanning 35 years. In 2021, I will run in Texas, Virginia, Oregon and California if I can keep my streak alive. ## MIKE SEAMAN'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Thank you for the congratulatory message regarding my 3-year running streak! The most significant obstacle to maintaining the streak came on December 3, 2020, when I had surgery for Stage 4 melanoma. I ran early the morning of surgery and late on the next day after only an 8 hour stay in the hospital.

In 1982 I had surgery for the same Stage 4 melanoma, except I was hospitalized for 7 days.

I am thankful for the medical advances! I am grateful to have made it through the pandemic, the Covid vaccination process, and a tough Minnesota winter!

Yesterday [28 March 2021] I celebrated my ongoing streak by going to the track and running 4X400m repeats with a 200m recovery. It felt good to turn the legs over a bit.

KIRK WILBUR'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Every year since I started my runstreak, I've set a goal of running that year in mileage (e.g. 2021 miles in 2021). Unfortunately, mild injuries have always kept me from reaching that goal--until 2020. Not a lot of good came out of 2020, but I did run in excess of 2020 miles--2038.6 miles, to be exact.

Other than that, not much of note has taken place over the last year of the streak, except that on March 20, 2021 I celebrated my 7th "runiversary" with the now-traditional Carvel cake and beer (though, notably, for the second occasion celebrated outside of a bar).

SATIRO DE OLIVEIRA'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Two years and counting!

I am a late-bloomer runner who started seriously running in 2005 at 33 years of age. Since then, I had accumulated 109 live half-marathons and 85 live marathons until the COVID-19 pandemic.

My running streak started on April 5, 2019, and I have run 4,258.4 miles until April 4, 2021. During this 2-year streak I have learned to use a Garmin instead of my iPhone, became addicted to Strava and Smashrun, consolidated my sense of distance, and have known my neighborhood better. Virtual races have come and gone, but my main motivation is to keep my health and sanity while working as a pediatric hematology/oncologist, and raising my 4-year-old son to become an endurance athlete. My favorite running times are at dawn, no matter the weather (forgive me, as I live in Los Angeles, California). Unforgettable moments are the runs at 2 or 3 AM on the nights before long international trips.

Road work in progress, see you all out there!

PAUL ANDERSON'S STREAK HITS 26 YEARS

Year 26 of my streak was amazingly productive! Despite the pandemic, I did more miles than I have in quite a few years, ran lots of great trails in Northern Michigan, and completed my first 50-miler.

Although in-person events were cancelled or postponed, I finished my 50+ miler, running from Mackinaw City to Petoskey on the North Country Trail on August 26; 54.5 mile in 10:20 with my wife providing support. I was registered for the Marquette 50 and figured that I should take advantage of all of the miles that I had been getting in.

I hope that everyone has been able to get out and get ready for whatever their next goal may be. I'm looking at 2022 and running the JFK 50-miler. Good luck and happy trails to everyone!

WILL WYATT'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Streak turns 5 today [6 April 2021]. I don't remember day 1. Days 10 - 15 were in a snowy Denver and kicked it off. Trips to California. Two trips to New Orleans. Two trips to Tennessee (one fun, one sad). Dozens in Dallas. Orlando a couple of times. DC. Massachusetts. All over Texas. Portland, Oregon. Kansas for the eclipse.

Concrete, asphalt, dirt roads, country roads, trails, beaches. Uphill and down. Corpus Christi in July, where my note says, "so freaking hot/humid." Blistering sun, rain, sleet, scary thunderstorms. Pea hail a time or two. Record-breaking cold. Windy and calm.

Almost all alone. A few with family. A handful with missed friends. 1000+ in my old neighborhood. Now hundreds in my new neighborhood. A few 5Ks thrown in. A few on treadmills. I hate treadmills.

My mother-in-law's death. My brother-in-law's death. My grandfather's death.

I'm so much slower than I used to be (which is saying something). Most days, I only go a little farther than my "required" mile, although I'm starting to slowly stretch that out again. This time next year, I want to be near a 5K a day. Hard to believe I used to go far.

Sick a few times. Feeling well most of the time. Sometimes limping. Mostly standing up straight. Sad sometimes. Mostly my normal, phlegmatic self. Many (most?) days I think "I don't really feel like running today." But I do. And I think that's the point.

Streaks are funny; they take on a life of their own. They, irrationally, become important. And they shouldn't be important (streak registries notwithstanding). Nothing smacks me more of my privilege than I get to prioritize a little run every day. So much good and bad has happened to me in my little universe, nationally, and globally in the last 5 years that worrying about a streak seems silly.

Regardless, one of my thoughts at the end of each day is, "did I run today?" After today, I'll have answered that "yes" 1,827 days in a row. (9% of my life). I'll check in in another five.

RON SHEALY'S STREAK HITS 20 YEARS

I'll have to admit that completing the 20th year of my streak is a thrill for me. There's something very special about completing two decades of having run every day. At the same time I tip my cap to 30, 40, and 50-year "guys" who might be reading what this "rookie" is writing with a smile on their face.

Helping make the twentieth year even more noteworthy was my reaching 90,000 lifetime miles and logging a solid 2005 miles. I also celebrated the semi-sesquicentennial of my birth year two weeks before this 20th streak year was completed.

Thanks for the USRSA note of congratulations. I feel fortunate to qualify for membership in this organization and thankful that I am able to continue with this streak.

MARK PARRISH'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

Although my family, friends, and neighbors (who see me run every day) would probably disagree, I'm not a runner. I don't run any events, keep my time or pace, or track miles and heart rate.

My streak started as a challenge from a friend, to run every day for a month. That challenge turned into a year, which turned into 1,000 days, and now 9 years later is part of my daily life.

There is no end game for my streak, I don't have any additional goals, and since I started my streak later in life, there isn't a possibility of being at the top of any leader boards. And that's fine with me. In fact, that's what I love the most about running every day is that it's a very personal accomplishment.

Unless you've run every day for at least a year, it's a hard concept to grasp. It's hard to understand getting a run in while traveling, or sick, or after surgery, or after a long day when you ate too much at your last meal and all you want to do is go to bed. Most of all, I love the fact that I've proved to myself, my family, and friends that if there is an excuse to do or not do something, it's usually just a choice.

GEOFF OSBALDESTIN'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

My first run streak ended after day 691 due to a double hernia operation. After recovering from surgery, I am now in my third year of my second run streak and, so far, I have accumulated 7891 miles.

As an additional challenge in 2019 I managed 5000km (3107 miles), chiefly achieved by double run days and occasional longer runs at the weekend.

In 2021, with the pandemic situation in the UK hopefully abating, I am now looking forward to some spectacular endurance events including a solo run of the 96-mile West Highland Way in June and the Cape Wrath Ultra expedition race in August.

VIKTORIA NIKOLAIENKO JOINS SRI FROM UKRAINE

I started my daily run on April 14, 2018. At that moment, I was inspired by a man who showed by his example that running every day in any weather, season, time of day - it's real. He ran 3 km a day. I wanted to have a similar experience for myself and I decided to run without a single pass - every day!

Already in May, I started preparing for my first marathon with a coach, which ran in October 2018, while continuing to run every day.

In February 2019, I was inspired by the examples of ultramarathoners and prepared for my first hundred (100 km run), which ran in June for 10 hours 28 minutes. Since then, ultramarathons have become for me the distance where I began to reach new heights.

In August 2020, I became a silver medalist of the Ukrainian Championship, ran 185 km 348 m in 24 hours.

In October 2020, I represented our country at the Last One Standing World Championships, where I set a women's record for the Kyiv track and ran 254.6 km.

Running for me is the best way to know myself "deeper." Once I made a conscious decision to run without a pass and this habit completely entered my life. To date, I have run 1093 days without missing a single day! The sun, a heavy downpour, a stormy wind in the cold, ice underfoot, snow with a blizzard, evening jogs - I go through all this and I know that I am only getting stronger.

I am currently preparing for the World Championships (track - 24 hours) to be held in Romania in the fall of 2021. I set ambitious goals for myself, because in my character I "only go forward."

MICHAEL MANNINGS' STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

My 4th year is not the year I expected. This time last year we'd just gone into our first lockdown, but I didn't expect there to still be restrictions a year later!

On the racing front, it's been a quiet year, with only 2 races, but I'm very much looking forward to resuming races again as things get back to normal. Although we haven't been able to race, I do think runners have been lucky where we have still been able to get out and do the thing we love. Running has been a great release in what has been a difficult year!

LINDA VANDUYNHOVEN'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,288 DAYS

I ran my last streak run today [10 April 2021]. It was a hard decision that I have been contemplating for a while. I set a date and time a few weeks ago to run my last streak run, and family and friends came to celebrate.

Today was cold and it rained and hailed solidly all day. At 3pm, seconds before we took off for my last run, it suddenly stopped raining. As we ran around the lake the sun came out. Incredibly a rainbow then emerged. As soon as we returned to the rotunda it poured. I'm taking that as Nature's congratulations.

My family and friends signed my shirt. Sad to end what has been a wonderful part of my life for the past 3 and a half years, but I'm excited also for new challenges. All the best to all you amazing streak runners.

RAMESH KUMAR BHOOPALAN'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 390 DAYS

I wanted to let you know that I had to unfortunately end my running streak @ 389th day. My last recorded run for this run streak was on April 08th.

I had to travel to India for a family emergency. Right now, my family needs me more than anything and given the lock down situation in India it's hard to get any runs.

I will connect back with you when I start my Streak once again.

ROBERT LUPTON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Running Streak Day #731 yesterday [18 April 2021]. That's two years running at least one mile every day. Total milage during the two years was 3223 miles or 4.41 miles per day. My four miles per day streak reached 175 days today. Next post will be on slot machine day - 777 days.

The two-year total milage is a numerical palindrone - reads the same frontwards and backwards. I planned my daily runs for the last two weeks so that I would finish year two with exactly 3223 miles and still run over 4 miles every day during that time. Obsessive - I think not. Normal behavior for a 72-year old.

BRAD LAGARCE'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 461 DAYS

Was diagnosed with COVID on Monday 4/5/2021. Ran one mile that day. Was a tough mile. Researched and decided it was a healthier choice to end the 461-day streak and rest to be able to run again in the future.

PATRICK FERRY'S NEW STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

The second anniversary Running Streak 2.0 closely coincides with the end of my first streak which ended abruptly after 6 years and 3 months. Now I have a target to reach, and I am about 1/3 of the way there!

Last year's racing calendar was filled with pre-paid race registrations. COVID, of course, had other plans. New ways of satisfying competitive impulses were learned--virtual races, Strava segments--but, I am looking forward to things opening up again soon.

TONY KING JOINS USRSA

I started my streak on 2/2/2020 with a plan to run every day for 3 months leading up to my 40th birthday. Once I got there, I figured I might as well go for 100 days, 200 days and finally a full year.

The hardest part was getting very sick with Covid for a couple weeks and it took everything I had to run 2 miles on a treadmill in our basement, followed by a 3–4-hour nap.

I've been a regular runner since my mid 20's having run one marathon and several 5ks/shorter races but had to cut back a couple years ago with issues related to having 3 knee surgeries. I spent a lot of time and effort working to just be able to run without pain and ended up in the best shape of my life and without any knee issues since. I'm at 1,534 miles so far.

I am most proud to see the impact it has on my kids. Both started running with me regularly and joined a cross country team. My now 9-year-old son went on his own streak with me, running outside every day in January (in cold Ohio) and eventually running a half marathon together last month. Seeing him complete both and knowing that I fostered that determination in him through my own actions were very proud moments as his dad.

I randomly looked up running streaks when my kids asked what the longest was and am so grateful that there is a community of like-minded people doing the same thing. Its great motivation to see how many other people are out there obsessed with running like me!

RODGER KRAM'S STREAK HITS 12 YEARS

My running streak was one of the few constants in the past 12 months. I am fortunate to live in a forest with trails and few people, so COVID has had little effect on my running. Then, last week, I had a close call.

Just before my Streakaversary, I took an awkward and hard fall while telemark skiing in a glade of trees at our local Eldora ski area. I had sharp and burning pains in my right lumbar region. One of my first thoughts (after: "can I feel and wiggle my toes?") was "oh no, there goes the Streak!" Second thought was "well, at least I ran this morning before going skiing!"

Fortunately, I did not injure my spinal cord/nerves/discs etc., rather I tore my quadrates lumborum muscle near where it insert onto the pelvis. I was able to carefully ski down to the car and I was able to run my requisite 20 minutes the next day while applying pressure to my lower back with my hand.

Viva the Streak!

TUCKER ANDERSEN'S STREAK HITS 29 YEARS

The 29th year of my streak brought several changes, most of them caused by the impact of Covid on my life routines including running. Soon after the virus became a major health concern in early March 2019, I stopped commuting weekly to my NYC office for three months and my wife and I were forced to cancel several spring trips which we had planned.

Also, of course, all races on my calendar were also postponed and subsequently canceled. Thus, with the extra time and the lack of travel, my weekly running mileage increased and from mid-March until early October I averaged over 50 miles a week.

At that time a diagnosis of inflammation and capsulitis around several metatarsals in my right foot caused me to reduce my weekly mileage until early 2021 in order to allow the problem to be alleviated.

By the end of calendar year 2020 (I keep my records on that basis, not my streak anniversary year of February 6) my mileage totaled 2304, the highest in 6 years.

My major disappointment was my inability to run any of the races including two marathons for which I had trained, after running my 49th and 50th in 2019.

As I approach my 79th birthday on June 5th, my two goals which appear reachable (although as I age I realize the fragility of any plans) are to continue my streak until at least age 80, which will be four months after my streak turns 30) and complete the NYC Marathon (hopefully my 44nd) the following November.

The motto on the back of my marathon t-shirt is NO AGE LIMIT (in contrast to my speed which is now severely limited) and my attitude since Covid impacted all our lives is to be sure to not stop living in order to simply stay alive.

On a very positive note, being classified as "elderly" finally provided an advantage and my wife and I were both fully vaccinated during February and have resumed many of our usual routines including vacation travel.

Best wishes to all on the continuation of your streaks, and the natural high which the resultant adrenaline and endorphins provide.

NIGEL DUFFETT'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,782 DAYS

A cardiac catheterization and a stent put an end to the streak. I have run through all kinds of injuries but I wasn't going to mess with my heart or femoral artery! I live to run again and that's what's important. This streak has been life altering and this community has been a key part of that.

EILEEN JOY ESPORO'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I'm still going strong. Before the Pandemic I was running w/ the Peloton App & at the end of last year I purchased a Peloton+ so I do most of my runs there. I still run outside for smaller distances with my Pitbull Puppy. I just did the Patriots Mile for BAA and we finished 7:24.5. I plan on just working on my speed until we open up again & I'm waiting to see if I'm going to run the NYC Marathon this year or next year.

Stuart Ainsworth

STUART AINSWORTH'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

I am sure the last year has been taxing and worrying for everyone. My family has been fortunate to have remained in good health and unaffected by the pandemic. My youngest son had a rather abrupt end to his final year at University but got a great degree and is now working. My oldest son spent time working in Europe to save the cost of living in London and after a month off in Cuba returned to live with us - that was a shock! My wife works in a school and has pretty much continued as normal.

I was furloughed for 4 months last year and after being back for 6 months was rewarded by being made redundant. So, the start of my 8th run streak year see me back on the hunt for work - bit out of practice after 13 years with the last company. I hope to get work supporting the vaccination programme which is getting more complex with first and second doses and multiple vaccine options. I have been volunteering at my local centre and am sure my skills can be useful over the coming months.

Despite the challenges, running every day has been a constant. Working out the logistics of when and where to run to remain COVID safe and COVID restrictions compliant has been interesting. I certainly got fitter at the start but that fitness has tailed off so it's a target for the next few months. I remain a parkrun Ambassador so am busy for the 5k restart in June and helping out at my local 2k junior event which is more popular than ever.

A new streak year and a set of new challenges around the comfort and security of a daily run. Stay safe and run safe everyone.

DANIEL VIRTUE'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

I never would have thought I was about to catch my second wind as a streak runner, but that's what happened in year number seven. I averaged over 10 miles a day. I read 100 books. I ran 100K. I mediated every day and wrote a self-help book. I also finally lost all the weight I had gained since my senior year of high school primarily because I ate all plant based this year.

I also got back into blogging and posting pictures on a regular basis on Strava and on my blog (virtueruns.blogspot.com). Below is an excerpt from my blog that I wrote on my streak anniversary:

I am so happy to be able to say that my marathon time seven years ago was a full 10 minutes slower than it was this past [year]. Go St. Louis, which ultimately encouraged me to start my streak. Part of me wishes I would have been more dedicated to documenting my runs other than through Garmin initially, but I am just glad I got out there and started. No matter how old you are, it is never too late to start a positive streak in your life! Have a great day!

Thank you to all those other streak runners out there. I am so thankful for your encouragement.

KEN JOHNSON'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 4,210 DAYS

Sorry to report that I ended my 4,210-day streak. My last day of running was April 28, 2021. I had a pacemaker implanted and the risk of infection and the wires coming out of the heart muscles was too great.

TOM BARRY'S STREAK HITS 24 YEARS

Another trip round the sun, another 365 days on my running streak, now at 24 years. I run 2.5 to 3 miles a day on a regular loop, and also walk nine to 18 holes of golf most every day. (When you don't hit the ball down the middle, you can get some extra mileage in strolling through the woods.)

I'm grateful that at (almost) 71 years of age, I've not had any major injuries. My stride isn't quite as long as it was back in my high school track days, and the gears grind a bit when I occasionally try to pick up the pace, but really, I have no complaints. Here's to more years of running!

Who would have believed it has been 10 years already?! Thru cancer, chemo, surgeries etc. and I persevered! The last 2 weeks were rough as I have severe osteoarthritis! Started running daily 16 years ago. Completed 16 full marathons. Always run alone, in the morning before starting work. Average 6 km per day.

The daily run is like having sips of fine wine, neat and relax, and full of purpose. While talent is lacking, habit and discipline will suffice. The running streak is my ikigai, my flow and my dopamine. 10 years from now, the roads may change, the pace may be slower, but the run shall continue.

JANA DEMAS JOINS USRSA

I have been running consistently since the fall of 2018. I've always liked running a little bit and played sports in high school, but fell in love with the sport over the course of the year in 2018-2019. I started slow, doing the couch to 5K five times before I could run a 5K without any issues.

In the summer of 2019, I ran a 24:49 5K and decided I officially liked to run! I then did my first streak of 100 days, but paused that to focus on training for a marathon. After running the Houston Marathon in just over four hours, I realized I could do both - keep my streak and run marathons. When COVID hit, I started streaking again and have been at it every day since March 14, 2020. During that time, I ran a second marathon and am now prepping for my third - Chicago Marathon - this fall!

I love being part of a supportive group of streak runners and look forward to many more milestones with this group.

REGIS L'ABBATE'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I'm proud of my two years in this streak, and going strong! I'm not a precise mileage counter, but as I run an average of 50km a week plus 3 days of 2km (my minimum because it's a little more than 1 mile) I've run a total of 5824 km or 3619 miles in these two years!

At first it seems to be boring, but now it's a part of my day dedicated to just myself. And more than anything it means two years without any lesion or serious health issue. Glad to be part of this great family!

RICHARD BLAIR JOINS USRSA

Truthfully, I never intended to start streaking, but COVID cancelled the marathon I was going to run in the spring of 2020, so I scrapped my training plan (which included rest days) and just kept going. You can read a little about that on my blog at runningwithrb.blogspot.com.

I started running in my mid-30s to get into better shape and fell in love after toiling for six months. I have completed 16 marathons (including two World Majors, and two virtual marathons in 2020) and more than 25 half marathons, participated in a 200+ mile relay, created multiple endurance events, and have raised tens of thousands of dollars for various charities through running many miles.

I started streaking after the spring 2020 marathon I was slated to run was cancelled, without the intent of completing a year. Here we are, more than 400 days later. In March 2021, some friends and I ran 1.5 miles each hour for an entire day (tallying 36 miles over 24 hours) while raising more than $40,000 for a local emergency shelter.

I've attached my finisher's photo from the 2019 NYC Marathon, and I've included some profile information.

CAROLYN MCKINNEY'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Today [7 May 2021] I completed 5 years; that's how I look at it, started May 8 and finished May 7. Though the plan is for the streak to continue. Two coworkers joined me for a warmup walk then I ran solitary 5 miles.

DEREK RILLIE'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Yes, the streak is alive and well! Now I do a 5k every day and have been since the end of the first year. For the first year I ran a minimum of 2 miles daily. So, for the last 3 years it's a minimum of a 5k every day.

I've got to say running really gets the mind going in the morning. I've run in numerous countries including Spain, France, England, Scotland, Luxembourg, Germany, USA, and Gibraltar. I plan on adding a few more countries this year. I'm looking forward to hitting that 5-year mark!

Vicki Leafgren

VICKI LEAFGREN JOINS USRSA; STREAK STARTED IN 1991

The start of my running streak has a less than thrilling origin, but it has made for many conversations, comments and cracks over the years. Before it started, there would be an occasional day that I would miss my run due to an ache, event or weather challenge. But once I was approaching my first-year streak anniversary, none of those excuses worked any longer.

On February 9th, 1991, my ex-husband and I were leaving our vacation on Sanibel Island early in the morning with my sister-in-law, brother-in-law and their toddler and landed in Chicago to catch our connection to Minneapolis/St. Paul. Fog came in and we spent the next 12 hours waiting for our flight to be cleared for take-off. Since I had missed a few days in December for a foot injury, missing my run that day wasn't earth shattering. So, on Sunday, February 10th, I went for my run and it has been that way for the past 30 years.

One of the great opportunities of the past 30+ years were that I have done a considerable amount of travel for work or on personal vacations. I've been to all but 2 states in the U.S. (Alaska and Rhode Island) and traveled to many countries in Europe, and to Canada, Mexico and China (Hong Kong) and Taiwan. My travels have given me the chance to run and see sights that I may have missed if I didn't run. One of my trips to Hong Kong landed well into the evening and I quickly changed and went for a run along Victoria Harbor at about 10:30 PM. The young people likely thought I was not in my right mind as I dodged hand holding couples on their Saturday evening date. My co-workers, family and friends on these trips knew that I required enough time to get in my 4-mile minimum and they all complied. Even my vendors would accommodate my antics and never schedule early morning breakfast meetings. They all had a part in helping maintain my streak.

Over the years, I've had my share of injuries that have caused me to slow down and trim back my mileage, but luckily, I've still been able to get in my personal minimum of 4 miles for all but 113 days in my 30 years. On those days, my lowest was 1.2 miles, but most were over 2 miles. I had even completed a 5-mile run after a fall on ice that I later found out had broken my wrist all the way through. Other days mileage was reduced due to -20 below temps with 20 MPH winds, 15-20" of fresh snow or coatings of ice so thick that even my ice cleats could barely keep me upright.

When I mentioned "cracks" I mean that in two ways. As cars drive past, there have been occasional comments, but one of the funniest came from a pickup with a teenage couple shouting "Run Forrest Run!" After I waved at them, it became a ritual for them to shout and laugh whenever we passed each other. I wonder if they're still together! My other reference to "cracks" is of course multiple times of being mooned. For all of these "cracks" I look back and laugh at the humor. I have had a few vulgarities shouted at me, but no significant trouble over all these years.

I have also found numerous valuable items, including a wedding ring and several wallets, checkbooks, credit cards, driver license and cash. I attempted to return all but the cash and was pretty successful. On credit cards, I would call the company and they would cancel the card just to make sure the owner wasn't worried that someone was going crazy at the local Target.

BTW, Target was my employer over the all of these years, until I retired in 2019. For the last 15 years at Target, they built locker rooms for runners and bikers to consolidate their workout into their day. It was great to run over lunch or after work, which helped me avoid rush hour traffic.

As for races, in the early years, I would run 15-20 races a year, but now am down to just a few. Maintaining my streak is now the priority as many of my old running pals are not racing any longer and it's just easier to get out and get my run done each day.

Lastly, I have met so many people running locally and around the world which includes indoors when I ran Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Metrodome in Minneapolis. Thanks to Rick Recker for making that opportunity available since 1982!

I really don't have many pictures other than race proofs. These are from the finish at Grandma's and TCM 1982. Most of the others are in a pack of people.

MELODY DIEHL'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

2020 was quite the year for pretty much training! With races being cancelled or postponed, the only race I partook in was the Pinhoti 100, in which I DNF'd due to reasons beyond my control.

2021 kicked off with a better start, with a 26:29:30 finish time for the Long Haul 100 down in Land O Lakes, Florida. Another race I participated in was mid-April's Sweet H2O 50k in Lithia Springs, GA, finished in 6:56:00 and a 3rd place overall female finish.

The big race for 2021 I am training for is the Tahoe 200 Mile Endurance Run! I got lucky off the lottery and was randomly chosen at the end of 2020 and began the plans and training for that. This will occur in September and the summer will consist of multiple back to back long runs on the weekends and a few different hiking trips and weekends through the Appalachian Mountains.

I will also be racing a couple of 50ks in October and December.

TRESSA FARNAM'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Ten years ago this month, I traded cigarettes in for running shoes and never looked back. I met my beautiful friend Janice in 2018. She liked my running shoes and it was instant connection. She has been streaking now for nearly 6 years and I thought it sounded like a fun challenge. The rest is history! Last year my goal was to run 2020 miles and achieved it on 12/22! Running goals are the best!

JENNIFER LEEPER'S STREAK HIT 3 YEARS

Yes, I am still 'on the run.' I just passed my three-year mark. I started running in April of 2016 after losing about 100 lbs. I fell in love with running. I used to take 'rest days' but decided my legs really did not read the rules and to just run what I feel. I have progressed to long distance running. So, along with my running streak, I now have a half marathon or greater daily streak (283 so far).

VIJI THATAL'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I had tried and failed fabulously for years to do a winter running streak #RWRunStreak.

Turns out what I needed was the motivation and camaraderie from a group to keep going! When someone from our local running group sought interest I decided to sign up - What started as a 41 day winter running streak in 2018 went for much longer! I stopped at 95 days for no apparent reason.

I loved the consistency and simplicity of a running streak and missed it. So I started a streak again on May 11th 2019!

Ran in airports, ran in what felt like a million-degree heat index during a summer-visit to India in 2019, did not let a bout of flu stop me - kept running every single day. Some days were sooo slow, some were 50 loops in the hallway. Several one and done runs got me here! I've questioned the value of all those one-mile runs (and life choices 🤔) several times. But somehow, I also pulled off a 5K and a 10K PR during the first year!

With the COVID situation, every run has helped me keep my sanity! It's the one constant and one aspect of my life that is still under my control - unlike much else in our lives right now. I signed up for several virtual races last year including #GVRAT and #CRAW organized by Laz and team!

I don't currently have an end goal. Reaching a comma day would be great but for now... just taking it one day at a time.

I'd be remiss if I didn't mention how folks from my running group (The Algonkian Running Club or TARC) constantly have checked in and cheered me over the past two years.

And, of course, my husband, kids + several family and friends have been awesome and super-supportive of my crazy running-ventures, as always 💜.

NANCY PETROSINO'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

The streak is alive and well! Other than switching all of my runs to outdoors this year to avoid the gym during this crazy year, my runs have been relatively uneventful.

My craziest run was probably the day after my second covid vaccine. I was so afraid that I would be sidelined with side effects that I stayed up until midnight to go for a cold, snowy, windy, run at 12:05 a.m. on an unlit, icy road in the rural Adirondacks. My husband followed in the car so I would have sufficient light to see the icy patches and to scare away any 4-legged midnight prowlers.

As it turned out, I had no side effects from the vaccine and wouldn't have had any problems running upon waking. It was kind of nice, though, to be able to take the morning "off," since I had already gotten my run in at midnight! What we won't do to protect our streaks! Haha!

HEATHER EASTERLING'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

It's been 3,654 days (10 years) since I have run every day. I call my streak Miles and he buys me a gift every year on our streakaversary.

I appreciate my body for doing this every day especially the days I really don't want to. Here is to many more streakaversaries!

NISHA PETERS' STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

May 15th, 2021 - I ran 4 miles today to mark my 4th year of streak running.

When I started on May 15th 2017, I didn't even know that 'streaking' was a thing. At that time, I had just finished running my first half-marathon and was training for a full marathon.

I wasn't sure how to get started, so I thought about just running a 5k every day for a month. During that time, I found a 'Streak Running' page on Facebook. This group helped me tremendously. I learned how to keep records on a spreadsheet, how to do streak saver 1-mile days during travel, etc. Most of all, they helped to bust the myth that it was unhealthy to run every day.

During the last 4 years of my streak, I have run 1 mile or more a day. Today is day 1462. My mileage total during this streak is 5759 miles--an average of 3.94 miles per day. This includes, 6 marathons and an ultra-marathon of 50 km.

Streak running has taught me that I am capable of so much more than I imagined.

Unfortunately, I was forced to end my streak at doctor's orders for a potential cardiac issue.

I am still at it. Training for another Ironman!!!
Fingers crossed for another year)))))))))

MASASHI HOTTA'S STREAK
HITS 2 YEARS

Finally, my streak running days have reached 730 days (=2 years). My first impression is that I'm relieved that I have been able to keep running without any injury so far. Although the last couple of months were hard for running since I felt a bit tired due to overwork and constant movement in a short period of time, I managed to continue running somehow. That hard time surely has given me a confidence and I'm proud of myself.

Masashi Hotta

TOM ALLEN'S STREAK
HITS 33 YEARS

My running streak completed 33 years today [20 May 2021]. 80,180.8 miles. A little over 6.65 miles per day on average. I didn't run that far today, but I did find forty-five cents on my run this morning!

Tom Allen
Upper Montclair, New Jersey

LUCAS HENDERSON'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Year 6 was a little different due to Covid, but only because there were no live races to train for. Since I wasn't training long distance for a marathon this past January, I focused instead on trying to get new PRs for my shorter distances.

I was able to set a new 1- mile (5:26), 5K (17:29), and 4 mile (23:15) - all on the same run. I'm sure I could have run a faster one mile if that was all I was doing, but I'll take the new PR.

I also set a new 10K PR (37:41) and, in the one live race I had, I set a new PR for my 1/2 marathon (1:25:07).

I have run a total of 16,642.27 miles during my streak with a total time of 2,140:41:58 (hrs:min:sec).

Andrew Weber
Washington, D.C.

ROBERT GEARY'S GEARY'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Not much to report on my end...seven years in and no matter how hard I try, I can't come up with any reason to end the streak. Getting outside everyday helps maintain my sanity. It also helps me plan my day and be more productive. I don't necessarily schedule my day around my run, but I do schedule my day in my head on my runs. Looking forward to some long summer runs.

Robert Geary
Fairfield, Connecticut

CHRIS VILLAREALE'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 507 DAYS

Been feeling really tired lately. Feeling like my energy is going more toward my streak than living life and staying healthy.

Maybe I'll be back some day, but today, after 507 days, I'm closing this chapter of my life and turning to other things to stay healthy.

Chris Villareale
Fairport, New York

WENDY MORGAN'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1600 DAYS

I started my run streak after divorce, mainly for the health/mental benefits. It began feeling like a chore I dreaded on most days so I decided to retire before my 40th birthday and day 1600 seemed like a nice, round number.

CAROLE LEVESQUE'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Today [24 May 2021] marks my second anniversary of my running streak. The streak keeps me focused and help me cope with work stress. This year, 14 months into the pandemic, I never thought that running every day would keep my spirit up and help me deal throughout these tough times. We are seeing the light at the end of the pandemic tunnel and because of my running streak, I am coming out on the other side healthy than ever. I will keep going as long as my body lets me.

I am so glad that 2 years ago I picked up Runner's World magazine and read the article from Coach Jess, she explained what a running streak was. I had an epiphany, I told myself, I need to do something to help me with stress and bad mood. After 2 weeks, I noticed a changed right away.

I run first thing in the morning before work. I prepare my running clothes the night before. I have coffee, hug my kitty and get going. Love it.

It's not always easy, some days are tough, especially in the winter months, but I get it done. My husband supports me 200%. He is my #1 fan. I post my running streak every day on Instagram. I hope I inspire people to get moving.

Happy streaking!

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

“It was the best of times, it was the worst of times,” wrote Charles Dickens to begin his 1859 classic historic novel A Tale of Two Cities, could also be an apt description for how the Covid-19 pandemic has impacted the streak running community. On the best of times side, the sport of running – and especially streak running – grew in popularity during the last year as other sports and forms of group exercise were closed down or severely limited. Our Summer 2020 newsletter listed 2225 active running streaks in the world. As I write this column in late May 2021, we now have 3,023 active streaks in the world for an amazing increase (especially for an association that has been around over 20 years) of over 35% growth.

It also goes without saying that the last year was also the worst of times. As we were putting together this issue of our newsletter, we heard the sad news of the passing of Ron Hill at the age of 82. As the athlete who first popularize running every day and as the person who still has the longest running streak ever at over 52+ years, all of us owe Dr. Hill a great deal of gratitude. In this issue, we pay tribute to the many running (and even business) accomplishments of Ron Hill by reprinting some of the articles we had written about him over the years (see page 4).

We are also saddened at the utter devastation the Covid-19 pandemic has caused in terms of hospitalization and deaths from people around the world. I am sure that some of you were personally impacted or at least knew someone who caught the deadly virus. If so, we here at the running streak association offer our sincere condolences to you and your family.

One of our featured stories this quarter was written by one of our athletes whose very long running streak ended after being hospitalized for Covid-19 (see page 10). Fred Murolo, 64, an attorney from Cheshire, Connecticut, started his running streak on 30 December 1981 after he “made a New Year’s resolution to be more consistent in 1982.” With that goal easily met by some 39+ years, Mr. Murolo went onto be an impressive racer, marathoner (he ran the Boston Marathon three times, the last with his sister Mercedes – another streak runner), and ultramarathoner – “I felt the pull of the dark side.”

In February 2021, Mr. Murolo caught the Covid-19 virus. “I tried not to put myself at risk for Covid,” noted the Connecticut attorney. “As a lifelong runner in good shape, I assumed I would have a mild case if infected, but I didn’t want to have any case of Covid. Connecticut was rolling out vaccines for older people and was just about to open them up for people in my age group: 55-64. Then I had flu-like symptoms and tested positive.”

Unfortunately, Mr. Murolo did not have a mild case of Covid-19. “Then came February 27th,” wrote Mr. Murolo. “Breathing was worse . . . Persistent person that I am (read ‘fool’), I put on my running clothes and shoes and ventured out. I made it about 75 yards and turned back. I couldn’t breathe enough to run even at the slowest speed. I ended up in the hospital that night on supplemental oxygen. First hospital stay was 22 days, 9 in intensive care, with some high flow oxygen to keep me alive and breathing on my own. Then I was discharged home with supplemental oxygen, and I was getting better before I started getting worse. I went back into the hospital to learn that I had pulmonary emboli, a common finding with Covid. Another 11 days in the hospital on blood thinners to shrink the clots and then home.”

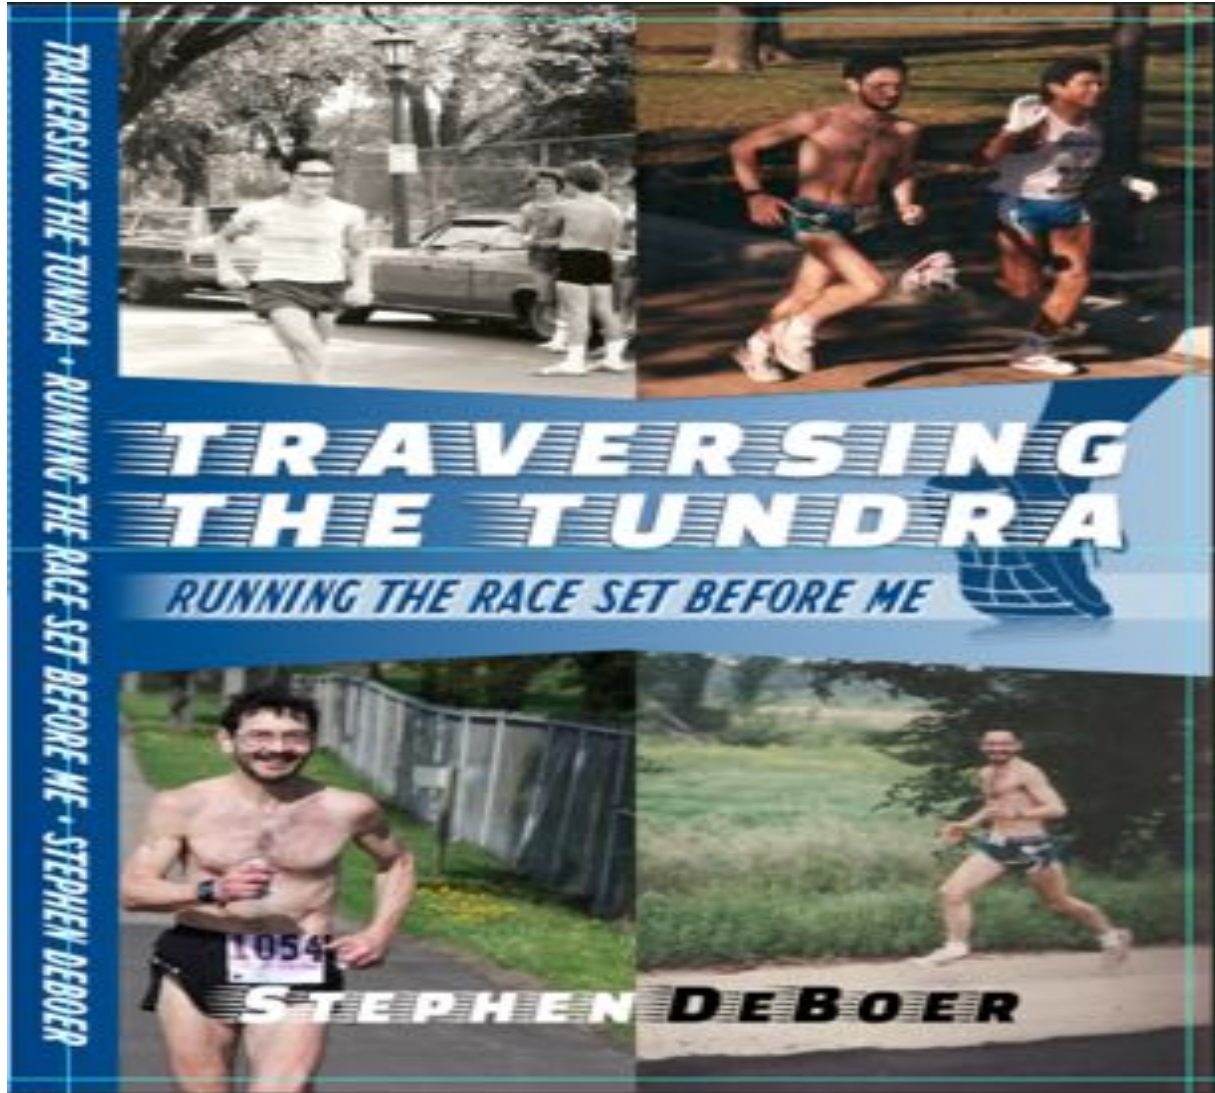

We wish Fred Murolo and others who caught the virus a speedy recovery. We also strongly advise for all to get vaccinated because this virus does not care that you are a “lifelong runner in good shape.” If you are vaccinated – and I am – please join me and streak runners from around the world in Rochester, Minnesota, USA on 7 June 2021 for Steve DeBoer’s 50th running streak anniversary. For details, please contact Mr. DeBoer at stephen.william.deboer@gmail.com. As always, I want to wish everyone good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!
