45 YEARS AND COUNTING

By: Rick Porter
Decatur, Georgia

December 3, 1977 was not a remarkable day. I was visiting my sister in Savannah, Georgia. We were going boating and I didn't run that morning. I had started a regular running program earlier in 1977 that coincided with a fairly significant change in my diet and loss of weight. I was keeping a log of miles, diet and weight---sort of an after college get my act together. I presume serendipity was in control because years later I came across this picture in a photo album with my wife to be (Cherry) beside me and sister in the background. I actually have a picture of the last day of my adult life I did not run. I ran on December 4th, and the next day, and the next day. I really cannot say I ever consciously started a streak, but every day I ran. I do remember at some point a running buddy and I discussing our log books, and he said it would be neat to have an entire shelf lined with logs. Maybe that inspired me. I presume many of us have similar stories about the beginning and evolution of our streaks, but that's how mine started.

I just passed 45 years and about 104,000 miles. Thankfully my story continues to unfold but I'll share the journey up until now. I found regular running after college. I was always somewhat athletic, but not a great athlete and never a track star. I was a fat kid until about 13. Puberty and an uncle helped me trim down. I maintained a decent weight but college and life had let it inch up more than I liked, so a couple of years out of college I made the life change mentioned above that included vegetarianism, losing weight, and running. I still liked to eat so running was primarily a way to maintain my weight. At this point I had started my fledgling real estate development business and running also provided some pressure relief. Not to mention that it fueled my competitive nature as I realized I could run a bit further than last week and maybe even a little faster. Running was also becoming more popular along with the surging road racing scene and it didn't take long for bug to bite.

I started with a couple of local 5K races and quickly moved up to the 10K level. Our local Atlanta running guru was Jeff Galloway, who had opened Phidippides, a running store, which became a bit of a hang out. Cherry was running as well so it became our social scene during these early years. I got to know a couple of fellow runners that became running partners, and one in particular with a track background got me into some basic speed training. Speed was never a strong suit but I finally struggled up to a 6:00 pace for a 10K, but could not do it consistently. I had also started some longer runs during the week and gotten my mileage up to 40-45 miles per week. So, I tried a 15K and then half marathon. I found that I could run these longer races around a 6:30 pace better than shorter races faster, so set my sights on a marathon. Bill Rodgers and Frank Shorter were the big names nationally while Galloway was still our local marathon hero. Without fully preparing, I tried my first in February of 1979 in Miami. See the before and after picture below—it wasn't pretty but at least a "proof of concept." Notice the small group at the starting line.

After some recovery, I set a goal of the next marathon for September. I ran in Jackson, TN with a better outcome which convinced me I could pursue the Boston qualifying time of 2:50. I ran the Atlanta Half in December of 1979 at the pace I would need for qualifying and signed up for the Savannah Marathon in January to try to qualify—basically flat course of 2 loops around Hunter Air Force Base in Savannah, Georgia.

Stayed on pace in Savannah and ran a 2:48 so it was off to Boston in April, 1980. I ran the famous “Rosy Ruiz” race when she jumped in and appeared to be the first female—my wife actually got a picture of Bill Rodgers as the first male and Rosy as the first (she thought) female. And then of course me.

I stayed in touch with road racing over the next few years. I ran several marathons in the mid 2:40s and got back to Boston in 1982. I never got any faster at 10K but kept running the Peachtree even when I had more or less just settled in to daily runs. I ran the Peachtree for 20 straight years--about the only races I ran during the 1990s. I realized coming off several years of marathons that I couldn't maintain the training I needed nor stay healthy. I was running 65-70 miles per week with two-a-days on Tuesdays and Thursdays. No major injuries but cumulative small things. It was also about 15 years in to the streak (don't think I coined this term by then) and my business was growing so my running energy was focused on a daily run and, back to the roots, weight control and fitness. And the challenge of running every day. Even if not saying it out loud, my internal competitive nature was enjoying by this point in my running life the uniqueness of not missing a day.

Life accelerated during the early 90s with Cherry (my wife) and I bringing two sons into the world to join us and business grew exponentially. I was still running 40-50 miles per week but also noticing a few chronic aches and pains. I wasn't running the pace I had been during daily runs so I decided to add some biking to the mix for extra cardio. I originally mixed some Airdyne with road biking, but over the years that has become just Airdyne. By the late 90s I added some light weights 3 times a week. I stabilized at about 40 miles a week running and 40 miles biking with the light weights. That plan has now eased down to 28-30 miles running, 30-35 biking, light weights three times a week, and the last couple of years swimming about 15 minutes 3 times a week. While I can't promise the cross training helped over the years, I believe it has prevented some of the imbalances caused by just running and maybe helped with longevity. I've always been a morning workout person and found the time for the workouts even if wakeup call came pretty early. As my sons got into their own activities, I would be sure to get up in time for the workout so as not to miss that time. The support I've gotten from Cherry, however, makes this kind of thing possible. And from my sons as well as they have aged into young adults. Crazy old dad!!

No road racing during these "middle years" but I did have one last brush with the Peachtree. My son, Jamison, has been a workout advocate from a young age--wonder where he got it--and during his college years got more into running. He ran the Peachtree a couple of times during this period, and one-year sentimental dad wanted to be part of it. I registered for the race so I could accommodate him to the starting line, but to avoid the masses I ran a back route--it's a point to point race--so I could meet him at the finish line.

I never talked much to anyone about my daily running, but had an acquaintance that knew of it, and sometime around 2006 or so he told me about a neighbor who ran every day. Come to find out, we had been passing on the street with no idea of each other's streak. Grant McAllister is just a few years behind me and is the person that made me aware of the Running Streak Association. We live less than a mile from each other. Grant's about 5 years behind me in streak years but 10 years behind me in age---so you know how that story goes! Small world of introverted streak runners, I guess. But he gave me this contact and it's been great watching the list grow.

I have found myself talking more about it over the past few years, however. Partly because of the job Mark is doing with the organization and this journal. The conversations always spark the obvious question that most of us never ask ourselves-- "How do you do it?" Well, you get up every day and you run. We could all tell stories of how we got through food poisoning or a colonoscopy or some injury, but as the old Nike ad said, "You've either run today or you haven't." I have, however, done a lot of experimenting to keep things working properly. Whether shoe inserts, lifts, stride adjustments, tons of Vaseline, breathing techniques, heat, cold---you name it I've tried it.

And we have great support, or at least tolerance, of those close to us. My wife has been running and exercising as long as I have, and while not a streak runner, she has been both supportive and forgiving---believe me, it takes both!!

On the serious side of how we do it, I imagine we all have incredible insight into our bodies that is second nature at this point. For instance, I can tell fairly early in my run if I feel better running one side of the crown in the street versus the other. Some days I know why, other days I don't, but I notice. I have various routes I run, and frankly the new fitness watches have been game changers---I use FitBit. We all play head games to stay motivated and some days I run around and around a small park not far from where I live---again not sure why but it feels good that day. Distance is right there on my wrist---I'm one that has always recorded distance. Even back in the day I used old school running watches and stayed in touch with pace for those "travel" runs when you had to go by time. Which brings up another technological wonder---Google Earth. I traveled somewhat regularly up until about 15 years ago and until Google Earth always had to find some kind of map to figure out where to go. Now it's so much better. You can still end up somewhere you didn't intend, but not like it used to be. I remember a few early morning runs in the dark in strange cities---and the old 180 and let's go back the way we came. But I've also had some remarkable discovery runs over the years. There's no better way to see and learn a new place than to run it. I had several places I went regularly like Washington DC and always looked forward to my favorite runs in those places. Finding an 8-10 mile run in a strange city can be challenging, but what unique adventures I've gotten to experience.

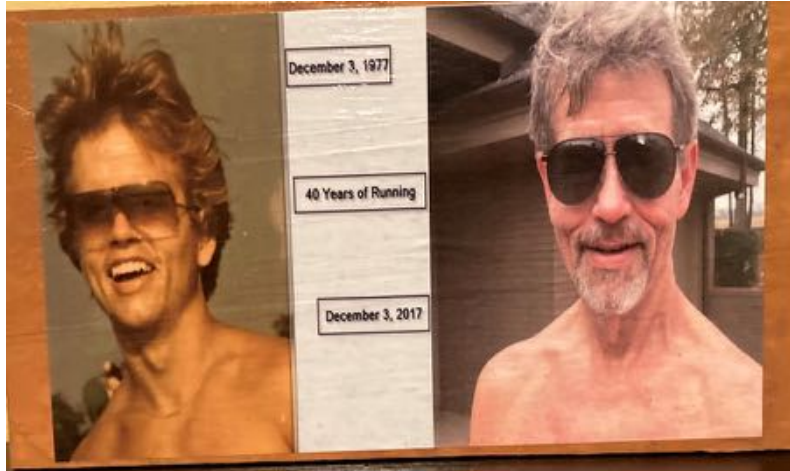

Compared to most I've been lucky that I've not had to contend with a debilitating injury or surgery. But you don't go for 45 years unscathed. I'll open this paragraph by emphatically stating that I am not recommending a course of action for anyone, but reporting on mine. I've had episodic lower back issues since high school and those were my early challenges. Maybe every couple of years or so until I found a physical therapist that put me on to the "McKenzie" methods of managing disc issues. I do these stretches religiously several times a day, but have had some very difficult days getting through a few slow miles when every other step was painful. Thankfully most have been only for a few days, and not very often as I've gotten older. Not many advantages of getting older but as it has been explained to me, age can help as the spinal gel dries up. About 10 years ago I strained a popliteus muscle---never even heard the word until it happened. Very painful in the back of the knee. I knew some folks in sports therapy that put me in touch with a good PT doctor. Pure luck of the draw he knew popliteus issues from personal experience AND had a professor in college that ran every day. He was sympathetic to the plight, and told me right up front that I could run through it but it would not be easy. That one took a couple of months of easy running and therapy but gradually came around. Then 5-6 years ago I fell and cracked two ribs---nothing to do with running. Dad was trying to hit a golf ball as far as son and whoops, you know the rest. This might have been the most pain I've had to run through. Doctor told me up front it would take 6-8 weeks to heal and that was about right even with the running. I didn't tell this doctor I was running---he obviously would not understand. But I don't think running delayed it---tried all kind of breathing techniques and head placement. Nothing helped--- it just hurt almost every step. I was already in the 4-5 mile range when this happened and I was able to maintain at least 3 miles until it healed. Biking didn't bother it much so that helped keep with the overall workout.

The most significant issue, theoretically, I've dealt with--that honestly hasn't been much of an issue-- is a torn medial meniscus. I was diagnosed after a non-running issue about 25 years ago--running was painful for a few days and remained bothersome so I pursued a sports doctor who found it. Immediate recommendation was arthroscopic surgery, and I sat in the parking lot by myself in shock for about 30 minutes. I was deep enough in to my daily runs and was far from wanting to give it up. After pulling myself together I decided I was not going to do it because it wasn't bothering me much at the time. I read all the stuff about possible problems if I didn't do something. But, knew somebody that knew somebody and got a second opinion which was--- yeah one day you probably want to do something but if it's asymptomatic I'd leave it alone. That was easy advice to take, and life went on. Twenty-five years later I can honestly say it's not an issue. I've had times over the years that I thought it might be bothering me, but then again it might have just been run of the mill patella tendinitis. I iced it every day for many years. I did leg lifts with my weight workouts because I read something about front strengthening might help. I've worn various knee braces just in case. Most significantly it is probably also related to the fact that it happened after I had any speed goals with running. I was not pushing the pace and I avoided activities that bothered it like backyard basketball. Again, not a recommendation but only reporting my situation.

When we do talk about our streaks and right after "How do you do it," the second obvious question is, "Why do you do it?" Well, that's a tougher one to explain, but an easier one to know. I find the daily activity satisfying. I've gotten an incredible view of the world on the road---whether it's watching daylight arrive or checking out the neighborhood. And there's nothing like taking in a new place via running. But, there's also nothing like finding new things on a route I've run for 10 years, whether it's an owl in the darkness or the first yellow daffodil of the Spring. I'll admit that at this point I'm not beyond a short break to take in a surprise---my little morning adventure. I also really like to finish, because I've accomplished something that day that I'm proud of. There's a relaxation that comes from the end of a run that I don't experience from many other things, and I get to feel it every day.

I've thought about how to end it, or how it will end. The stories I read about those that stop voluntarily are powerful. I created the comparison below on my 40th anniversary. That was a significant milestone and I could have considered retiring, but I wanted to get to 100K miles so didn't give it much thought. And body parts were all stable---haven't changed a bit, huh??

Well, I hit 100K a couple of years ago. And now I'm at 45 years. A few years back that was the "gold standard"—Covert territory. But now the bar is higher. But wait, do we do this based upon external or internal drivers? Probably a bit of both. I suggest most streak runners have a competitive edge. But I would also suggest that most of us live by the old adage---the journey is more important than the destination. I like to finish, but I like to put one foot in front of the other for a while every day. While many folks probably think we abuse our bodies with the streak, I think I listen pretty closely and if the message comes, I think I'll hear it. I don't think I'll be one to struggle through a mile just to keep the streak going, but there was probably a time that I didn't think I would keep running when my pace slipped to where it is now. It doesn't feel as bad to me as it probably looks to the folks driving by!!

That's my story so far. I could go on, but most of it is about yesterday, and the road beckons today. I'll be back in a little while.

45 YEARS IN A ROW WITH NO MISSED DAYS

“Day 16,474: Legs Held Hostage”

By: Tim Masters

Dearborn, Michigan

At age almost 73, I look back to the start of my running streak with the only goal in mind as to not miss a single day of running for the year of 1978. I actually started the streak on December 28, 1977 as a 4 day warm up.

My philosophy was then as it is now: “I ran today and I plan on running tomorrow.” That is as far ahead as I look to keep my running streak alive and it seems to have worked successfully thus far. I also think that being an early morning 5:30 a.m. runner avoids any potential roadblocks in streak running survivability.

Prior to my running streak, I usually ran 4-5 times per week averaging 15-17 miles per workout. It should also be noted that I ran this regimen for 7 years before deciding to be a daily runner. When my streak began, I decided to run 8-9 miles per day. It should be no surprise that the reduction in miles run per workout resulted in fewer injuries and less leg fatigue. Interestingly, several runners told me this but being a rather stubborn person, I had to learn it for myself.... ask my wife of 52 years!

Challenges to keep the running streak intact included 5 simultaneous fractured vertebrae, 3 ankle dislocations, 2 separate eye surgeries, 1 avulsion fracture of the pubic bone, 5 kids, 10 grandkids and 1 wife. And all this time I thought ibuprofen tablets were "Skittles!"

Was I a good runner? I would like to think so.....the reader can be the judge:

|-------------------------|--|
| Total miles since 1971: | 129,101 miles (+ 5 times around the equator) |
| Total streak miles: | 113,100 miles |
| Best 26.2: | 2 hrs 38 mins 01 secs |
| Best 13.1: | 1 hr 15 mins 49 secs |
| Best 10 mile: | 54 mins 00 secs |
| Best 5 mile: | 24 mins 39 secs. |
| Longest solo run/35 mi: | 4 hrs 30 mins (7:43 pace solo) |
| 1985: 365 13.1 mi runs: | at age 55 |

The above is nice, but my 2 greatest running accomplishments were inspiring my wife to run through 5 pregnancies and to cheer on my 3rd daughter to win a 5K race and beat 500 male runners while 8 months, 2 weeks pregnant.

Can anyone run 45 years in a row and not miss a day.....I did and I do not think I am anyone special or overly talented. Just run today and plan to run tomorrow. You may be surprised as to how far and how long YOUR streak will take YOU!

JOHN CARLSON'S STREAK HITS 45 YEARS

By: John Carlson
Indianapolis, Indiana

Rather than attempt to accomplish something productive every day for the past 45 years, I go out and run instead.

It all started with a zero, or more accurately, multiple zeros. After completing my four years of college cross country and track eligibility in the spring of 1976, I tossed all my training and competition shoes in a box and stepped away from running, training and competition. I was burned out after years of hard training and competition in both high school and college.

After a few months, though, I started jogging again, sometimes with teammates on their easy runs, but mostly by myself. For some reason, I started to record daily mileage in a small notebook. Not sure why I did, but I did. The notebook, later upgraded to "running log," did help with becoming more consistent because it seemed like a small victory to put a number besides a zero down each day.

I took a few days off at Christmastime in 1977. It was sometime near the end of January 1978 that I realized I had run over a month without recording a zero in the running log. I decided then that there would be no more excuses, no more zeros.

It's been 45 years since then with at least one mile of something that looked like running every day. It has included warmups, cooldowns, easy jogs, distance runs, interval workouts, hill repeats, sprints, slogs, recovery days, open track and cross country meets, road races, trail events, successes, disappointments, injuries, illness, sunshine, rain, sub-zero temperatures, snow. Often runs were solo, but many were shared with great friends and teammates: York HS, Indiana State University, Runners Forum Racing Team, Bloomington Track Club, Indiana Track Club, the Indy and B-Town Hobblers, son Mark and Leslie, my wife of over 40 years.

It's all been good!

DAVE BEVERLIN JOINS USRSA AS LIFETIME MEMBER
LATEST STREAK STARTED IN 2003

By: Dave Beverlin
Appleton, Wisconsin

My name is Dave Beverlin and I've been a life-long recreational runner. When I was growing up, my dad was a high school football, wrestling, and track coach, as well as an athletic director. Our lives revolved around athletics and my running was focused on training for football or wrestling, or as part of the track team where I ran the half mile and 2-mile relay. I graduated from high school in 1982, married my wife in 1984, and graduated from college in 1987.

I started my first streak on October 8, 1988. I had been frustrated with my inability to motivate myself to run at least 3 times a week, so on that day I told my wife that I was going to force myself to run every day no matter what instead. My criteria for this streak was at least 2 miles outside. The streak ended about 2 years and 9 months later (991 days) on June 25, 1991, due to knee pain that I couldn't resolve.

I rested for a week and found that when I started again the knee pain was no better. After running off and on for some time, I finally changed shoes and the knee pain disappeared quickly. This experience taught me the importance of changing out my shoes regularly, and ever since I've switched to a new pair every 300 – 350 miles and haven't had the same knee pain.

The most memorable run from this streak was probably the evening when my pregnant wife's water broke about 9:00 PM and I hadn't run yet. My understanding wife was ok with me quickly completing my 2 miles and then we headed off to the hospital, welcoming our first son to the world the next afternoon.

As of this writing I've completed at least a 2-mile run on 86% of the days he's been alive, many with him and our second son in a jogging stroller until they got too big. It was also during this streak that I ran my first marathon (of 11 total), the Twin Cities in 1989.

I continued running a few days a week and completed the first of 7 Fox Cities Marathons (my "home" marathon) in October of 1991. My 2nd son was born in January of 1992 and I continued to run off and on through August of that year. Then life with 2 young sons kept me busy and I didn't log any runs from September of 1992 through the next 3 years.

Feeling the need to try to get back into shape, I started my second streak on September 30, 1995, with the same criteria of at least 2 miles, outside. I ran my 2nd Fox Cities Marathon in October of 1996, but my streak ended after 421 days on November 23rd. I woke up to the streaker's nightmare on November 25th with the awful realization that I had forgotten to run the day before. I tried to start another streak immediately, but only lasted 2 months before missing again.

A couple months later, I started my third streak on April 2, 1997, with new criteria of at least 3 miles, still outside. During this streak, I ran 3 more Fox Cities Marathons and took my first international runs while traveling for work. Most memorable was a run in Sydney, Australia, across the Harbor Bridge and around the iconic Sydney Opera House. The most memorable "streak extender" run came at 10:00 PM in Seoul, South Korea, after landing there that morning, going straight to the office, and having dinner and drinks with new colleagues after work. I completed a tipsy 3 miles fueled by soju (a popular Korean alcohol), running laps on the sidewalk around the hotel.

On April 5, 2003, I broke my left ankle playing hockey. My first thought when I fell to the ice was "I hope I can run tomorrow." However, x-rays showed a spiral fracture for which I had two surgeries to insert two plates and 13 screws, thus ending my third streak at 2,195 days.

To add insult to injury, I had been planning to run the New York City Marathon in October of 2003. Because I'm not fast enough to qualify on time, I had tried to gain entry via their lottery system for the prior 4 years with no luck. The policy at that time was that after 4 years of not getting an entry slot, you were guaranteed entry in the 5th year (2003 for me). It was a depressing time, but I held out hope to still be able to participate.

After the surgeries I was on crutches for 7 weeks and then in a walking boot for 6 more weeks, but on July 21 I took my first tentative run of a mile and a half. After a week I was able to start running 3 miles again every other day and added one longer run per week. My repaired ankle held up well and I added a few more miles to my long run every other week, working up to 21 miles by early October. I did one more 20 miler two weeks before the marathon and headed to New York with cautious optimism.

I was able to complete the New York City Marathon on November 2 with my slowest time ever, but I probably felt more satisfaction upon finishing than any other marathon I've done. My wife had a t-shirt made for me to wear during the race, with a picture of the x-ray of my ankle and the date of my injury, and I got many comments and questions asking if that was in fact my ankle.

After taking a couple weeks off to recover from the marathon, I started my current active streak on November 22, 2003. My criteria again has been a minimum of 3 miles, always outside.

During this streak, I've completed 5 more marathons (the last in 2007). I've largely stopped running races, but did take up bicycle touring and have ridden my bike around Lake Michigan, Lake Superior, and Lake Huron, across Iowa and back, and across Wisconsin twice. Some of my hardest runs have been during those tours, especially the mornings after 100+ mile days on the bike.

Other memorably difficult runs occurred after contracting traveler's diarrhea in India in 2019 and having to run in 90+ degree heat while hoping the Imodium would do its job! Wisconsin winters can also provide challenges, with windchills as low as 50 below zero and slogging through snow several times a winter.

In 2016, I once again began experiencing right knee pain that would not dissipate regardless of how often I switched shoes. I was diagnosed with osteoarthritis in that knee, likely the result of a football injury from 9th grade. I was fortunate to be able to work with the same orthopedist who did the surgery on my broken ankle, and he understood my desire to continue my running streak. He prescribed what he called an unloader knee brace, which helps to align the knee joint to eliminate pain. In my case, the brace is basically the same kind you see NFL and collegiate offensive lineman wearing. It's big and clunky, but it does the job it's intended for, and I can run free from knee pain on most days.

I completed the 19th year on my active streak in November of 2022 and hope to be lucky enough to join the Highly Skilled streak category later this year.

I've often had people ask me what my goal is for my running, and I always answer, "It's to be able to run tomorrow." Maintaining a long-term running streak requires, in addition to determination and luck, a certain amount of selfishness. No matter what else is planned for a day, it's a given that I will take time to fit in my run.

Thus, in addition to physical health, our ability to keep running rests on the support of those around us. For me, that support comes from my family and most especially my wife of 39 years, Jill. Although I run mostly by myself, she is far and away my most frequent partner when I'm not solo, and she's most impacted by my need to fit in a daily run. My profound thanks go to Jill and the rest of my family for their support.

Thanks also to the folks that keep this Running Streak Association going. It's an inspiring group and I'm proud to be part of it!

A LIFE-LONG OBSESSION
THE COMRADES MARATHON
by Brian Swart
Pietermaritzburg, South Africa

SRI participants may, or may not, have heard of The Comrades Marathon. For those who have not, it is the driving force, the dominant event, on the South African road-running scene. It is an annual ultra-marathon between the two major cities – Durban, on the east coast, and Pietermaritzburg, 90 kilometres inland – in the Province of KwaZulu Natal.

The direction of the race alternates each year with the Durban – Pietermaritzburg (altitude 2200 feet above sea level) event known simply as The ‘Up Run’ while the Pietermaritzburg – Durban event is known as the ‘Down Run.’ Consequent to finish venue changes, and road works, from time to time, the race distance can fluctuate. The Up Run varies around 86 to 88 kilometres, while the Down Run is slightly longer at 87 to 89 kilometres. The inaugural race, a Down Run, over dirt roads, took place in 1921.

Having lived in Pietermaritzburg all my life, the Comrades Marathon – referred to, locally, simply as the ‘Comrades’ – has been an ever-present as far back as I can remember. I did not realise that it would, one day, become an absolute obsession, a total addiction, a journey destined to last a lifetime.

I watched my first Comrades as a 7-year-old in 1953. I remember standing with my father, miserable and shivering, in the cold and dark on the side of the road leading out of Pietermaritzburg as a handful of skinny little men shuffled past. I knew then that, one day, I would run this race.

That day arrived in 1978.

Since that long-ago day in 1953, I have watched, participated in (and earned 15 finisher’s medals), or been associated with the Comrades every year except:

- 1963 (I was in the military, completing my compulsory service),
- 1965 (The rain bucketed down, without let-up, the entire day, and I wasn’t overly keen on standing on the roadside in such appalling weather. I spent the day playing snooker in a local pub) and, of course,
- 2020 and 2021 (Covid).

In all, that covers a period of 71 years with the Comrades. This year, 2023, will be the 67th race in which I have been associated in some form or other; be it spectator, runner or volunteer. I believe this is a longer association than any other person, worldwide, past or present.

What I have learned from a lifetime of running, and I say this semi-tongue-in-cheek, is that “if you haven’t run the Comrades... you haven’t lived. And you are not a real Comrades runner... until you’ve done an Up and a Down.”

Since I started training seriously for Comrades in 1977, after spending 7 or 8 hours that day, watching the race from the side of the road leading into Pietermaritzburg, I estimate that my total distance – both running and walking – is around 146 000 kilometres (91 000 miles). That is a reasonably long way for someone who was never, really, born to run such distances. It is more than 3½ times around the world.

At present, my only commitment to the Comrades is two-fold; as a host on the International Bus Tour of the race route and serving on the Heritage and Traditions Committee of the Comrades Marathon Association.

In 2015, I wrote a year-by-year history of the race; commencing with the inaugural race in 1921. For those interested, it can be accessed on the Comrades website (click on ‘History’).

If any reader would like to know more about the ‘World’s Greatest Road Race’ they are welcome to contact me by email at >swoddy709@ gmail.com< I look forward to hearing from them.

Seventy years is a long, long time. I have been most fortunate to witness, and participate in, the Comrades during its golden years; the 70s, 80s and 90s. I realise now, however, that my time has come. My race is nearly over.

When the final gun is fired at 17H30, in Durban, on Friday, 9 June, 2023, my journey will have come to its end... I will be about to enter the finish arena... and cross the Comrades finish line... for the final time.

The Comrades Marathon Association (CMA) rewards runners and volunteers, for long and loyal service, in various appropriate ways. I have earned a few during my 44 years of volunteerism.

Top shelf: (Left) Certificate reflecting details of my 15 finishes. (Centre) Green Names are awarded to volunteers after 10 years. The 4 Laurel wreaths indicate 40 years of service to the Comrades Marathon. This was awarded to me in 2018. (Right) I was rewarded with Life Membership of the CMA in 2016 after 38 years of service.

Bottom shelf: (Left) This clock is not a CMA award. It was made by a friend. It also reflects the details of my 15 finishes. (Centre) This is not a CMA award. It is a certificate awarded by my athletic club upon completion of a 100 Km race which gave me membership to the 100 Km Club. This race was run on a 400m athletic track in pouring rain with ankle-deep water along the back straight. It had a 10-hour cut-off. I was the last finisher in 9h 56m 48s. (Right) Perhaps my most treasured award; my Green Number in perpetuity, earned on completion of 10 races. Nobody will ever again run wearing Number 709.

Traversing the Tundra Consistently at High Mileage By: Steve DeBoer

It was three years ago that I tallied up the number of years many of our streak runners (who keep track of their mileage and have run over 70,000 lifetime miles) have surpassed 2000, 3000, 4000, and 5000 miles. So it must be time for an UPDATE, again using the names on that 70,000 mile list. If you have run a minimum of 35 years over 2000 miles or 24 years over 3000 miles, or 10 years over 4000 miles, let me know and I will add your name to future UPDATES.

Ted Corbitt (NY) was the first identified streak runner in the world, and ran at least 2000 miles for 27 years. Of those, 21 years were over 3000, 17 were over 4000, and 14 were over 5000 miles. He also covered over 6000 miles of tundra 3 times, his highest total being 7273 miles in 1956.

Bruce Mortenson (MN, OR) had his first running streak (about 6 months long) in 1965 and has had five that made it to one year. His most recent one (Aug 2011-Dec 2022) is his longest. He has run more than 2000 miles (11 years between 2000-2499) every year from 1960, just after his 16th birthday through 2020. His lifetime miles were over 179,600 by the end of 2019.

Steve DeBoer (MN, Ecuador, SD, NC) has run at least 2000 (all years over 2500) miles each year since age 17 (1972) and at least 3000 miles since age 20. His minimum 1-mile per day streak began June 1971 (3rd longest in the world), though he has run shorter distances daily since July 1970. His calendar year mileage has never reached 4000 miles, but he had accumulated over 178,800 through 2022.

Norm Spitzig (lived in OH when he had an unregistered running streak in 1970s) has run at least 2000 miles, except for 1996, every year since age 22 (1972). He currently is not running daily but had completed over 108,000 miles through 2022.

Herb Fred (TX) did not start running until his late 30s but ran more documented miles than anyone in the world by the time he stopped running in October 2016 at age 87 (253,010 miles). He ran over 2000 miles yearly from age 39 to age 84, over 3000 miles age 41-81 (3rd on list), and has run over 4000 miles more than anyone else (39 years). He is in 2nd place over 5000 (28 years) and 2nd place over 6000 (16 years).

Carolyn Mather (SC) is in 2nd place for years over 3000 and 4000 miles; and 1st with 29 years over 5000, 23 years over 6000, and 15 years over 7000. She has not registered her running streaks but her lifetime mileage through 2022 was more than 246,000.

Alex Galbraith (TX) has run over 2000 miles for 49 years, having first done that at age 17 in 1968. He has been running daily since December 1971, which gives him the 4th longest streak in the world. He had traversed over 131,000 miles up to the end of 2022.

I just learned about Eric Morse (VT) from Amby Burfoot. He has the 3rd highest number of years over 4000 (36). He has 4 unregistered running streaks, the current one over 14 years. Lifetime, he has covered over 173,600 miles of tundra.

Roger Urbancsik (CA) is in 4th place for number of years running over 4000 (34). He is in 3rd place for years over 5000 (21). He has accumulated more than 186,500 miles since his string of daily runs began 2/1/86. His lifetime total is over 206,600.

Craig Davidson (AZ, but began in MN) is not in the top 10 for years of 2000 or more miles, but he is in 5th place for 4000 or more miles, having done that 33 years. He has more streak miles than any other runner (over 215,280) and second most lifetime miles among those with certified streaks (over 219,280) since Carolyn Mather has not certified any of the times when she ran daily.

(1) = not a streak runner

It is now over 28 years (Dec 1994) since George Hancock put together the first list of people who ran daily. It included 51 individuals. Since then, we have learned that streak runners, like other Homo sapiens are not immortal. Currently we have identified 33 of our number who have passed away (23 with registered streaks), two of them (Roger Carlson of MN and Michael Halloran of FL) actually during their last run. Ron Hill, of England, has the longest retired running streak in the world. The others are from the US, including 8 from CA, and 4 from TX, NY, and MN. The only two women, Victoria Leafgren and Diana Nelson, left us just in the last two years, Diana being the only departed registered stalker in 2022.

2021 saw the most departures, 8 in total, including Walt Byerly, who died 9/9/21 at age 91 yrs 1 mo, the first daily runner to surpass age 90 (at his death, Wendell DeBoer was 89 yrs 10 mo) and the second, after Wendell, to have a run streak after age 80. Donald Teague, who ran daily in the late 1990s but never registered, died Jan 18, 2022, age 91 yrs 8 mo. The oldest stalker ever was Bill Monheit of CA, who died Jul 29, 2002, age 92 yrs 8 mo. His daily runs were never registered as he passed away about the time the organization got started.

The only two streak runners to pass away before age 60 were Dominic Archibeque (44) and Brian Maxwell (51). Brian was the inventor of the Power Bar but never registered his daily runs. Though Victoria Leafgren was only 62 when she died, she is among the 11 deceased who had running streaks of 30 years or more. The longest retired streak among this group is 52 years, owned by Ron Hill, the English Olympic runner whose name was synonymous with streaking. In fact, the category of daily runners with 50 or more years, is called The Hills.

Currently, we have 5 individuals in the US on the active list age 80 or above, the oldest being Lois Bastien, age 86 yrs 5 mo, as of Feb 2023. In other countries, only one person, Sten-Ake Persson of Sweden, is over 80, being 81. The oldest person ever to have a daily streak was Herb Fred (86 yrs 10 mo), followed by Jim Woolam (86 yrs 9 mo). Jim is still alive and celebrated his 90th birthday last August.

The 70,000 Mile Club

By: Steve DeBoer

A large number of streak runners (at least 167 that I have been able to confirm) have accumulated over 70,000 miles running in their lifetime. Here is an update of their total and streak mileage. Herb Fred ran more miles than any other person with verified records that I am aware of.

Darryl Beardall had run an estimated 280,000 miles by the end of 2012 but has not been able to locate all his running logs to verify his total. He was only able to confirm his 2007-2018 mileage. He did not run on Sundays, so is not a streak runner. He ran the Olympic Marathon Trials in 1960, 1964, 1968 and 1972.

Dallas Robertson, Bill Rodgers, and Suzanne Ray are also not streak runners, but I have included them because of their high mileage totals. Dallas had logs for all but the first five years he ran. Rodgers won both the Boston Marathon and New York Marathon four times. He twice set the American Record in the marathon, the first time while winning the 1975 Boston Marathon (2:09:55) and the second time while winning the 1979 Boston Marathon (2:09:27). Suzanne set the American age group 65-69 record for the one hour run in 2019 with 12,850 meters.

Don Ritchie, British ultrarunner, who was not a streak runner, logged 208,100 miles from 1962 to 2011. His 100K world record (6:10:20, set over 40 years ago) was achieved in a track 100K race. Ritchie's halfway split in that race was under three hours, the first time anyone had run that fast for 50K as a split in a longer race. It was the longest standing world record in all of Track & Field until broken by Nao Kazami (6:09:14) on 6/24/18. Don also held WRs for 100M on the track (11:30:51) and 100M on the road (11:51:12).

Earl Linwood Dilks, American ultra runner, who was not a streak runner, logged 195,855 miles from 1905 to 1977, and at one time was listed in the Guinness Book of World Records for having run more documented miles than anyone else.

With Darryl, Dallas, Bill, Suzanne, Don and Earl, there are 173 runners now mentioned, though only 167 are part of the streaker "Club."

* have not had their running streaks certified by the US Running Streak Association; Chester T was certified but then dropped from the list; his mileage is from when he was on the certified list.

 not streak runners; Darryl developed L-4 pinched nerve April 2018 – since then has not been able to run but exercises with a walker.

+ money found in 2022 and since his streak began – has found money every day he has run since 1983 except for the week in April 2020, when he was in the hospital and the weeks he was recovering from strokes in 2022!

The person with the most miles in 2022 was Carolyn Mather (7157). Those with the most miles who have a current running streak in 2022 were Woody Woodburn (6222) & Roger Urbancsik (5377).

I probably did not get everyone who qualifies. Please send your data if you have surpassed (or will this year) 70,000 running miles, at (stephen.william.deboer@gmail.com) and I'll include you in the next update.

JIM BEHR'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 17,380 DAYS

Last day was 17 October...I had planned to end it on my 75th birthday which was 12 Oct. but I went a few more days...Reason? My body was telling me to end it...oddly I didn't feel sorry it was over...it was almost a relief...Also, I've been diagnosed with atrial defibrillation...So the streak ended on my terms...I am feeling fine and now "walk briskly" ...

JOHN RENZ'S STREAK HITS 16 YEARS

This year I'm celebrating sixteen consecutive years of running, and hopefully, I will be able to continue this streak to reach at least twenty years straight, God willing!

I'm very thankful for this running club as it motivates me to run just so I can keep my place with my compatriots. At age 72, it isn't always easy to run every day, but the effort to do so is very special and rewarding.

I attached a photo of me in 1987 in Nottingham, England, and of course back then, I ran very well, and I certainly looked much better than I do today.

One thing hasn't changed, and that is the love I have for running (and for my wife Ann of 51 years). I hope everyone that reads this has that same love! God bless!

JORDAN BOGART'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Discipline not motivation. It's hard to believe it's been 5 years of running at least a mile a day.

I don't keep track of the number of miles since I started, and I don't really care. It amazes me some of you are able to do that.

I started out on this after a bout of depression which led to a loss of motivation from losing my father to cancer. I was an avid endurance athlete and lost all desire to run or really do any sort of physical activity. I gained a lot of weight and became unhealthy. I decided I needed to save my own life and what's one mile every day anyway.

For years, I only ran 1-3 miles but stayed consistent. I had zero motivation but made a promise to myself to keep at it.

Fast forward to now, and most days I love running, am coming up on 1000 miles this year and am preparing for the NYC marathon in 2023. I found just worrying about today and my promise to my health keeps me on track.

I managed to keep the streak through illness, plantar fasciitis, the birth of both of my sons. Not sure where this ends but no plans on finding out anytime soon! Thank you all for helping me stay on track! Streak on!

CARRIE SANSOM'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Year 2 of my run streak was completed on Tuesday, November 22nd. Most runs were 2-6 miles. But I did have plenty of 1-mile streak savers. My furry best friend usually accompanied me.

TOTAL miles for year two: 1,085. TOTAL miles for entire run streak: 1,875.

The most unique places I've run this second year: a hotel hallway in Manhattan and a rest stop on the way to Glacier National Park. Most beautiful places I've run this second year: Gardiner, Maine and Helena, Montana. Here's to starting year three!!

DIANE PETERSON'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I started my running streak on November 21, 2017 and recently reached the 5-year mark. My streak started when a friend in a local club - Eastwind Running & Endurance - challenged the members to do the 30-day streak from Thanksgiving to New Year's. I joined a few days before that Thanksgiving and continued past New Year's thinking I might try for one full year.

Needless to say, one year led to 2, then 3, then 4, and now 5. After the first significant snowfall, I decided a treadmill would be helpful in maintaining the streak. One of my biggest challenges was the annual drive from Oregon to Wisconsin (and back) in the summer. I've found it has been easiest to do the 1 mile minimum after we find a motel for the night and I will take the dog on that run - a nice way to stretch our legs after about 14 hours in a car!

Another challenge was running after completing the Revel Mt. Hood Marathon in June 2019. Although I'd trained on the course running down Mount Hood several times (and distances of 12 - 20 miles), racing the distance was much harder on my legs. On top of that, we had to start our annual drive to Wisconsin the next day (our plans to rest one day before starting had to be changed). Every stop - for gas, for a restroom, for food, was a challenge just getting out of the car and walking the dog! But I managed to shuffle along to complete the minimum mile every day. Although the dog was not very cooperative - he wanted to go faster!

Most days I ran more than 1 mile. Over the 5 years, I ran a total of 10,175.78. That is an average of over 5 miles a day. Of course, it helped that I was training for marathons or half marathons during the 5 years.

I am not wholly committed to continuing the streak now that I have reached 5 years. If something comes up where I become too obsessive over trying to get in the 1 mile, I will not worry if the streak must end. Right now, I think 2000 days may be attainable, but, as I've said, I will not stress out if it does not happen.

NATHANIEL JOHNSON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Two years of daily running has been an experience. Not all the runs have been pretty, but having a reason to get out to do some level of activity has been immensely beneficial.

Had some "interesting" runs - everywhere from parking lots at gas stations or rest stops to a tiny island in Belize just to keep the streak going. Wouldn't have it any other way. Hoping for another two years (and more) to come!

BRYANT DITTMER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Last calendar year I ended the year running just over 700 miles. I thought to myself, what if I can get to a thousand. Some quick math determined it would take 2.74 miles a day, every day, to get there.

I am excited to say I am still on pace to get there and just crossed the 900-mile mark recently [email dated 28 November 2022]. It wasn't easy though. I ran through multiple illnesses including COVID-19. Running every single day gave me the discipline and resilience to do it.

MATILDA AHLIN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Three things running every day for 2 years has taught me:

1. No matter what goes on in your private life, you can always go for a run to free your mind.
2. It is ok to run slow, a run is still a run.
3. There are so many beautiful places that I would've never seen if it weren't for my runstreak.

I'm feeling blessed for the opportunity to have 2 pair of feet that can take me anywhere. Therefore, I have promised myself to keep on running for as long as my feet and legs are able to. My runstreak has brought me so much joy the last 2 years and I'm looking forward to all of the years that are yet to come.

PAT FERRY'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,276 DAYS

Just reporting in that my second longest running streak ended on October 6 before I could get a run in that day. I fell down a single stair in my daughter's basement and completely ruptured my quad tendon. I am recovering from surgery and now in physical therapy. They tell me six months to a year before I can run again. For now, I have to settle for walking a couple of miles a day. Bummer.

Jared Blank

JARED BLANK’S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

This week I crossed the three-year mark in my running streak. This means that I have run at least 1 mile every day since November 28, 2019.

I started running when I was younger to deal with the frustration of school and life. I would go out the door and run until I could not run anymore. At that time, it was usually a few laps around the neighborhood. Then something happened on this journey. I was struggling with a math problem after breaking a number of pencils in frustration. I put on my shoes and went for a run. When I returned, I could do the math problem. Movement became the answer.

My running grew from using it as a tool to a hobby and a lifestyle that I am passionate about. I went on to run marathons as well as ultramarathons.

What I have really found to be the beautiful thing about running is the community it builds. I even completed run coaching certifications with Road Runners Club of America and USATF in order to support people on their run journeys.

I started my run streak on November 28th, 2019, which happened to be about the same time that my “Running The Distance” book became available to the public, which told the story of how Dyslexia helped me complete the World Marathon Challenge. Fusing running and dyslexia is something that drives me.

Today, my run streak is all about aspiring to inspire others and run until everyone can read. My mission is to support “literacy as a human right.” Running every day helps ground me, guide me and remind me of my purpose.

RON STUDD JOINS USRSA

I started running around 2017, and have been gradually growing as a runner and now as a stalker, having now completed my first full year!

Prior to my current streak, I had completed two previous shorter Thanksgiving to New Year's Day streaks, and 2022 seemed like the year to keep going and push myself! For my streak, I've run at least a mile every day and have added the additional requirement of needing to be outdoors for it as well. This year marks the completion of my first half marathon as well, and I intend to continue my streak and strive for a full marathon in 2023.

Outside of running, I'm happily married and have a wonderful daughter who've both been very supportive of my streak. I'm also the co-host of a podcast with my brother called "Between Two Studs," which explores different careers and passions of guests.

I'm excited to join USRSA, and will do my best to keep the streak going!

BARBARA LATTA'S STREAK HITS 39 YEARS

When I ran for the first day, December 5, 1983, I did not even think about how long I would run every day. I wanted to just run for that day. Now it will be 39 years that I have run every day.

It has been a wonderful time of running. I have run in all seven continents. This does include running in Antarctic. Here I ran on the coast line with the penguins. The snow was less than one foot away. I also climbed the snow-covered mountains in Antarctic and then I could run down the hill.

God has Blessed me. He was kept me injury free. I have been very fortunate to not have an injury.

This does not mean I have not fallen. I have fallen more than once but did not get seriously hurt. I caught my toe on a board crossing a bridge. I fell flat on my face. The only thing that was hurt was my chin. Another time I tripped on a root and fell again on my face. I was very lucky that I had no breaks or scars from this fall.

It never rains for over 24 hours (at least so far in Raleigh, North Carolina.) I can wait until there is neither lightening nor thunder and then go outside to run.

I have run at all times of the day and night. When I am going to do 26.2 miles in training for a marathon, I usually go to bed early and get up at midnight to start the marathon run. I usually run alone.

The North Carolina Roadrunners Club is the group with whom I do some runs. For the last seven years I have been a member of the executive board. It has been my pleasure to serve.

Neither my husband nor my two children are runners. I got used to running all by myself and I continue to run alone.

I can go at my time which is usually at 5:00 AM every day. When I run early, I return home, shower, and eat breakfast and I have the rest of the day.

Running is a habit. When the alarm goes off, I get out of bed and dress to go run before I even think of what I am going to do.

Usually I run three times around Shelley Lake which is just one-half mile from my home. The route around the lake is exactly two miles. I run the six miles around the lake four times a week. I count it 6.5 miles which included running from my home to the lake.

On Saturday I usually have a race or I am volunteering for the North Carolina Roadrunners Club of which I am a member. This year, so far, I have run 25 races and I am registered to run two more races this December.

Ten of these races have been VIRTUAL races. That means we do not all meet together to race. We race on our own time. This was taking place during the Pandemic when we could not gather in a group.

It has been an unusual year for racing. During 2021, I ran in 21 races. This also was a year of the Pandemic. Last year I ran 13.1 miles for practice 19 times. The Half Marathon was my longest race for the year.

THERESE BRAHED'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

So happy to have reached two years with my run streak! When I started I never had enjoyed running. It was an experiment just to run one day at a time. My goal was never to reach 100 days or a year. Just day by day. This is what I am still doing. I get up, run and continue my day. Similar to brushing my teeth.

Working out three or four days a week is much harder. My mind starts to play a game on me, should I go to the gym today or tomorrow.... Running every day does not allow my mind to play tricks on me. That's one of the things that I love about my run streak!

Thank you for recognizing my streak. Only a stalker would understand the discipline required to run every single day, in all weather, all occasions, no matter what. (Usually with my dog, even in some races.)

My run time is my alone prayer time.

When I am running, I am praying.

No earbuds, no music, just conversing with God and taking one step after another.

Thank you for the streak list and giving me an outlet for my alone time.

KELLI DAVIS' STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Yes, another year on the books. This year was a little more eventful as I did have Covid twice and kept the streak alive with a fever for a couple days each time.

We also went on a National Park trip to California and our flight was delayed so I did my run in the airport. Many asked what I was doing and when I explained my run streak it brought a lot of laughs that someone would literally change in the airport for a run but our flight landed at 12:04AM so I was glad I kept it alive by running in the airport.

My friend and I are planning some fun marathons next year so yes, we are planning to keep the run streak going!

DAVID CANNELL'S STREAK HITS 900 DAYS

I'm closing in on 900 days of my running streak.

I've been maintaining weight under 95kg or so but have recently dipped past 90 again and feeling good. I started running when I was 39 to get control of weight and I think it saved my life.

I'm not particularly fast but I run first thing in the morning every morning. Rain, shine or snow. I've run through Covid and other illnesses. It keeps me together. Smartest thing I ever did

SARAH BROWN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

My 2-year runiversary fell on a busy Tuesday [6 December 2022], so I ran 2 miles in the morning before work.

My husband and I are the club directors of a youth distance running team called the Hillsborough Harriers. We have about 60 kids in 3rd-8th grade who run cross country in the fall and track and 5k races in the spring.

This year, I have convinced several of the kids on our team to start running streaks of their own. So on the evening of my 2 years of streaking, I ran another 2 miles with the kids at Harriers practice and we celebrated afterward with some apples and oranges (which I attempted to shape into the number 2!)

Rand Wise

RAND WISE'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Today's [8 December 2022] 2.2 mile run marks four years of running at least a mile a day every day. In these 1460 days, I've run 3065.3 miles, for an average of 2.1 miles per day.

I've run several half-marathons during the streak, making the most in any day 13.1 miles (although I need to look back--it's possible that I ran more than that training for one of the halves, but I don't think so off the top of my head).

I've run through illnesses (including COVID) and injuries (though I've been remarkably healthy during this time span), in all kinds of weather, on all kinds of terrain, in many parts of the country (and even in Costa Rica and Spain).

In the early days, there were a few times where I almost forgot, and found myself schlepping out of the house after 11 PM. I've also had a few travel days where I ran at 3 AM before heading to the airport because I was worried I wouldn't get to where I was going and settled before midnight.

Officially there are currently 2001 people in the world (and 45 in Georgia) with streaks longer than mine (in reality, there are probably more as I'm sure not everyone who does this registers their streak). The longest current streak is by a 72-year-old writer from Utah who has kept up his streak an amazing 53+ years. I've also met people who have run 10 miles a day every day for years on end. It is always bittersweet to move up in the list, because you know it means someone has suffered, whether some bad luck, or an injury or illness or worse.

And please don't read this and infer that I'm a great runner or anything. My mile PR is like 6:30 and that was years ago. My 5K PR is 22:30-ish, also long ago; half marathon PR is 1:52 (on a flat course in Savannah in 2008), and I've never broken the four-hour mark for a marathon. I do sometimes win age group awards, but it is usually because it's a small field. Long story short: not fast at any distance.

I first dabbled in running after I returned from the Peace Corps in the late 1990s, and then got more serious about it when my son Ben was born in 2000. I vowed to be around longer for Ben than my Dad was for me (Dad died of a heart attack when he was 46). I remember how I felt the day I realized I had outlived my father, and now I've lived more than 10 years longer than he did. (I'm still not quite to that vow, though, as it won't be until late spring next year when Ben reaches the age I was when Dad passed.)

Anyway, part of being around means doing things differently than Dad did--doing real cardio exercise (Dad played golf and occasional tennis; in addition to running, I also cycle an average of 5-10 miles daily), not smoking (which Dad did for many years), avoiding fast food and eating healthier (I lapse now and then, but much better than Dad, who ate fast food for lunch pretty much every day, and often had fried foods for dinner), never letting my weight get out of control (Dad, who was about my height, got up to 220-ish at some point if I remember right, while I have never weighed more than the upper 170s). There have been plenty of half marathons and marathons where thoughts of Dad have gotten me through the last couple of miles, sometimes in tears.

I honestly don't remember how all this turned into committing to a run streak. I do remember starting an earlier streak that lasted a little over 100 days but abandoning it after doing something bad to my knee as a result of sitting cross-legged for too long in a cramped airplane seat. That streak ended on a day where all I recorded in my journal was "18 Oct 2018, Day 102, 1 mile, 16 minutes, pain", and this five days after the day of the flight's entry, "left knee in excruciating pain." I didn't run at all for the next 3 weeks. Then ran about five times in November 2018 before starting the current streak in early December 2018.

Whatever you do out of love and for whatever reason, keep on keeping on.

I am happy to report I am celebrating my 3rd year anniversary of my running streak. I started shortly after moving to Indiana. As a 64-year-old non-runner I wasn't sure if I would make it 7 days. Now here I am 3 years later.

My favorite weather to run is in the snow! I only run outside unless the weather or traveling intervenes. I can count on one hand the number of treadmill or basement runs so far.

This has been a wonderful journey and I look forward to continuing! My streaking sister lives in California and is 12 days ahead of me and I am looking forward to running with her when I move back to California in May of 2023.

To be honest, I COMPLETELY spaced out that it was 3 years yesterday [streak started 18 December 2019]! I guess we all strive for that comma and once we get it we lose track...lol.

These last few months have been challenging. In September I found out I have Graves Disease which is an auto immune disease that attacks my thyroid. It's been rough getting enough motivation and feeling well enough to do my streak mile, but I streak on! It gives me that push I need to continue doing something positive for myself. They're now trying to figure out the best dosage for meds and I'm starting to feel like myself.

Besides my daily streak mile, I have been streaking a weekly 5k since January of 2018! So that has also been a challenge. I will run my weekly 5k today not only to continue that streak but to also celebrate my 3 years! Happy Holidays to you and all of my other streakfam.

GARY RICKETTS JOINS USRSA

My name is Gary Ricketts and I currently have a 952-day streak in process [Message dated 19 December 2022]. I have run approximately 6600 miles since that streak started in 2020. (This is verifiable via Strava.) I average around eight miles a day and typically run two-speed based workouts each week and a Sunday long run of upwards to 22 miles.

My favorite race is the 5k and I currently run them in the 17s at age 44. The greatest joys I receive from running result from the psychological effects and the friendships I have gained! I also love to see former students gain accolades at the collegiate level.

I was born in Rochester, NY; but I live in Shaker Heights, OH and teach high school English in Bay Village. When not teaching or running, I enjoy spending time with my children and writing about 19th century American Literature. I am also an avid fan of the NFL.

ARLENE BITMANSOUR'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

My current running streak started on December 23, 2015. I had another streak that ended after 2 years due to a high hamstring tendinopathy. For this streak I was determined to run through it all this time and there have been bumps in the road but I kept going. Seven years in I know that I am just as determined to keep going. My physical and mental health depends on it.

I am in awe of the streakers that have been running every day for decades. I am determined to be one of them as long as I am blessed with life on this earth. "Yet those who WAIT for the Lord Will gain new strength; They will mount up with wings like eagles, They will run and not get tired, They will walk and not become weary." Isaiah 40:31.

TYLER CARRINGTON'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

This December I reached the 5-year milestone and am proud of this feat. 6,370 miles in that span.

Any streak runner knows firsthand (and many times over) the challenges of running through injury, inconvenience, and the like. I had some of that these past few years (a pelvic stress fracture was particularly tricky to run through; so was a serious incident with a miter saw...), but mostly these 5 years of running have found me in many states and a few different countries, in an Alpine ultra and on the basement treadmill and everywhere in between; mostly alone but occasionally punctuated by the delight of running with others: family members, friends, some of my intrepid students...and most especially with my kids, pushing them in the double stroller, which has been every bit worth the extra effort.

I had about a year's streak going before my daughter (now 5) was born and stopped it—wisely, I think—for her birth and the following 4 days. But I restarted it when she was 5 days old and never stopped, neither for the birth of my son two years later (when I found time in between feedings or naps to leave the hospital and run) nor anything else.

I find the streak itself supremely motivating. I suppose if I broke it someday I would just start a new one from scratch, but keeping my streak is what makes daily running a non-negotiable, and I am pleased to be a small part of this community of similarly motivated runners. The next 5 years will, I hope, see my kids accompany me on their bikes and scooters, which will make the miles fly by and the aches and pains (which surely will increase) hardly noticeable. I will endeavor to enjoy every day and mile of it!

CARMEL BRAGG'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Hi, my name is Carmel Bragg and I celebrated 4 years running with no days off on December 25, 2022!

I am from Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia. I started my streak when my friend, Allison Hodder, had to end her streak of 563 days due to open heart surgery! I told her that I just ran 6 days in a row and she said I was the new Streaker. I laughed and thought okay I'll see what happens with this. She started her second streak in September 2019 after her surgery and is still going!

I run mostly outside and save the treadmill for bad weather days or streaker keeper days. I have great support from my husband, family, friends and our run group. I have connected with many runners on the Runners World Run Streak/SRI Facebook pages and receive so much support and motivation there as well.

I recently started running at 5:30 am before work with the Early Bird group who have been together for years. I think it's my favourite time of day to run now. The next race I am entering is The Hypothermic Half Marathon being held in February. Sounds chilly! Thank you and Happy Streaking

CHRISTOPHER BIELINSKI'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

I reached 11 years on my runstreak in December. This year went by too fast and physically I feel great with just a few days of soreness here and there.

I got back on track with races by running four marathons this year: Revel Charleston, The Reykjavik Marathon (after a 2-year pandemic delay), The Crazy Horse Marathon, and The Honolulu Marathon (which was my 50th marathon).

I reached runstreak day 4,000 on the same day that would have been my Mom's 83rd birthday this year so I ran 8.3 miles that day. As I write this it's the last week of the 2022 and I have already surpassed the year in miles (this is my mileage goal every year).

Hopefully 2023 will be as good as 2022 with more races and no injuries. I am going to do one thing different this year, more biking as I am signing up for a 100+ mile bike ride in the mountains in the summer.

BOB OVODOCK'S STREAK HITS 32 YEARS

The streak is alive and well. It has been a trying year (physically), but I never gave one thought to ending the streak.

Back in early February, I noticed my heart rate was very high while riding the Peloton bicycle. Would get off, and sometimes feel lightheaded. This happened 3-4 times. While attending a surprise 60th birthday that I was giving my wife, I felt lightheaded several times and had to sit down. Two days later, a trip to my Family doctor showed I had Afib.

I was referred to a cardiologist. My resting heart rate was about 90, and spiked to the upper 180's (or more) while using the Peloton. Running, I would hit 150 or so at times.

Anyways, the cardiologist told me I could continue to exercise. He prescribed medication that would hopefully get me out of Afib. I wore a monitor, two separate occasions. The results were that I was always in Afib. I continued to exercise, but I was exhausted. 4-5 mile runs were leaving me exhausted, and not wanting to carry on my day as I had done previously. I was obviously discouraged, thinking this is how life is now going to be.

In a return trip to the cardiologist in November, he was adamant about getting me out of Afib. My blood work came out excellent, but the Afib remained. He recommended shock therapy, which I immediately opted to do. Just after Thanksgiving, I went to Penn Hospital to have my heart (attempted) shocked back into rhythm. Success!

My standing heart rate is now in the upper 40's or low 50's. My energy level has returned to pre-February. A 6-7-mile run is effortless. I feel great! My Christmas came early this year. I am very thankful.

Montana running is different than Utah running because of winter weather, plus we live in a rural area where roads are generally not snow-plowed. YAKTRAX have been our salvation - neighbors seem alarmed when they see us running on snow and ice, but we feel unconquerable with our cleats! Stunning views of the surrounding mountains and constant conversation helps us relish our running even more.

I also have a a few other shorter streaks. I started running every day back in November 2011 and I tried a couple of times to purposely end each streak, by skipping a day here and there, because "I am not one of those OCD people who are addicted to this." I missed a total of 7 days during the first 4 years, with the last being December 26, 2015. Then I admitted that I am one of 'those' people.

Ten years?! Hard to believe what started as a shake-out run before back-to-back marathons, followed by some recovery runs and the thought of, "why not," can take you! I'm not running races like I was before, nor logging nearly the number of miles...life just got too crazy, but I'm still out there.

I was elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention Pastors' Conference, which took place in Anaheim in June, finished my doctorate, and continue to juggle being a husband and father of four. We moved to Texas to help care for my ailing father and for me to work as the Associational Missionary of Collin Baptist Association and one of the pastors of FBC Farmersville.

RYAN GOOD JOINS USRSA

I've been running off and on, at various levels of competitiveness, seriousness, and consistency, for almost 40 years. But I never had a streak until recently.

I didn't really start out with the intention of streaking, I just decided to run every day because I enjoyed the consistency. Then I just kept going and, well, here I am and I have no plans to stop.

I love running and racing any distance, and in any environment but, having a background in backpacking and mountaineering. I have gravitated to trail running, particularly 100-mile ultras.

My wife, my two dogs, and I live in Portland, Oregon, which is a wonderful city in general, and especially for a runner. If you're ever in town, look me up and let's hit the trails.

NATHAN BOONE'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

The past six years of consistent, daily running has been very rewarding but has not been without its challenges. While some of the toughest days are those when sickness has set in, travel is scheduled, or following a planned medical procedure once our family was done growing, they are far outweighed by the rewards.

A few highlights consist of a growing passion for trail running, multiple half- and full-marathons, three ultramarathons, a sub-6-minute mile through the Four Corners Monument at Arizona, New Mexico, and Colorado, and, most importantly, getting my kids interested in running.

I look forward too many more days, weeks, and years of continuing my streak and hope my body can continue allowing me to partake in this adventure.

I started my streak by accident. It was on 12/31/2016. I completed my first ultramarathon that day. I always write down my mileage per day on my calendar and I notice I was running every day for 3 weeks straight from that date. I thought I might as well keep it up, and it has been 6 years of running every single day!! I celebrate it by running an ultramarathon at that same race I ran that day every 12/31.

Celebrating Day#730 of my first running streak - 2 years milestone 🎉🥳

Looking back on the 730 runs that made up this streak so far, there were many happy running memories 😊 but also a few very tough ones 😞

I've taken part in 33 races 🏆 (8 in 2021 and 25 in 2022) throughout this 🏃 streak and surprisingly got a few PB's! They were mainly 10K and 1/2 marathons, 3 full marathons and two ultra-marathons (34 and 40 miles) 😊

The worst of it was without a doubt having to run when I was ill 😞 through painful thrombophlebitis, tooth and chest infections, sore throat, cold/flu and headaches, dizziness, etc. which almost made me quit this streak, yet I survived and kept going 🙌 Running reminds us that even in our weakest moments we can be strong 💪

Running every day truly became a habit and has made such an impact on my life. I've realized that I am capable of doing so much more than what I think and I can accomplish things I've never thought possible before 💪

Running 🏃 is my self-care and I look forward to it each and every day 🙌 I have no intention of stopping now and no defined end goal! When it stops, nobody knows! I will just keep taking it one day at the time and I can't wait to see what year 3 has in store for me 🙌 Inspired by all the amazing runstreakers out there 🙌❤️

My next milestone is to hit 1,000 days (also known as Comma Day!) in September '23! (But before that I am looking forward to running the London Marathon in April '23!)

Wishing you all a very happy & prosperous New Year 2023 🥂🎉 and happy running 🏃🥰💪

DAVID COOK'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Today [31 December 2022] I completed 3 years of my running streak here at my sister-in-law's in Margate Kent UK.

I started my streak with the view of just running a month. Then Covid struck and I just couldn't stop. I was encouraged by raising funds for a local children's hospice in my home town of Huddersfield UK with a view of running a year.

Again, I reached this target and again I couldn't stop. In order to keep the run going I have run at ridiculous times in airport hotel car parks, in normal non-running gear in a park and with Covid. I have loved every minute of it. My mental and physical health has improved immeasurably.

I have to thank my wife who has run over half of my runs with me. She reminds me I don't need to break records every time I put on a pair of trainers! My next target is Forest Gump Day! I just can't see myself stopping...well not voluntarily anyway!!!

Cheers to a new year of running and life. May it bring you peace and fun adventures.

Still going on my streak; however, in the midst of rooting on my Alma Matter and celebrating at the Army/Navy game with my son, I experienced a high ankle sprain (Dec 10). Despite the pain, I've been able to continue my streak (I do a minimum of 2 miles per day).

The morning after required me to tape up my ankle, and I've been able to recover somewhat effectively through it. I feel as though I am getting better every day. That said, if you have any advice on streak running and recovering from ankle sprains, I would welcome that.

All in all, getting better every day, and even was able to step up my game the last couple of days and get to 100 miles this month. (I also have a streak of that going back to April 2020.)

Keeping the streak alive!

TONY RICHARDSON'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Today [31 December 2022] is the day I complete 6 years of running every day. It started after reading Ron Hill's amazing story and my experience that running everyday seemed to keep me injury free.

Running is harder than not running now. It's part of my daily routine and something that I just do. Sometimes it's really easy and sometimes very hard. Running when you're not well isn't something I'd recommend but I have done it on occasions.

In 6-years I've been lucky to run in some amazing countries including Malta, Sri Lanka, Poland, Spain, France, Belgium, Amsterdam, Scotland and New Zealand where I ran during lockdown for two months. I've run every distance from 1 mile to marathons and managed PB's in all distances even at 62.

I've run some great events including marathons at Goodwood, Bournemouth, Brighton, London, Coventry, Eastbourne, Worthing and The Great North Run.

I also ran in a team in a 24hour Ragnar Relay 10 people running 3 legs over 170 miles and we came first in our age group, an amazing adventure. So, running is over for this year... it starts again tomorrow.

This year proved to me that I have grit. I was on week 11/12 of half marathon training when I obtained a concussion. I had to defer my race but continued to run (just a mile/day) at a very slow pace (against doctors' orders). I then was blessed to go on a week-long rafting/camping trip at the bottom of the Grand Canyon. I was not only sleep deprived and overheated, but the longest beach I ran on was only 50 feet long. I can do hard things! Year 3, here I come. Looking forward to my wedding day run!

Hi Streakers! Today is 12/31/22 and day 1,460 of my streak!

I had a good year running. I did two half marathons got about 18 miles through the Twin Cities Marathon! I lost half of my usual marathon training schedule due to a nagging injury so I told myself that as soon as I was able I would do more cross training to supplement my running. So far so good! I think I'm averaging more miles than I was at this time last year!

Three years done and not stopping now. It defines me: I'm That Guy Who Runs Every Day. And this thing also allows me to be That Guy Who Can Eat That Much And Still Be Slim. All because of a whimsical thought one New Year's Day, up early to run off a hangover under the first sun of 2020.

It's been a great 1096 days, doing 1117 runs 5km or over to cover 10,334 km (6421 miles) in 36 days, 13 hours, and 35 minutes of elapsed running time. There are 87 of us on the streak list who started 1 January 2020. We are in 11 countries (3 of us here in Auckland, NZ but we've never met!) and range from age 15 to 70. I'm glad to be part of 'Team 1/1/20' and of the streak community.

It feels like something to be proud of - and it is! But then I scroll up and up and up the Streak list, seeing all you fivers and twenty-fivers and nearly-fifty-fivers and just... wow! I just hope my knees hold out till I get to Highly Skilled and that medical research has a longevity breakthrough to get me into the Coverts or the Hills. My part is just to keep going. Same for you all - just keep going, everyone!

So, 3 years and one day today, 1st of January 2023, and its nowadays a daily routine. It's just like brushing my teeth or eating breakfast. Just do it is my motto.

My runstreak is not only like an exercise, it's more of a mindset. It's about willpower and it's about getting things done. If you set your mind and engage to something it gives you so much back on different levels in life. For me it's about me moving and looking forward no matter what happens and it's keeping me going on every day. It's a part of my life and who I am.

So, run your life and keep moving and you'll get so much out of your runstreak.

MARY ERIKSON'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Dear fellow streakers: I can't believe that today [31 December 2022], I am completing my fourth year of running every day.

All of my runs have been outdoors. Rain, snow, ice, and hurricane-force winds didn't stop me from getting outside for a run. Covid didn't stop me either. Running is my mental escape from everyday concerns.

In these four years, I've run three marathons, traversed the pavement in several states, enjoyed many miles alone, and shared countless meaningful conversations with running buddies.

The beauty of running outside is spending time enjoying nature. I've seen innumerable sunrises, breathtaking sunsets, and marveled at the changing seasons.

Cheers to 2023, fellow runners, and to embarking on my 5th year of streaking.

ANDREW STARZEC'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

3 Years!!! This streak really means a lot to me. It does become a fabric of your life. The members of this running community also become part of your life.

I think on those days where for a split second I question the meaning of streaking and I'll see a post of a comment, a photo, someone else's anniversary, or a specific achievement and it makes me embrace the streak more.

I never started this streak with a specific end date as I've seen people say, "Well It was only supposed to be for a month," but I just started it as a friendly challenge from a friend and it just continued.

This streak is also more special because it is my second. I ended my first streak at 699 days, waited a month and started this streak.

During my runs I always am grateful that I can do this and enjoy the feeling of it. I looked forward to more days and especially all of your accomplishments as well!

Year 9 of my streak was all about running with friends. Some of the highlights included a fundraiser where I ran from the Massachusetts State House to the Rhode Island State House, a trip to Ouray, CO, a relay across Massachusetts and cramming in a 5k during half time of the World Cup final. ULISES PULIDO'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I can tell you that I am still running the streak that I started on January 1st, 2021. It all started because a friend told me about the challenge, but I didn't know about the page until later and wanted to register it.

I started running when I moved to NYC and found it easy to exercise this way here. I joined the NYC marathon lottery as a joke and got selected, and since then, I haven't stopped training. I loved running the major and set a goal to run all of them. In 2023, I'll do my 5th major in London and expect to do the last one in 2024 or as soon as possible.

I am planning on keeping doing the running streak. It has helped me a lot in lowering my stress levels daily. I'm not sure how long the running streak will last, but unless something outstanding happens in my life, I won't stop it.

JIM TAYLOR'S STREAK HITS 30 YEARS

I'm 68 now and at that age when you start mentioning your age any chance that arises. So, I was 30 years old when I went out for a run on the 2nd of January, with no thought of going on a streak. My previous best was 211 days so maybe that was in the back of my mind.

All I know was that it was getting tougher to get out. And that was always my problem. The getting out. Never the run itself. The getting changed and into my running gear and facing the Scottish weather. So, I seemed to have decided to take that decision making away from myself. As the days, weeks, months, years passed, that became the easiest bit. Every day, with no decision to make, I found or created the time to get out for a run.

Some notable highlights were having to strip down and run in Newark airport as my connecting flight to Columbus was delayed. I remember that no one seemed to bat an eyelid! On another occasion, I remember running around 11pm and rising at 4.00am due to a heavy schedule.

These days the runs are shorter, my knee is long gone. However, the space to myself, the fresh air, the forward movement continue to delight.

I've passed 10,000 days; I've passed 30 years without missing a day. So, what do I do now?

I think I'll go out for a run...

Best wishes to all streak runners; we all know a secret, don't we?

JASON MITCHELL'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

In the midst of the hectic holiday season, I crossed the line of 10 years of continuous running. Even I'm a bit baffled by this accomplishment. Especially when I think that the streak started when I was 38! That seems a long time ago!

I'm a run director at our local parkrun and two other RDs joined me on the day for a 4-mile jaunt along a dark and windy seafront in Southend. We then met up with two further running mates in a local pub run by yet another long-time runner for a festive drink to mark the occasion.

As others on this site know once you're running daily it becomes a habit that drives you forward and is normally quiet "easy" to do, though some days can be a real challenge due to illness, slight injury or just a hectic schedule. This year I've been reflecting about what this streak has given back. I realize that it has shown me a lot of places that I wouldn't have seen without it.

When travelling for work or family over the last 10 years I've incorporated a (mostly solo) run to start the day. This has taken me along winding mountain paths in Wales that the kids were too young to explore at the time. Along isolated sea walls where the only other person I encounter is a woman swimming with her two Labradors. I've seen amazing cities as they are waking up in the morning (New York, Boston, Malaga, Barcelona, Amsterdam). There is a romantic calmness to running streets like this when the bakers and the shop keepers are the only ones on the street and dawn is just breaking.

My boss has a habit of picking oddly located hotels when we travel together for work. This has given me the questionable opportunity to run endless laps around an industrial estate on the outskirts of Frankfurt over the last 10 years! This is not nearly as romantic as seeing the bakers load their windows in Milan! Thankfully visits to other cities have offered more: a river path in New England during an autumn morning as dawn is breaking and the fog is lifting, runs along the Great Lakes, runs around Amstel park in Amsterdam.

This year travel for work has resumed following over 2 years of being grounded for Covid. My "on the road" runs have included a trip on a footbridge across the Rhone in Geneva as well as a pitch-black run along a river path outside of Frankfurt: head torch required! It still beats the industrial estate!

I did my first ever run along the beach in Perth, Western Australia (looser sand than I was expecting made this a particularly challenging run) and a return to my favourite "on the road" run: the beach that stretches from Maroochydore to Mooloolaba in Queensland (picture included). This is a long way to go for a run, but one of the most beautiful places I've ever run. Not just because of the scenery but because even at 6am the beach is full of Australians of all ages walking, swimming, surfing or learning to surf before going to school. Their athleticism and positive approach to exercise inspires me every time I'm lucky enough to run here.

This beach also brings home the gift of the streak. When I'm in the office there for a week, I'm often the only person who will visit this beach during that time. Locals will of course have other favourite places to go and I know that I'd be like the other visitors and feel too shattered from jet lag and busy days to get there in the morning - if it weren't for the streak I may have never seen it.

As I've mentioned travelling to Australia as part of this some may be wondering how I fit the daily run around 24 hours of travel. It's not easy. I take a long time booking my journey.

The way to Australia is difficult because you "lose time." Thankfully there is always a stopover so I plan the location of this and the time of the layover carefully. In Perth I extended by layover from a couple of hours to five so that I could hire a taxi to get to the beach, run for a few miles to loosen up the legs and then get back to the airport in time for the next leg of the flight. Other times I've booked day passes to gyms located airport hotel and used the treadmills for the run.

The way back is much easier as you "gain time." Normally an early morning run before the flight is all that is required before getting home and having a slow and easy run to shake off the travel.

My streak started a couple of weeks following the death of our nephew, Jake, 10 years ago. His memory keeps me going through the harder days of running. Though my original intention of running every day was just to improve my health, this streak has become a memorial to him. I enjoy the places it takes me and always think of him when I'm there.

Best of luck to all others on this unique journey!

GREG NERCESSIAN'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

My run streak hit 6 years on New Year's Eve! Not a single day off in 6 years.

In that time, I've run as little as a mile and as much as 62 miles on any given day but always laced up my shoes the next day. I summited mountains and made it back down the mountain in time to save my streak.

Running brings me joy and introduces me to places and people I otherwise would have never known. It's taught me, when something is important enough, we find a way. I know someday this streak will end, but today is not that day.

My kids continue to be my why. I hope to show them grit through action, not by words alone. Streak on!

STEVE BYRON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I try to run all my miles outside. Living half a mile from Lake Michigan, the routes are always beautiful. I've run through the hot, humid summer air and through the subzero arctic blasts we experience in southeast Wisconsin. Rainstorms and blizzards.

Weather is not the trickiest part of this routine, though. I find that running in the dark during the winter months and sharing the road with uncaring, inattentive drivers the worst.

Thanks to Jim (going on 11 years streak) for putting this idea in my head and my wife for supporting and encouraging it.

BENJAMIN GRIFFIN'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

What started as a part of a Facebook Group of 120 Consecutive Days of Running turned into a Decade! Who would've thought it would go by so quickly and be filled with so many memories, celebrations, and challenges.

I've thoroughly enjoyed the journey and am happy to be "Experienced." Looking forward to the journey towards "Well Versed."

So far in my streak I have more than circumnavigated the globe in miles, blown out two treadmills to pasture, each with 7,000+ miles on them, and completed 150+ marathons and ultras.

Thanks for all the great stories in the quarterly write ups and in the social media platform. Remember, the race is not always to the swiftest, but to the runner who keeps on running. "All it takes is all you got." - Marc Davis

Hi everyone! I am hailing from the Bronx, NY. Still running daily after all those years, all of 8 now.

JOSEFINE GULLO'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

On 3 January my runstreak hit 3 years, which means I've been running 1096 days in a row. Can hardly believe it, but the days have passed so quickly. And also, without injuries or getting sick! Maybe that is the most important thing here.

The average distance per day during this period was just over 3 km and without time pressure. I have tried to set up different goals and for 2022 one was to run at least 100 km every month, which I managed. My next goal is to reach 1170 days, i.e. Forrest Gump day, To stay motivated, I'm going to introduce more variety into my running,

HOLLY BOYD'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

After five years, running everyday has become a way of life. Last year I got a new running partner, a sweet pup who looks forward to our runs even more than I do. As a push last fall I took on new distances in a trail race series. This has brought me to new heights (literally conquered a few tough climbs) and allowed me to take the semicolon route in some beautiful places. I can't wait to see where running takes me over the next five years!

ANTHONY LIPSCOMB'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

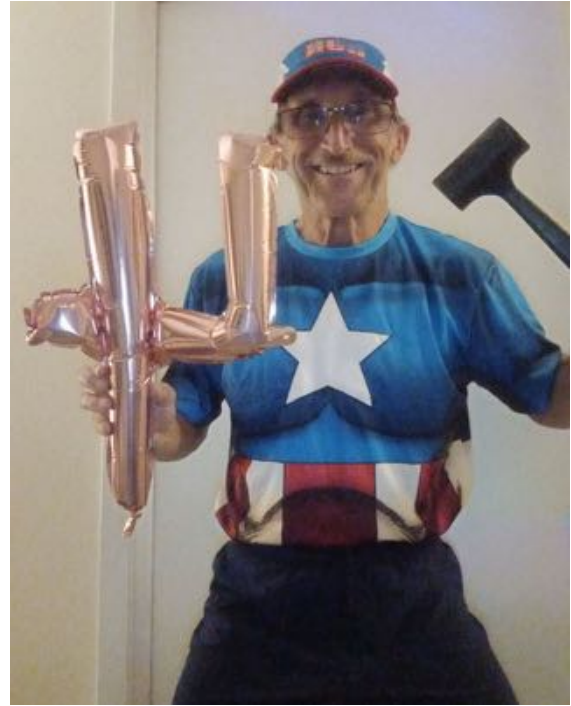

I hit the 2-year mark on Jan 7, 2023, a streak of running at least 2 miles a day.

I'm enjoying the journey, partly because it makes me feel good, but mostly because I share this with my 8yo son, who joins me on some of my runs and has his own streak of logging at least 1 activity mile a day (running, walking, cycling, scootering).

Keeping my streak has proven a perfect opportunity for the two of us to bond and for me to teach my son some foundational life values and skills, like perseverance, consistency, resilience, listening to your body, planning, etc.

I'm excited to see how far this will go and all the fruits it may bear!

BO GRIST'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

It really is hard to believe that it has been 10 years and I am of course honored to be on the list with all of these dedicated, inspiring people.

While 10 years feels like a great personal achievement, I am most proud of the fact that I have helped motivate a former co-worker, a current co-worker, a client and a stranger into starting and completing their own streaks (two are still active).

I remember reading about Mark Covert's streak many years ago and it certainly inspired me to give it a try and I am very grateful to join "The Experienced."

Here is a photo taken by my wife of me and my running friends Afton and Ivan after the 10-year anniversary run in 8-degree weather.

Happy Trails to both you and all of the folks on the list and especially to those thinking of starting their own streak. Happy New Year.

Tim Teege

TIM TEEGE JOINS SRI FROM GERMANY

My name is Tim Teege and I started running casually (not daily) in 2009. Until now, I have completed over 70 full marathon and ultramarathon races, of which I was lucky to even come out first place at two. Triathlons of all distances are also quite interesting to me and my wife and I have made it a tradition to do our local Hamburg Triathlon every year.

Professionally, I run a web design studio with a bunch of employees and love to blog about running and reading books at www.teesche.com as a side project.

Since I've heard about SRI and now have entered with a streak of just over one year, it has become my goal to reach a full 1,000 consecutive days – but I've heard for many people that's not the end of the story. So, I'm looking forward to what the future will bring! Feel free to connect with me on Strava here: <https://www.strava.com/athletes/4922534>

Dylan Weidner

DYLAN WEIDNER JOINS USRSA

My father convinced me to run my first half marathon in March 2020, and a week later the world was introduced to Covid-19.

With things closed down, nowhere to go, or people to see, running became a new obsession for me. I then ran my 2nd half marathon at the same race in May 2021, while running almost every one of my runs solo and countless internet searches on how to make a name for myself in this running world.

Fast forward to December 2021, I completed my first full marathon. In a 12-month span, I ran 2 full marathons, two 50 milers, two 50K's, 100-mile attempt (84 miles), and a half marathon.

I thank my 1 year run streak with praise to God for good health and putting no limitations on what's achievable.

Michael Rigglesford

MICHAEL RIGGLESFORD JOINS SRI FROM CANADA

I am flattered that you ask. I've been running since 1975, would describe myself as a "ham andegger," ran 16 marathons never broken 3 hours and one 60k. No longer race, they would need a sun dial to time me.

Average 10k a day by myself, always outdoors at 6 a.m. aided by our benign weather around Brantford Ontario.

Over 100,000 career miles and probably 150 races at various distances.

My streak is what keeps me going in oh so many ways - a time to think and solve the world's problems. Thank you for your interest. Yours in running,

FREDERICK HEINZE'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I just completed 4 years of running everyday; 1,460 straight days as of Monday January 10, 2023. Last year was a tough one for the streak as I contracted Covid twice with early January being the worst running 1 mile every day for 6 straight days (probably should have not been running at all). I was stubborn and didn't want the streak to end. Also contracted Covid in June but the symptoms were mild. Here's to another year of running every day in 2023!

MIRCEA DRAGOI'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

On January 1st my streak reached another milestone, 4 years of running. Four years since I have joined this global club of amazing runners - united by determination, patience and passion.

Regarding all my newbie years, one of the most rewarding consequences is that I have inspired some friends and colleagues to start running. Seeing that gave me an additional boost, made me happy and proud. Seeing people around moving and paying attention to their physical and mental fitness is just great.

On a more philosophical (and personal) level, streaking helped me, again, to navigate hard times and adversity. My runs are the red thread running through the maze, my stable, rock solid habit, and that's incredibly helpful now. Last but not least, maybe I told this you before, daily running helps a lot to be in sync with Mother Nature's cycles.

Perry Romanowski

PERRY ROMANOWSKI'S STREAK HITS 14 YEARS

In 1996, I "juggled" my first marathon in Chicago. Juggling is the sport of juggling while running. After that, I decided that it would be a fun goal to juggle 44 marathons. So, the juggling marathon project began.

I started my first streak in 2007. During that same year I juggled into the Guinness Book of World Records for the fastest 50 miles done while juggling (8:23:57). Throughout this training I kept up my first streak. The day after a 50 miler was pretty tough, but I got my 2 miles in.

Originally, it was going to be a 365-day streak but I made it 444 days and stopped.

After a couple months I missed streaking. So, I started my current streak in Nov of 2008. I endeavored to have the longest "juggling" streak in the world. And in fact, I likely do have the longest juggling streak as all of my outdoor runs on this streak have been done while juggling.

Last fall I finally completed my 44th marathon and passed 14 years of the juggling streak. I will probably keep doing marathons but this year I may take a break. Not from juggling though. The streak continues.

Wind, rain, sleet, or snow...I juggle on.

I just completed my 3 full year running streak. What started as another challenge to spice up my ultra-running training was supposed to last a month only, but it stuck, I enjoyed the challenge. 3 years later I have run an average of about 8m, 13km a day including some big ultras 200k, 170k, 120k and others.

The motivation comes from perseverance which then brings consistency and motivation itself in a virtuous circle. Looking up to all the multi-year streakers out there, keep it up!

ROB HUMPHRIES' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Today [18 January 2023] marks 2 years of running every day for me!

I was already a regular runner before and had done streaks of 50 days on a couple of occasions but then life would get in the way. Now, running every day has become a way of life, much to the annoyance of my family at times, but I wouldn't change it!

There are days when it has been a struggle, usually when I'm ill, but these are very few and far between.

During the streak I have done a 50km and a 50-mile race and people were always surprised to hear I'd be running the next day but for me, it was perfect recovery! Anyway, here's to another year of running and cheers to all those other streakers out there!

My second streak is going a lot better than the last. I've remained healthy, and I finally managed to win a 15K race in SF.

2022 saw a total of 4,106 miles/6608KM in 462 hours, which equates to a density of ~6:45 min/mi or 4:11 min/km avg pace.

In 2023, I hope to break 2:30 in the marathon. Kudos to my father, Brent Burmaster for inspiring my streak. Age 66 and 30 years of running every day!

LINDSEY MARTIN'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 3,359 DAYS

On January 11, 2023 I sadly ran my last streak day (3,359) days. I was hoping to hold out and make it to 10 years, but the osteoarthritis in my left foot became too much for everyday walking, let alone running.

I had foot surgery on January 12th and the surgeon has told me it will be at least 8 weeks before I can put any weight on my foot, so I'm looking forward to starting a new streak in about 2-3 months.

Continued best to all and your streaks!

DAVID SHANNON'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Today [19 January 2023] marks my 3-year streak-a-versary for my current streak. I've actually been streaking since December of 2012, but had to break four previous streaks due to injury or surgery.

At least 1 mile per day for the past 3 years. Every day from January 20, 2020 till January 19, 2023. 6,774 miles over that span or an average of 6.2 miles per day. I managed to finish 22 races over that span ranging from a 5k to 90 miles. And I did a few fun runs like running through and across the Grand Canyon. Only 149 days to tie my longest streak.

BETH ARENDT'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I don't have a big update, but I have run at least 2 miles each day since my streak started.

This past year, I traveled a little bit in the US, and had the opportunity to run in a lot of beautiful locations, but I think my favorite was in November while visiting the Grand Canyon. The morning started at about 20 degrees and snowy, but as the day went on it became sunny and quite lovely. I did that run on the south rim trail.

People often ask why I do this, and if I really run every day. I find that such an interesting question, and am not sure I have a good answer (except that yes, I really do run every day!). All of you runners who have been doing this for so many years are such an inspiration. I also personally think running every day keeps you healthy.

Thanks much and happy running!

RENE VARELA'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

What an adventure 4 years has been! I started out as an at best overweight inconsistent runner with poor selfcare habits. What I learned along the way is the power of small steps every day adding up to big goals. When I started, I could barely complete a mile, had many minor aches and pains as my body adjusted, then as my fitness grew, my accomplishments followed.

In the past 2 years, I've been able to exceed 3000 miles per year, completed my first 8 marathons and many other interesting shorter distance races. I hardly recognize myself now. Perhaps what is most gratifying is that running is a daily habit now for me, like sleeping and eating. I know it will happen and I look forward to it. Thank you all so much for encouraging this run streak adventure!

Corinne McGue

CORINNE MCGUE'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Closing out another memorable and rewarding year of running for an hour, more or less, each day.

This year provided some new adventures to add to my "runalogue" including running in Southwestern Michigan during the December 2022 blizzard and the January 2023 deluge of flooding rains in the Napa Valley.

We have finally discovered the joys (and necessity!) of running in Yak Trax accouterments which allowed me to safely maintain my running streak outdoors!

My husband and best running partner has been streaking along with me for this 7th year and has helped to make this a year to be grateful for!

No records to share—just memories of all of the pleasures of running literally coast-to-coast and learning more about this great country! If you are not in awe, you're not paying attention! Run on, fellow streakers!!

Running burst into my life unexpectedly a couple of years ago. It's terrible, but to my shame, for 43 years of my life, I did not do any sports at all, and now I am a member of the international association of runners.

I run every single day, despite the coronavirus disease, a severe ankle sprain and other injuries. And no matter how funny it sounds, every day I get more and more strength and inspiration for new exploits and accomplishments.

ALEX MILLER'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

My streak is still ALIVE!!

2022 was an amazing running year, despite a slow start. At the end of 2021, I found myself chasing my end of year mileage as I often do. That led to a slight strain in my groin, which is how I started my 2022 running season. Then to make matters worse, in January 2022, I sustained a hockey injury (torn Cartilage between my ribs & sprained ribs). I took it easy those first few months until I healed up.

My first big run for 2022 was a 45 miler to celebrate my 45th birthday in May. This was followed by a 40+ miler about 1-month out from my big Ultra (The Thuringen Ultra/100KM in Frottstadt, Germany). Race day came on July 2, and it was a great day! I finished the 100KM in under 13 hours and felt great at the finish.

The rest of the year was unremarkable with one other shorter Ultra (Hartfussler Lauf/35.9 miles) but I kept the streak alive, and celebrated my 10-year streak-aversary at the end of 2022. My yearly mileage was not great (many competing priorities), but I finished the year healthy!

My goals for 2023 are to keep the streak alive, run 46 miles on my birthday (I will switch to km's on my 51st birthday), and finish the Thuringen 100 Miler on June 30/July 1. Cheers to a strong running year in 2023!

Nathan Webber

NATHAN WEBBER JOINS SRI FROM NEW ZEALAND

Hello, my name is Nathan. I am 11 years old and I live in New Zealand. I started running when I was 8 years old because I saw my Mum do it. And Dad too. They went cool places and had lots of fun so I wanted to try. I started at parkrun. It is 5k - well I didn't make it all the way on my first try, but the next time we went I did. I felt amazing and I love parkruns. Now I've done 76 parkruns at 16 locations. I love running to explore new places. Trails are my favourite.

Two of our friends do run streaks. They are Micky Gunn and Erin Vaughn (New Zealand). They told us about run streaking and I wanted to try. I started on the 1st of February 2022 as a 28-day run-every-day challenge. Then Erin said if I keep it up for a whole year I can get my name on the Streak Runners International register. So, I kept going!

In my first year of running every single day I did 2108.8km and I ran in the dark and in the rain, in snow and in the sun. I even once did an indoor run in a hall because there was a big storm outside. I have done lots of parkruns, run with our friends on group runs, and done some races. In my first year of run streaking I also did my very first Half Marathon race.

Mum and Dad take turns running with me. They told me I can stop now I've done a whole year, but I said no way! I have a coach helping me too. He gives me some different fun runs to do and strength exercises to make me strong and keep me running. His name is David Haunschmidt and he is very fast. He is helping me get ready to run my second Half Marathon race, the WUU2k in Wellington in July. It is a very hilly trail race and it's going to be awesome!

I love running and I am going to keep run streaking for as long as I can.

My running streak has been such a huge blessing. It's "My Time" when I'm out there every morning. It has also been a testimony of faithfulness and perseverance. SETH SICILIANO'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I didn't start out to create a run streak. But after taking a day off for being sick after a business trip, I started the streak in February of 2019 and have not looked back. With a big family and a career that demands a lot of travel, the streak has required me to plan quite a bit. Whether coordinating flights, planning ahead for weather or kid activity schedules, I've somehow managed to make it work.

Over the 4 years, I have run in 6 countries and 18 states. While I maintained a minimum daily distance of a 5k, I've actually logged over 19,800 total miles during the streak. I've competed in 5 of the world major marathons (some multiple times) and multiple ultra-marathons. Mostly, I just run for myself, however, and cannot imagine a day without it. I could not have done it without the support and encouragement of my amazing wife and children.

CECILIA LINDMARK'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I got reminded by the registry that I had gone three years with my streak. The greatest achievement was to run the Amsterdam Marathon in 2021 and the coldest run was last winter in - 25C.

I have been struggling with motivation and some minor flus lately. But I hope I will keep running and discover the new country Denmark that we've moved to. Maybe a new marathon here as well!?

STACY PALMER'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Hello from Oregon and Happy Running! I am so excited to be celebrating my 5-year Run-iversary this month. I have had a wild five years filled with some pretty snazzy and a few scary running adventures while trying to keep my streak alive.

I started the streak in February of 2018 in order to start running again after my 5th and 6th back surgeries that took place the previous September 2017. I had tried to get back into running after my long and difficult recovery, but could not get motivated enough to stick with a routine. I had read about several folks that just ran every single day. They just did it. No question. And that was exactly what I needed... a running HABIT.

I started with just a mile each day, sprinkling in longer runs weekly. Each month I tried to go just a little bit longer and soon my habit was established!

I told everyone I could about my streak so that I would feel accountable and soon my family members all knew that I would be working my daily run into whatever we were planning. My husband and daughter have put up with my streak and gone to extraordinary measure to help me get it done.

My streak also gave me something to focus on other than some of crummy stuff happening around all of us. It got me through working at a hospital during Covid, the death of my Lil Gram, family drama, political drama, and all the stressors we have experienced at home and in the world.

I am so thankful for my streak - it keeps me sane and fit and happy and confident... I consider my streak a life partner and will keep it up until I can't.

Some of the adventures I have had during my streak include:

Running at 11:45 on New Year's Eve before champagne and kisses, running with my treadmill hooked up to a portable gas generator during an ice storm that knocked out our power for nine days, a Halloween half marathon in New Orleans during which I tripped but stopped my fall with chin, getting a nail through the foot but duct taping it shut and going for my run before it could swell up, taking leave from a work party at a bar to run a quick mile up the street and get back for a margarita, running sloooowly away from a curious coyote in my neighborhood, running in the pitch dark of night in the mountains when trying to beat 116 degree heat during the day, running a canceled half marathon over the Golden Gate Bridge all by myself... running in Oregon, Washington, California, Montana, Louisiana, Hawaii, Idaho....lots and lots of amazing running experiences!

My streak helped me beat my goal of running 2022 miles last year... I'm a rebel and ran 2024! This year my goal is to keep up my streak and smile through the miles.

Cheers to everyone keeping up or even trying out a streak! I will be continuing on my streak journey and running right alongside you. :)

RICHARD LINDSTROM'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Two years run streak completed. The winter is a bit challenging, living quite far north, since the skiing is also asking for time in the calendar. But by decreasing the running distance a bit, it is possible to do some nice Nordic ski sessions complementing the running.

ULLA DAHLBACK FALK'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I'm still running every day, and I like it. Now I have done it for two years! When I started I read about it in a newspaper, and thought "20 minutes a day, not much, that time I have," and it's amazing, I still like it. Usually I run outside, but sometimes inside, because I often take my bike to work and it's 40 km a day, so I know it's enough with cycling, but I won't stop running...!

JONAS BLOMQVIST'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Three years ago, I started running, because I felt that I needed to do something with my office job. My main goal was to get through at least 14 days of running. Here I am three years later and today (13 February 23) I'm doing day 1100 and doesn't see any stop of running.

The great thing with this running is all the places that I have seen, from mountains in the north of Sweden to deserts in USA. No stop in sight. Keep up.

JENNY JANSSON'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

My streak is still running. Last year I completed my first ever marathon in Stockholm. The first 20km felt great the following 10 were ok. A bit after 30km, I started to feel a slightly tired and the last two km was awful. But I made it. The new goal is to run an ultra-distance this year.

CHRISTER PETERSSON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

In year 2020 I was going for a whole year of running, starting on January 1, 2020.

At 2:10 PM on Wednesday, November 4, 2020 I started my Runstreak day 309 from work together with my German Pinscher.

After just a few hundred meters I had to stop and rest because I felt enormous tired! I could not understand why (neither my dog). Started to run again but after just 200 meters again I had to stop and rest.

I ran back to work and after my shower I felt better and decided to go to the doctor next day.

24 hours later they did ECG on me and the doc told me that I had a heart attack. I was next sent by ambulance to the heart clinic for an emergency heart surgery.

Two days and two surgeries (and 8 stents) later I could start looking forward to start my third Runstreak!

December 1 2020 I started Runstreak 3 and I've kept running, now it's more than 800 days and my next goal is 1000 days.

After that my goal is 2 year and then... well, I can't stop there?

NICOLE LEE'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I'm excited to share that I am celebrating 2 years of my run streak today (Feb 13, 2023). Started running regularly in 2005 as divorce recovery. Struggled with injuries through the years that created some gaps, but generally kept going.

When the pandemic hit, I started my first run streak that I stopped at 303 days. But missed the daily runs, so restarted on Feb 13, 2021 and haven't stopped. I'm running the healthiest ever and can't imagine a day without a run!

MICHAEL VALEIKA'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Thanks for the congratulations and for reaching out to me. My streak is still going strong at 1,118 days today [15 February 2023].

Here are some details about me:: father of two young children, most days I just run one mile and I usually do so pushing a double stroller, barefoot, without a shirt, and listening to music.

JON ZAID'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

The streak is still going despite pleas from my coach and from my wife to rest. I have been suffering from tendinopathy of the Achilles for more than a year. I was almost "cured," although somewhat with mild pain, and I participated in a marathon, Jack & Jill in Washington State, and unfortunately at around the 3-mile mark, someone behind me noticed that the heel on my shoe had disintegrated. I finished the marathon thinking that the new pain I was feeling, overriding the tendinopathy, was a blister, but instead I "degloved" my heel. This did not stop my streak, and the next few days were difficult but I kept the streak.

Fast forward to January 2023 and still not completely healed, I participated in the Avalon 50k on Catalina Island in California with my wife. It was her first marathon. We finished together and it was a joyful occasion. I am seeing a physical therapist, who agrees with my coach, to give the tendon a rest, but I will continue on with the streak.

NICK MORGANTI'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

It is good to have another year of running recorded and completed basically injury free. I just completed the Carlsbad 1/2 Marathon in January in just under 1 hour 55 minutes.

This streak is my third one now, and I hope to soon make it my 2nd longest. Staying healthy and avoiding injuries are the keys to success.

Whatever happens, the sport of running has been very good to me. I have had very few injuries over the years, and running has kept me quite active and healthy.

I continue to participate in activities that require energy and fitness, both at home and at work. For that, I am quite thankful.

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

This Spring 2023 issue of our newsletter made history as we, for the first time, featured three athletes on our cover. The three cover athletes celebrated in this issue are Rick Porter, John Carlson, and Tim Masters, who all started their running streaks in December 1977 and who all passed the 45-year mark during the last quarter. These Masters athletes currently hold the 13th, 14th, and 15th longest running streaks in the world. If we add 4 streaks from runners from our retired list, we now have 19 super streak runners that have surpassed the 45-year mark. Wow! Congratulations to Mr. Porter, Mr. Carlson, and Mr. Masters for their amazing achievements and congratulations to all of you who also celebrated a running streak anniversary this quarter.

While this issue we are highlighting athletes that broke through the 45-year barrier, it was not too long ago that 30-year running streaks were considered unusual. In fact, the first issue of this newsletter that was published in April 2001, only 5 athletes from the United States – Bob Ray, Mark Covert, Jim Pearson, Ken Young, and Steve DeBoer - had broken through the 30-year barrier on the USRSA list. We can also include Jon Sutherland, who had not yet registered his streak with USRSA by 2001 but who now has the longest active streak in the world at 53+ years. Also, in 2001, our running streak list was only open to athletes from the United States so we can add Ron Hill, of the United Kingdom, to our 30+ year group. Dr. Hill, whose streak started 21 December 1964 and who now has the longest retired streak in the world at 52+ years, was the only runner who had broken through 35+ year mark by start of the new millennium.

From just 7 athletes whose running streaks had broken 30-years by the Spring 2001, we now can claim 130 (71 active, 59 retired) athletes that have reached that landmark by the Spring 2023. Moreover, included in this group is 49 (34 active, 15 retired) whose running streaks now top 40-years and 5 (4 active, 1 retired) super athletes whose streaks have topped 50-years.

As for me, I was among those who celebrated an anniversary last quarter when my running streak passed the 33-year mark in late December. Other running milestones reached by me in 2022:

- Won age group at a New Year's Day 5K (January 1). Ran 27 races in 2022 placing in the top three in age group in 14 races.
- 18th consecutive Boston Marathon finished (April 18) (2005-2022).
- 900th running race as an adult completed (August 28) (first race run in April 1984; finished 2022 with 907 lifetime races completed).
- 43rd marathon completed and qualified for Boston Marathon (October 9) (first marathon run in May 1985).
- 12,000th running streak day completed (November 7).
- 14th consecutive year of running 2,000 miles or more a year reached (December 7) (2009-2022).
- Competed in USA Track & Field - New Jersey 2022 Individual Grand Prix winning awards for first in age group for Mini I (top 9 races of 4 miles down to 1 mile), third male of all age groups for Mini II (top 7 races of over 4 miles up to but not including 12km), and third male of all age groups for Mini III (top 5 races of 12km and above). I also placed fourth in age group in the Overall Individual competition (top 9 races counting three races each in Category I, Category II, and Category III).
- 63,000 lifetime running miles completed (December 26) (running log started in January 1985).
- At the annual banquet hosted by the North Jersey Masters Track and Field Club (NJM) I was awarded their "Runner of the Year" award. Founded in 1976 with over 400 members, NJM is one of the older and larger running clubs in the Garden State. I am a member of their 60s men's team that competes against other running clubs in a series of races ranging from 1-mile to the half-marathon (13.1 miles) sponsored by USA Track & Field - New Jersey.

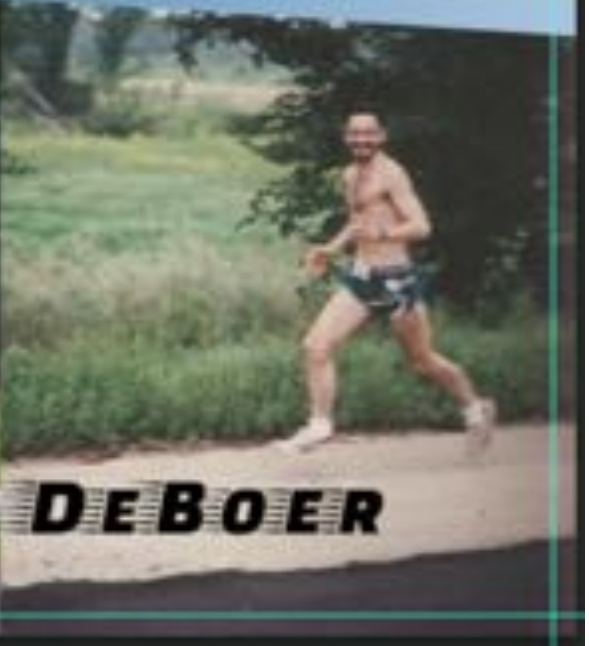

As always, I also want to wish all of you good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!

MEMBERSHIP—DUES

Membership in Streak Runners International and the United States Running Streak Association, Inc. is open to all interested individuals.

SRI/USRSA dues are $20.00 annually or $250.00 lifetime. Credit for one-half of all previously paid dues will be applied to the payment of lifetime dues. Once lifetime membership status is achieved, no further dues will be assessed.

A completely filled out and signed membership application must accompany the dues payment. Applications may be downloaded from our website at www.runeveryday.com, or will be mailed upon request.

STREAK CERTIFICATION

Once a running streak reaches a year in duration it is eligible for listing by SRI/USRSA. Listing of one's active or retired running streak requires a fully completed and signed streak certification form, which may also be downloaded from the SRI/USRSA site or mailed upon request. Although membership is not a requirement for listing, the SRI/USRSA appreciates all contributions to its cause.
