RUNNING STREAK LEGEND BILL ANDERSON PASSES AT 75
By: Mark Washburne

William "Bill" Brady Anderson, of Fort Worth, Texas, died last month at the age of 75. "Bill's last run was on December 22 and he passed away on the second of January," wrote Lauren Anderson, his wife of 54-years, in an email to Streak Runners International (SRI) and the United States Running Streak Association (USRSA). "He died from metastatic prostate cancer which we had had known about almost five years ago. I do believe it was this organization, and his streak that kept him going till right before Christmas."

Bill Anderson's running streak lasted over 44 years (16,158 days) and was listed as the 10th longest active running streak in the world at the time it ended. His running streak is now listed as 4th longest retired streak on the SRI listing. "On September 27, 1976, Bill put on his running shoes and jogged a mile, beginning what would become, at one point, the 8th longest running streak in the United States," noted his obituary. "Over the next 44 years he ran seven marathons. He ran in all fifty states, multiple countries, dozens of cruise ships and even on an aircraft carrier. He ran healthy, sick, and drunk a time or two. He ran in hail and snow and got lost running in downtown Taiwan. And he ran the day after his appendectomy. On December 22, 2020 Bill ran his final mile with his daughter Barb, who is also a runner."

Bill Anderson was also the older brother of Bob Anderson, the founder of RUNNER'S WORLD MAGAZINE. "Bob is one of my younger brothers," said Bill in a 2012 statement to SRI/USRSA. "I'd like to say that I taught him all that he knows about running . . . but it wouldn't be true. He's on some kind of quest to participate in 50 races this year to celebrate his 50 years of running. I think he just finished first in his age-group in a half marathon . . . not bad."

SRI/USRSA wishes to extend our condolences to the entire Anderson family on the passing of a truly streak running legend. He will be missed.

Close Call By: Bill Anderson

This came very close to being a story about involuntarily retiring my 35 year + running streak. Fortunately, instead, it's a story about a very close call.

There I was, minding my own business, when out of the blue I was struck with appendicitis...me?...age 67?... appendicitis. No way. I had been experiencing some discomfort in my stomach, certainly not pain, but it was persistent. My primary care physician recommended that I go to the local emergency room to get it checked out.

We were getting ready to go over to the ER when my wife asked me if I was going to run. At first I said "No." but then thought better of it when we realized that we could be late getting back home. At that point we had not contemplated appendicitis, I just had a sore belly. I ran a slow, uneventful mile...fortunately! That was Friday.

Long story short, in the ER they diagnosed a ruptured appendix with immediate surgery needed. We had mentioned my streak to the surgeon before my operation and the first words out of his mouth to my wife afterwards were "His running streak is over. Blah. Blah. Blah." I later overheard my wife speaking to a friend on the phone that the doctor "Didn't know who he was talking about."

By the way, the surgery was done laproscopically so I didn't have any major cuts...just three small incisions...glued shut.

It was the day after surgery and I had not run. A second physician, a patient consultant specialist, had a different opinion about keeping the streak alive. He obviously appreciated the negative psychological impact of missing a day, so he gave the nurses the go ahead for me to run, if I wanted to. Trust me. I wanted to.

My younger daughter, Barb, arrived on the scene that day. She seemed to be every bit as committed to my streak as I am. She went out and carefully plotted out a course in the hospital's meditation garden and double measured the length to make sure it would be legal for the USRSA...30 laps per mile...how boring.

That night, Saturday, Barb and I went out and ran a mile in the garden. What a sight...me in my hospital gown...she pushing an IV pole for the entire mile. (I'm not sure that on one of my best days I could run a mile pushing an unwieldy IV stand.)

I had done it...I didn't miss the day after surgery!

The next thing I knew, the press showed up and wanted to do a story about this crazy guy in Texas who runs every day. The story "leaked out" beyond the local area; we heard back from family and friends as far away as California, South Dakota, and Virginia about how this all happened. I was having my fifteen minutes of fame though I wasn't seeking it out and certainly didn't need it.

Interestingly, the most difficult running day was NOT the day after surgery but the following days. I stayed in the hospital for 8 days and needed to run each of those days also. With the press coverage, my streak had somehow shifted from "mine" to "ours." It was a bit of an uncomfortable feeling. I had to run, people were counting on me.

During that period, my other daughter, Becky, visited and helped count those interminable laps and give me encouragement. My surgery had left my stomach temporarily bloated so getting enough breath was a challenge. It was easy to try to run too fast. I had to get along at barely a shuffle in order to keep going. But I did shuffle...Sunday...Monday...Tuesday....etc.

So, that's it. My streak goes on, following a bump in the road. I could not and would not have been able to have accomplished this without my extraordinary support group. Running streaks almost by definition are personal things. We are out there alone early in the morning and late in the evening. I deeply appreciate the sacrifices my support group makes to help me do my thing...specifically my wife, two daughters, and their families.

[Editor's note: As an interesting side story about Bill Anderson is that he is the older brother of Bob Anderson, the founder of Runner's World Magazine. "Bob is one of my younger brothers," said Bill to SRI/USRSA. "I'd like to say that I taught him all that he knows about running...but it wouldn't be true. He's on some kind of quest to participate in 50 races this year to celebrate his 50 years of running. I think he just finished first in his age-group in a half marathon...not bad."]

Just Another Runner
By: Bill Anderson

Two birds...in a tree...in the park

“Who’s that who just ran by?”

“I think I saw him yesterday...and maybe the day before.”

“Trust me. He’s just another runner.”

“I was talking to some other birds this morning. They say he’s run in all 50 states.”

“Maybe, but he’s just another runner.”

‘Look at him. He’s obviously just another runner.’

“But check this out, they say he runs EVERY day.”

“Big deal. He’s just another runner.”

“But everyday for a LONG time.”

“So what, He’s just another runner. I heard that when he was in high school he couldn’t even make the varsity track and cross country teams.”

“Maybe you’re right...but did you see him running in the rain last week?”

“Yes.”

“He only runs outside. Did you see him running in the ice and snow last winter?”

“Yes.”

“And when it was over a hundred degrees last summer?”

“Yes.”

“Does that sound like just another runner?”

“Runners are weird. When you say, “He runs every day” you really mean almost every day, right?”

“No, every day.”

“But if he skips a day, he can make it up by running twice the next day, right?”

“No every single day.”

“What if he is traveling?”

“He runs.”

“How about the day he ran on a Saturday and then flew all the way to Taiwan...and it was 11:00 at night SUNDAY night due to the International Date Line?”

“He went out and ran that Sunday night.”

“How about the day his first granddaughter was born and he had to leave on a business trip to Atlanta very early in the morning?”

“He got up and ran at 3:30 a.m.”

“How about the day he had a surgical procedure done for prostate cancer?”

“He ran early in the morning the day of the procedure and then near the end of the next day.”

“How long has this been going on?”

“They say the last day he didn’t run, the most popular song was Play that Funky Music.”

“Wow. That was a long time ago.”

“And Gerald Ford was President.”

“Do you mean he’s run every day since then?”

“EVERY day. The last day he did not run was September 26, 1976.”

“That’s over thirty five years!”

“Right. Here he comes again.”

“That must be some kind of record.”

“Not according to the United States Running Streak Association.” There are fifteen people in the country with longer streaks than his.”

“How about in Texas?”

“Sorry. Alex Galbraith who lives in Houston has a longer streak.”

“How about in North Texas.”

“Until last January, Walt Byerly who lives in Dallas had a longer streak. Walt had to retire his streak do to a medical issue.”

“So this guy has the longest active running streak in North Texas?”

“Yes.”

“What’s his name?”

“I understand it is Bill Anderson.”

“I wonder how many of the other runners in the park know he’s run every day for over thirty five years?”

“Probably none, I suspect they think he’s just another runner.”

Eliza Miron with Sook, “a former street dog from India, I brought her back to the states in 2013.”

ELIZA MIRON HAS 11TH LONGEST FEMALE STREAK IN WORLD; KEPT STREAK ACTIVE THROUGH TWO PREGNANCIES;
STARTED PODCAST: “DAILY RUN WITH ZA”
By: Eliza Miron, February 1, 2021

I just hit 18 years in September, celebrating in tradition - doing my run! I use my “runaversary” as the one day of the year to reflect back on everything I have been through to be still running today! Maybe like most streak runners, I used to rarely think about the significance of a “run streak” because it’s just something that happens in my day to day life. How uninteresting!

Going into this 19th year of running has already proven different as I began to share my daily run through social media. In addition to writing my miles down every day, I added another form of documentation by taking a five second video of each of my runs and posting it to my Instagram story so that I could visually remember each run over the course of the year.

As a result, people began asking me about running and I would share with them about my run streak. A former high school friend was astounded when I explained that I have not missed a day in over 18 years, responding what most people say when they hear of something unordinary - "that's insane!" I didn't hear from him for a few weeks until he messaged me again saying that he is over 30 days of his own run streak! And then a few more followers on Instagram messaged me saying that they are a few weeks into running every day. One friend explained that my story inspired her to begin to run again after years of being out of shape and doing nothing. Another friend committed to one year, just recently hitting 100 days, and has appreciated the meditative practice a daily run has brought in his life.

So then I thought, "what if I actually shared my story? What could happen? What lives could be impacted? What if I connected with other streak runners? What if I started a Podcast and have other run streakers tell their stories?" And then it came down to the ultimate question of: "What if I decided to no longer be fearful of sharing my story?"

A brief history:

During most of my run streak, I was very hesitant in sharing that I run every day. I started the streak at age 16 as a junior in high school as a way to get better for the next cross-country season. I intended on running every day for a full year so that I didn't have any regrets the next year of knowing that I didn't put in enough training. My intention of committing to running helped to establish a running program for my high school. I went to a small private school and we didn't even have a football team. The whole school was all about soccer. My senior year I began the cross-country season as the only girl on the team, but soon other students were inspired enough to join! We had a full girls' team which was a first in many years. While the athletic director was reluctant that Spring, we officially had a track team and a coach! Throughout the years since, there have been many runners that competed in state and on to college; some even getting scholarships. I won't take credit for their success, but I do feel very happy that I was able to leave behind opportunity for many student-athletes through the sport of running.

When I got to college, I didn't share with the team or coach that I had this run streak or that I was a few years in. But after a while everyone caught on because, unfortunately, I experienced some of my first injuries. I ran barefoot due to intense blisters left behind from racing spikes. I hobbled through "runners knee syndrome" having to run with minimal knee bend - if you can imagine! I ran through anemia, all sorts of sicknesses, and ran through the days that coach told us to take off. I was scolded for having a run streak in college which made me feel a little ashamed about sharing my story or explaining my reasoning why I run every day, but I continued on because it's what I loved to do.

Throughout the years, I maintained my mindset of keeping my run streak private especially when I first became pregnant in 2014. If people found out I am still running they would say "you shouldn't run pregnant" or "what happens when the baby is born, how are you going to get in your run?" I confidently responded by saying - "I will get in my run." I may have felt a little anxiety over the unknown of what labor would be like and what life would be like after the baby is born, but I maintained an optimistic attitude about what could happen. I opted for a birth at a birthing center that was completely natural due to my speculation that many hospital doctors push C-sections and that was something I thought would be more difficult to run through. I wanted to experience what birthing used to be like for thousands of years.

It was the week of Thanksgiving in 2014 when labor began on a Tuesday evening. Thinking the baby would be born at least by Wednesday night, I got in 1.5 miles early Wednesday morning around 4am. But labor continued throughout the day and into the night, and actually all Wednesday night, then into Thursday morning and even into Thursday afternoon! I remember it was around noon on Thursday when, through the midst of intense back contractions and starting to push, that I looked at my watch thinking, "Oh good, I still have time to get in my run." Ray was born at 3pm and I was utterly exhausted and fortunately since we were at the birthing center we were able to go home a few hours after he was born. I have never been a night runner, but that was the day I appreciated the ability to run at night! I got out around 8pm and ran 17 minutes which was probably 1.5 miles or so and thus the streak lived on!

My second son was born in December 2016. I felt a little more confident because I ran through pregnancy, labor and after delivery once before, but still one never knows what the birth will be like. This time my family and friends who knew that I ran through it all before didn't give me such a hard time. It was more of a - "this is just what Eliza does, let's see what happens." I did a home birth and even though everyone told me that labor would be easier with the second baby, it was just as excruciating and difficult as the first for me. Labor began on Christmas evening. I ran through labor the next morning. Running through contractions are very similar to running through a muscle cramp, and most runners have had to run through cramps. Clark was born that evening, labor being only 26 hours compared to Ray's 40 hours! So, I had all the next day to rest before doing my run.

Now my boys are four and six and some days it proves even harder to get my run in trying to find the time to get away from them especially through the recent quarantine and becoming a single mom. I am wholly dependent upon my time management skills.

As streak runners, how many excuses could we come up with every day why we can't run that day? It doesn't make us any more special than others in the fact that we still get out the door and run, it's simply the decision that we make every single day. Running can give us a purpose when we have those wayward days of not knowing what to do. Running can give us the headspace to clear our thoughts and give us the ability to reflect on certain situations that we could have handled better. The daily run is essentially about taking that time out of the day to connect with the self. It's not about running to sustain the run streak. It's about how the run sustains us in life!

What a positive message to share with the world.

I have been a part of the SRI/USRSA since 2004 and have witnessed the growth and awareness of run streaks over the years. You would be surprised, however, how many people still don't know about the association, let alone the possibility of running every day themselves.

Many are inspired by running big races, training big miles, setting high goals, and going all in! But this mentality is often followed up by taking weeks, months or even seasons completely off from running. It's like an all or nothing type of mentality. If we only run on the days that we feel good, what if race day comes on a day where we don't feel good? How do we know how to run in these scenarios?

What if we take the approach of committing to something seemingly simple, but potentially more rewarding? What about committing to one measly mile every single day with no mileage or pace goals? Pretty soon the run becomes more than just a sport. By making that decision to run every day despite how we feel emotionally, despite the weather and despite our "busy" schedules, we begin to confront our thought patterns and self-limiting beliefs thereby positively affecting other areas of our life as well.

And so, this is what my Podcast (Daily Run With Za), Instagram (@dailyrunwithza), Facebook group (Women Streak Runners), blog (dailyrunwithza.com) and upcoming book are all about! So far I have had the privilege to interview other streak runners - John Strumsky, co-founder of the USRSA, Mark Washburne, current president of the Streak Runners International, Mark Covert, retired streaker of 45 years, Bob Kraft (The Raven), Miami Beach streaker of over 46 years. Coming soon I hope to interview other women runners continuing to inspire others to start running and challenge themselves to committing to a daily habit.

Thank you for the support and happy running!

Reflections after 11,348 days of Running Every Day
By: Derrick Spafford

I've been asked a number of times how long I've wanted to keep my streak of running every day going, and my answer has always been 'as long as my health is not being put at risk, then I would continue for as long as possible.'

This has recently been put front and centre as a test for me that I will share in the hopes that it helps others.

I have dealt with a number of running injuries and illnesses through my running career, but I've always felt that as long as I moderated my intensity and length of my runs that I could safely do my daily runs.

Sometimes life throws you a curveball though. I've been dealing with a few nagging recurring calf injuries recently, that have been a little more challenging than in the past. Still I felt that it was just more of a tightness and not really any different than a normal muscle strain.

Last month, however, things felt a little different with a throbbing pain in my left calf at times that could not be relieved by stretching, rolling, or self-massage. It actually seemed to feel better after going for a walk or short jog, but only to return again later.

It got to the point where I was in significant pain in my calf, and despite not really wanting to be near a hospital during Covid, I made a trip to the ER at Kingston General Hospital. A D-Dimer test was done, which if normal would indicate no blood clot, but if elevated, then they would ultrasound my leg to see if there was a clot. The test came back higher than normal, so while it still wasn't anything conclusive, an ultrasound was scheduled for the following day.

The ultrasound was administered up and down my left leg, including where the pain had been in the past and other areas. Results came back showing no signs of a clot.

With no obvious reason for my calf pain, I was sent home and told there was nothing wrong, but to keep an eye on it and get it checked out again if it got worse.

I went home and for about a week; things seemed to improve and I felt a little better, but then I started to feel unwell with other discomfort and symptoms setting in, but which I didn't know if they were related or possibly something different. I now had a bit of tightness in my chest, and right shoulder and back. I had been splitting some firewood so wasn't sure if this could have been muscularly related to that or not.

After a worsening night of symptoms, I scheduled a phone consult with my family doctor, who went through the whole checklist of symptoms to try and piece things together. She had originally told me to monitor the symptoms closely, and first course of action should be a Covid test. I had no sooner hung up, when she called back and said she didn't want to risk anything and wanted me to go to the ER again asap as she had a bad feeling about this. I am very glad and extremely lucky I did, as things could have ended much worse.

Following more tests and scans, it was confirmed that I had a pulmonary embolism (blood clot that moved from my calf to my lung), and was admitted to hospital immediately. Some pretty dark thoughts went through my head in those early hours after hearing this. The absolute worst feeling was being so alone and with the memory of Sara driving away and not being able to be with me (due to Covid protocols).

Last day in hospital

The next week was a blur with a steady rotation of fever/chills/sweats, chest pain, difficulty breathing, coughing, pain meds, blood work, imaging, more blood work, (repeat). I only needed to be on oxygen for one night while in hospital and am convinced this was due to my many years of running and strong lungs.

Hospital life was difficult in my small, solitary room. I could see the sky, and concrete buildings, but no signs of nature. Seeing the stars at night was comforting though. Sara was able to visit me finally after the first three days and after having had three negative Covid tests in a row, which was wonderful.

After things stabilized, my oxygen level increased, fever decreased, breathing improved, and I was switched from a high dose blood thinner stomach injections to tablet form. I was told that I would be allowed to go home and continue my rehab as an outpatient.

As much as I can't say enough about the wonderful staff at KGH (especially the incredible nursing team on Connell 3), it was so nice to get home to Sara (and Siku).

I have a long road to recovery, but looking forward to small improvements and hopefully feeling better each day. I've had some damage to my right lung that will not fully repair, but initial thoughts are that I should eventually be able to return to my previous activity level, for which I am grateful for. Only high intensity efforts should be negatively affected for me in the future...so my 400m PB is safe!

So, now that I'm on the other side of the streak, and slowly inching towards recovery, below are a few things I've thought about and know I may be asked...

Did I consider trying to run through this?

Absolutely not. Obviously not an option once admitted to hospital, and would have been even more dangerous for me anyhow. I knew on my last run the day before being admitted to hospital that something was very wrong and I needed help.

Will I start another streak?

No. I felt that I did it safely for over 31 years as I listened to my body, but with rehab and my health being the priority right now, I need to focus on that as I slowly increase my strength and activity level. I'm also looking forward to mixing in more FatBiking and Nordic skiing as well.

Could I have done anything to prevent this?

Not really. I wasn't really the typical case for someone to get a Pulmonary Embolism. Having said that, if I'd asked more about some of my relatives who have had blood clots in the past, it might have raised a few more flags on my early hospital visit about family history and possibly realized earlier.

Is Spafford Health and Adventure still open?

Yes. While I am not currently coaching, Sara is looking after all outgoing orders.

Again, while this isn't how I wanted to see my running streak end, I feel grateful that I had great medical care to allow me to survive this ordeal, and am now looking forward to the challenge to return to health ahead once I recover more.

I hope that by sharing this with others, this may help someone else in the future and save them from having to go through what I have. In short, know your family history and be familiar with potential symptoms of any issues that you may be predisposed to. And, also trust that you know your body best and know if something is potentially wrong.

See you on the trails!

RAVEN KRAFT STREAK HITS 46 YEARS

By: Raven Kraft

This was a strange year or should I say a crazy year. Ok it started out normal. While walking home in early February one evening, however, while checking out a Super Bowl booth on Ocean Drive, a girl ran into me while she was running by in one of those pay for run groups. It jarred my bad back, but thankfully I was alright the next day. She never stopped running or slowed down to check on me even as Priscilla, my girlfriend, yelled at her, "Do you know who you just hit." It wasn't until the next day a bag fell out and I lost my headband I had for 12 years, my glove, my socks, and my last throw away camera. I was even more upset.

In March, we had Spring Break. It was the worst Spring Break ever with lots of fights. I do believe these young people were not here on Spring Break but to party. It all came to a halt on March 17th, when the beach was closed due to the Coronavirus. I was pretty worried what I would do without the cushion on to run on with my severe spinal stenosis. For 2 weeks, I ran on the back beaches where the sand was rocky, uneven with lots of roots. I ran there where I could and the rest of the time on the sidewalks and pathways. Everyday I was on some sand between 3 to 5 miles of my 8-mile run.

I never asked for permission to run on the beach but it turns out I had a lot of supporters I didn't know about. On April 1, the lifeguards, who by this time were not watching the water but sitting at beach entrances, called me aside to tell me an email came from the city and I had permission to run on the beach. I had to run alone on the sand rather than my usual group, which by now was smaller with only the diehards would come to meet me at the 5th Street cross over. Of course, with travel restrictions I had no new runners from other countries after a record 46 new runners in January. In April and May, my running alone was down to 0 new runners.

On my first day on the beach alone, a cop (probably a rookie) kicked me off the beach. The next day I went to Lifeguard Headquarters and got a copy of the email from the city manager and mayor that gave me permission to run on the beach but run alone.

The next 74 days, I ran alone for a total of 6016 miles. There were 4 days included for the July 4th weekend that I also ran alone.

At first it was a bit eerie with no sounds, no footprints on the sand except from the seagulls and pigeons. If a leaf rustled in the wind, I'd hear it. If I heard voices, they came from the ocean in a far-off boat where the wind carried the voices to the shoreline and I could hear the faint sounds. I came up with lots of new song ideas and ended up with 6 new songs about the time and experience.

The first 12 days I found no money – not even a penny. The rest of the 62 days I found $8 and change including a $5 bill on the 4th of July. Craig Davidson would like hearing that.

Then the articles started happening starting with the Miami Herald, the Rutley News, Rise News, and a publication from Brazil. This was followed by a video from Runner's World and later a story. All the while a lifeguard was taking photos of me running on the beach alone. A running friend, who works for Getty Images, took a photo with a drone on a very sunny day with long, long shadows that was used in the ESPN's year end Sports Edition for the week of May 31st.

When the beach was closed so was Muscle Beach, where I'd go to work out on the pull-up bars every day. Priscilla rigged up a bar on our stairway and I never missed a day of pull-ups and push-ups. I even found a tree branch to use in a park across the street.

When the beach opened in June, the runners started coming back but slowly. Without overseas travel - where I averaged about 10 runners a day, we now had an average closer to 5 to 7 runners. During this time, my cat got sick between April 23 and May 23. Sadly, he died when I was running alone on the beach so I had to deal with a broken heart - that was tough.

Because this was a Leap Year and because of some extra miles I ran doing a different route, I decided to shoot for 3,000 yearly miles by my 46th Anniversary Run (December 31) by adding extra tenths to my daily runs. I also turned 70 on October 17th so I thought what a special goal it would be to have 3,000 at 70 plus years old. The most miles I ever ran in a year was 2009 when I also reached 100,000 lifetime total miles. In 2009, I did exactly 3,000.2 miles. In 2020 – you guessed it – I ran 3000.3 miles.

Slowly runners started coming back and by the end of the year I was almost at the usual number of runners per day. I did, however, have fewer runners from other countries where travel was restricted which was most countries.

Of the positive things that happened, I did a voice over for NFL Films about a comparison to a Miami Dolphins football running back and myself. His name is Frank Gore and he's 3rd all time in rushing yards and Hall of Fame bound when he retires. They compared us as we are both towards the end of our careers (or so they had me read). Other positive news, my favorite baseball team, the Los Angeles Dodgers, won the World Series after 32 years. Also, I've been hired to do a series of Podcasts about my life story. The most interesting positive news, however, is I'm recording some of my original songs with my voice, so I can hopefully become the oldest new oldest singer/songwriter after all these years.

I am trying to stay safe in these dangerous times as I know many people who have gotten Covid, runners included. Not one of my runners died but a few were in real bad shape I've heard.

That was my year 2020. What a crazy year it was besides everything else going on in the world, but, as I wrote in a new song, "I'll be there tomorrow, God willing, and the ocean don't rise."

Run free, every day.

“John King Streak Musings”
By: John King

As I write this I am exactly one month away from my 70th birthday. Running has been a daily part of my life for 44 years. During that time, I have completed two daily streaks, one just short of 31 years and my current one of 13 years. The streaks were interrupted by a fractured ankle suffered while running in Hawaii. I was relegated to running in a swimming pool until my ankle healed and I was able to return to my daily run.

I began running when I was 25 after a major life change when I decided that I needed to get healthy as well as change my lifestyle. I would see a friend every week and he would ask me how my running was going. I would quickly assure him that I was not running. Sure enough, the next week he would again ask me how my running was going. After about four weeks of this, I assumed that maybe this was a message that I needed to start running. I was living by a city lake and I went out that first day and ran from one park bench to the next. After huffing and puffing I would continue to run from one park bench to the next. Each day I would add another park bench before I needed to catch my breath until eventually I made it around the entire lake. After that, I was off and running. I found out that I enjoyed running and it gave me a sense of both accomplishment and health as my body got leaner and stronger. I would fantasize that I was finishing the Boston Marathon as I finished the last leg of the lake. That was when I decided that I would run a marathon. I began running every 10K race that was scheduled and found myself getting deeper and deeper into the running community.

In addition to my running I joined the local YMCA and began working out. One day I asked one of the personal trainers how I should train for a marathon. He told me not to do it as I would only hurt myself. Naturally, this only motivated me more to complete a marathon. I turned to Runner's World and developed a training plan. I trained like an animal driven by the desire to complete the marathon. That personal trainer was the first person I thought of when I crossed the finish line at Grandma's Marathon, and naturally not in a fond way. In retrospect I should be grateful to him for lighting a fire in my competitive spirit. I have since completed 40 marathons and 8 ultras and loved every minute of it.

Running has been one of the joys of my life. I enjoyed great friendships and adventures with my running colleagues and training partners in the Don't Forget to Breathe running club in Minnesota and the Do Run Runners in New Jersey. I loved the time I spent as a volunteer, committee member, and board member of the Twin Cities Marathon. Professionally, I traveled extensively and have logged miles in 49 of the 50 states and overseas.

Running taught me lessons that have impacted every area of my life. I became a streak runner because early on I realized that the first day I did not run, the next day became that much easier not to. The great marathoner Eliud Kipchoge aptly described his philosophy I have tried to exercise in all areas of my life. His personal philosophy is "Motivation + Discipline = Consistency." If you have the motivation to accomplish any undertaking and you develop the discipline to complete the effort and work necessary to achieve it, you will be consistent in your efforts and ultimately accomplish your goal. My penalty for applying these philosophies to my life, career and running is to comfortably retire to beautiful Naples, Florida.

My marathoning days are behind me (I'm too lazy to put in the training) but I still run every day. It is as natural to me as getting out of bed. I do not run as fast or as far but I still enjoy running and all that it has done for me. I started running as a young punk and I am going out as an old fart but my running has allowed me to get this far and hopefully a lot farther.

Traversing the Tundra in Pre-historic (and Pre-USRSA) Times By: Steve DeBoer

When did daily streak running begin? Of course, our pre-historic ancestors were on the run constantly. But they did not keep detailed records of their daily tundra traversing, so we are unable to quantify their efforts.

Fast-forwarding to the 20th century, Arthur Newton (1883-1959), the English native who moved to South Africa and set several long-distance running records from 30 to 150 miles in the 1920s and 30s (winning the 56-mile Comrades Marathon 5 times), was noted for putting in a lot of miles. The Comrades is unique in that it switches direction each year, and the “Up” year is definitely more challenging. Newton won in both directions. In the 12 months preparation for his second Comrades marathon in 1923, he ran 8205 km and walked another 2454 km. He often ran twice daily, but it is not clear whether he ran every day for an entire year. Quoting Tim Noakes, from his book, The Lore of Running, “...he aimed to run 100 miles in 6 days of training per week.”

This suggests that Newton may never have been a “streak runner.” Clarence DeMar (1888-1958), who won the Boston Marathon a record 7 times between 1911 and 1930 and competed in 3 Olympic marathons (1912, 1924 and 1928, finishing 3rd in 1924), was also known to train throughout the year. Paavo Nurmi (1897-1973), on the other hand, only trained 5 months out of the year. In his 12 Olympic contests, he got 9 gold and 3 silver medals. He planned to run the marathon in 1932, but the International Amateur Athletic Federation banned him shortly before the Olympics after the Finnish Athletics Federation had cleared him. All marathon contestants protested and asked him to be reinstated, but the ban remained.

Gordon Pirie (1931-1991), the British Olympian of the 1950s, reported running over 250,000 miles in his career (though fellow competitors thought he was probably under 200,000) and is a good candidate for having had a significant running streak. I sent an e-mail to his biographer, Dr. John Gilbody, but never received a reply. I also sent an e-mail to John J. Kelley the Younger (1930-2011), an Olympic marathoner in 1956 and 1960 and winner of the 1957 Boston Marathon, to see if he ever ran daily for 1 year or more. Again, I received no response.

It had been suggested that 1952 Olympic marathoner, Ted Corbitt (1919-2007), probably ran every day for months, if not years at a time. I contacted his son, Gary, by e-mail, who went through Ted's training logs and found he ran 1-2 times daily from Dec 1, 1953 (exactly one year before I was born) to July 25, 1968, when he was mauled by a dog while running.

So, I guess that takes us to the 1960s - December 21, 1964 to be exact. This was the day Ron Hill began his legendary running streak. We know how far Ron (now age 82) has run, since he kept detailed records. It is true there may have been one time he covered less than 1 mile of tundra, but he has set the standard to follow. His streak ended January 28, 2017, due to a heart condition. At 52 years and 1 month, it remains the longest ever in the world that has been documented. Many prominent distance runners were aware of his streak by the early 1970s.

Bruce Mortenson (fellow Minnesotan, former NCAA steeplechase champion with a 2:19:59 best marathon time) and Amby Burfoot (1968 Boston marathon winner) were both college distance runners at that time. They both ran every day, and Bruce thought most of his Oregon teammates did as well. They both had heard about Ron's daily runs. Since their focus was on improving performance and not on keeping a streak going, Bruce could not say how many of his teammates ran every day for 6 months, 1 year, or longer. Bruce checked his log books and found that his first streak started just a few weeks after Hill's, lasting from January to July 1965. Amby recalls he had one streak lasting 2 ½ years from 1966-1968.

When I began to run, March 29, 1968, I knew nothing of streak runners. I just wanted to be in good shape for basketball practice the next fall. But I did have a "streak" personality. I knew my mom kept a journal of what happened in her life. So, in April 1967, I started keeping a diary, which I have added to daily ever since. I did fairly well in school academically, getting straight "A"s in 6th grade. But in 7th grade, Physical Education was graded, and I only rated a "C." So, in the summer of 1967, I decided to start exercising regularly, especially pushups and sit-ups, as I had only been able to complete 5 pushups during the fitness test. By August of 1968, I was doing calisthenics daily, and have missed only a handful of days since. This routine now includes 100 pushups.

Even though I got cut from the basketball team, I decided to keep running (I did make the team the next year). Starting April 9, 1969, I ran every day. I wasn't aware of any standards anyone had set, so I might just run to school or church, less than ½ mile from home. But I managed to go 317 days before spraining my ankle in basketball practice the following February, taking a few days off. I had another streak that ended in June, when I got strep.

My current daily streak began July 20, 1970, when my brother, Dave, and I ran two miles after getting back from a family vacation to the West Coast, during which I recovered from the strep infection. The USRSA minimum of 1 mile per day has been met ever since June 7, 1971. Dave began running daily a minimum of 3 miles the summer of 1972 (except for one day in 1976 when he ran only a mile after being injured). A neighborhood friend, John Magnuson, who started the 4th of July races in our community in 1974, began running daily in 1977. At that time, Dave and I were not aware of who or how many others in the country were doing the “streak,” but found it a good way to keep in peak fitness. John was aware of Ron Hill’s streak in the 70s, but I was not.

After returning home in 1980, following a two-year stint in the Peace Corps in Ecuador, I began subscribing to Runner’s World and by the mid-80s read about Ron Hill. In 1987, I cut out a short article that mentioned some other streak runners – Bob Hensley, Ken Young, and Jimmy Behr. In the next year or two, I read about Mark Covert, Bob Ray, Robert Kraft, Stephen Reed, and Jim Pearson. So, I figured I might have the longest running streak in Minnesota and possibly the 6th longest in the country.

But it was not until 1998, when James Raia interviewed me for an article in the RRCA newsletter about streak runners, entitled, “Doing the Streak,” that I learned about George Hancock and his Running Streak project. George and Ken Young were also interviewed for that article. In 1994, George had put together a list of 51 streak runners, mostly from the eastern part of the US. Bob Ray headed the list, but it did not include Mark, Bob, Jim, Ken or me. Don Slusser (1972) and Walt Byerly (1974) were the only others listed having begun their running daily before 1977.

I contacted George and got on his 1998 list. By the time of the 2nd issue of The Streak Registry in 2001, only a few runners who started their streaks before 1977 were missing. Three more were discovered by 2010 (Jon Simpson Fall 2007, Nick Morganti Spring 2009, Gary Jones Spring 2009). Not surprisingly, these three knew nothing about other streak runners, not even Ron Hill.

Jon began running to strengthen his leg weakened by polio and credits the running with allowing him to still be able to walk at age 71. Nick wanted to qualify for the 1000-mile club at his high school, which he did by running every day the summer before his senior year. Gary developed bleeding ulcers while playing college baseball. He decided he needed to quit baseball and immediately started running every day instead.

I read an article online in 1999 that had been published in 1977 in Runner’s World magazine about streak running, by Nick Marshall. Nick was definitely aware of Ron’s daily runs and even quoted him in the article. I used that information and contacted fellow runners in the US Streak Association to piece together the following First Decade of US Streak Running, though now knowing about Ted Corbitt, it is really the Second Decade. Of those who responded, a few knew about Ron Hill’s streak, but not until well after their own streaks began.

We’ll start with Ted (1953), Bruce (1965), Amby (1966) and Bob Ray (April 1967). Bob, of course, stands out as his streak lasted much longer. I have talked to Bob about how his streak began. He had begun running during his lunch break with a few fellow employees. One woman mentioned having run every day for 2 weeks, and he decided he could do that, too. Little did he realize at that time, how long his daily runs would last. He was the first to make it 20 years, 30 years, all the way to 38 years! He knew of no other streak runners until fellow Marylanders Chuck Brumley and John Roemers III & IV began their streaks in 1977 and 1978. He did not know about Ron Hill’s streak until Ron came to run the Baltimore marathon in the late 70s.

Mark Covert was next, beginning July 23, 1968 (two days before Ted Corbitt’s daily runs ended). He was the first to run every day for 40 and 45 years, stopping on his 45th anniversary in 2013. In 1969, besides me, Jon Sutherland (May) and Bob Hensley (November) started streaks. Jon ran with Mark in Junior College and found out Mark had running daily for a full year two months after Jon started. They both knew of Ron Hill’s daily runs. Nick Marshall had a high school acquaintance, Bruce McLanahan, who ran for 500 days in a row in the late 1960s. Nick also mentioned that Bruce Dern, the movie actor, had a running streak by 1970, but I later confirmed with his publicity agent that it began in 1973. Thus, we can say 8 persons had run daily for a year before the end of 1970, 9 if my 317-day string is included.

Bruce Mortenson began another streak in January 1970 that lasted over 2 years. Jim Pearson (February), William Benton (March), Ken Young (July), and Herb Fred (August) all commenced daily runs in 1970. 1971 added Jon Simpson and Alex Galbraith (as well as my continuous 1-mile minimum streak). Don Slusser, Ed Sandifer, Gary Jones, Dave DeBoer, Park Barner, Dave Hamilton, Steve Gathje and Paul Driskill (whose 35-year unregistered streak ended in 2007, when he was hit by a car) got their start in 1972. The streak total was now 24; 20 of whom were still doing daily runs at the end of 1972.

Here are runners who began their streaks over the next four years:

1973	1974	1975	1976
Nick Marshall (PA)	Walter Byerly (TX)	Jimmy Behr (NY)	Barry Abrahams (NE)
Nick Morganti (CA)	Eddy DeCook (PA)	Raven Kraft (FL)	Bill Anderson (TX)
Paul Ladniak (WA)	Jay Kammerzell (WA)	Kurt Kroemer (MD)++	Geza Feld (NY)
Bruce Dern (CA)	John Kelley (PA)	Dick Vincent (NY)	Stephen Reed (ME)
Richard Westbrook (GA)*	Ron Kmiec (MA)	Charles Hodge (OR)*	William Stark (MO)
		John Liepa (IA)+	Rob Zarambo (PA)
		Bob Wood (PA)	Allen Kayner (MI)#

* Richard and Charles did not certify their daily runs until the last few years.

 Mentioned by Nick Marshall in 1977 Runner's World article.

+ John ran daily for over 2 1/2 years, skipped 1 day (1-1-77) and has run every day since then.

++ Kurt told John Strumsky that some of his runs were to the mailbox and back (less than 1/2 mile). So, his running streak does not meet the 1 mile minimum set by the USRSA.

Friend of Lawrence Sundberg, never registered his streak, which ended in 2000.

Since he missed the time frame by less than 24 hours, I also added Lawrence Sundberg (1-1-77, MI at the time). As of July 1, 1977, there were at least 49 men in the US who had at least one running streak of 6 months or longer (Lawrence having just reached 6 months), 38 with active streaks. Two Canadians (Dominik Macheck 2-14-1974 of Ontario & Simon Laporte 11-10-1975 of Quebec) were also running daily. Macheck's streak lasted over 27 years. Laporte is still active at 45 years having recently certified his streak with Streak Runner's International. Mark Kushner (friend of Mark Covert), Jay Helgeson, Brian Maxwell and Bill Monheit were running daily in CA, though it is not certain what year they began in the 70s.

Of those 38 Americans who had active streaks in 1977, there remain 9 who still maintain their daily run, all for more than 44 years. Not coincidentally, those are the first nine names on the United States Active Running Streak List: Sutherland, Pearson, DeBoer, Galbraith, Westbrook, Kraft, Behr, Hodge, and Liepa (John L being the only one of the nine who is on his second registered running streak). Sadly, Bill Anderson is no longer on that list, having run for the last time on December 22, 2020, passing away on January 2, 2021. Others, such as Mortenson, Benton, Morganti, Kammerzell, Kmiec, Abrahams, Feld and Stark, have gone on to register their 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, even 6th streak after January 1977. The now deceased Dr. Fred has had ten stints of daily runs, his last one ended at age 86.

We were a much less diverse group back then. No women were streaking (there were some women "streakers," but they typically only did sprint distances). Eileen Rountree started in October 1977. Julie Maxwell and Margaret Blackstock did not begin their daily runs until 1978 and 1979. In 1977, we were between 15-48 years old (Kurt Kroemer starting at age 14, Herb Fred was 48 by then). In the last few years, we have had streak runners from 4 years old, all the way to 86.

Nineteen states were represented back then, as opposed to all 50 plus DC now. North Dakota and West Virginia are the only 2 states that have never had a woman streaking over the 67 years since Ted Corbitt began his daily runs. NOTE: Now only ND, as Katie Yoder of WV registered her daily runs on 2/1/21! Nine of those 49 pre-historic runners were from Pennsylvania, but only three of them were still running in 1977. The states with the most active streak runners were California (5), Washington and Minnesota (4 each). Washington (3.78 million population in 1977) and Minnesota (3.99 million in 1977) were the only states that had at least 1 streak runner per million population. Minnesota took the lead with John King and John Magnuson starting daily runs before June 1977. Interestingly, Minnesota remains the state with the highest percentage of streak runners 44 years later both in the total and active categories.

By 1977, few streak runners knew of fellow daily runners besides Ron Hill. Mark Covert and Jon Sutherland ran in college together and knew about each other's streaks. Steve & Dave DeBoer, and their friend, John Magnuson, knew of each other's running streaks. Steve Gathje thought his coach, Bruce Mortenson, ran every day, but never talked to him to verify he was a streaker. Jay Kammerzell was coached by Jim Pearson, so they became aware of each other's streaks. Nick Marshall had known several streak runners when he wrote his article in 1977, but by then, he was the only daily runner still active in the bunch.

In the next three years, US streak running really took off (and I don't mean the clothes). At least another 69 individuals, including Eileen, Julie, and Margaret, joined the ranks by January 1, 1980, putting us at 118 total (123 worldwide)! Other international runners included Frank Clarke (South Africa) Aug 1977 - Dec 2019 and Rick Rayman (Canada) Dec 1978 - present. And though many of these first 123 knew that Ron Hill had started daily running before them, none actually knew it when they started or were motivated to start because of him.

When George Hancock published the first list of daily runners the United States in December 1994, there were 51 names on it, only one being a woman (Margaret Blackstock). At that time and even now, he believed that running streaks were common and 51 names only scratched the surface. When I add up all the individuals who now have registered running streaks that began by June 1994 and other daily runners before then who have not registered, the total is 123 + 220 = 343 (15 being women and 9 citizens in foreign countries). I suspect that number still does not represent the half of it. Only 34 on George's 1994 Inaugural list ended up registering with the Streak Association. Of the 58 unregistered runners I have identified, 17 come from his list and another 15 from George's later lists, including the ones published in the Streak Registry before the 1-mile minimum requirement was set.

Twenty-two states were represented on that first list, most in the eastern half of the country, with OH having the most (6). CA, MD, and PA had 5 each while MA and TX had 4. Looking at my list of 343 daily runners, those 6 states are in the top 15, but the order is somewhat different. In particular, MN, NY, FL and MI have large numbers but very few on George's 1994 compilation. Keep in mind, these numbers include retired streaks. Six states (MS, OK, NM, RI, UT, VT) and DC had no identified individuals running daily by then. Eleven more had only 1 streaker at the time (AR, AK, DE, HI, KS, KY, LA, ME, MT, SC and WV). Here are numbers for the other 33 states, with women who began daily runs before mid-1994 in parentheses under the TOTAL RUNNERS column. Only CA, FL and MN had had more than 1 female doing it daily with 11 other states having one. FL had 2 because Barb Latta of NC lived there in the winter for several years. The far-right column looks at ranking by population.

It is interesting that 7 of the 8 states with streaking rates of 2.5 or more per million population were in the northern part of the US, though Oregon's climate is not as severe as the others. In the Winter 2021 issue of The Streak Registry, I listed the 6 states with the highest percentage of active streak runners as of April 2020 (MN, WY, NH, MA, IA, and DC in that order), so the pattern is similar, with 5 of the top 6 states being climactically cooler. Maybe streak runners have personalities that promote perseverance, no matter how they feel, how many limbs function normally, or how inclement the weather is. The level of mental derangement necessary will not be discussed. :)

As the Streak Community continues to grow, especially the SCSs (Senior Citizen Streakers - 36 of our top 50 active daily runners are 65 or older and only 3 are under 60), I think I have an answer to the question, "Is there life after a running streak?"

This is what I wrote on the topic ten years ago (end of 2010): Taking the list of runners from our group and adding in others I am aware of, I come up with about 410 individuals who have run for at least 365 consecutive days. Of those, 213 have kept their first streak lasting 12 months or more intact. The others (48%) have had one or more running streaks broken without resulting in significant psychological abnormalities (at least from our perspective). Of those with daily runs having ended, I am aware of 33 runners who have a 2nd streak and 14 more with 3 streaks of 1 year or longer. We seem to be a fairly well-balanced group of individuals who make significant sacrifices to continue our streaks but are able to adjust if it happens to end.

Fast forward to beginning of 2021: Taking just the US Streak Association list (not international) and adding in others I am aware of that did not certify, I come up with 3695 individuals who have run for at least 365 consecutive days. Of those, 1841 have kept their first streak lasting 12 months or more intact. The others (50%) have had one or more running streaks broken without resulting in significant mental derangement. Of those with daily runs having ended, I am aware of at least 235 runners who have had a 2nd, 3rd, or even 4th streak that met the Streak Association guidelines.

When comparing numbers ten years ago vs. current, there has been a 9-fold increase in both total daily runners and those who are actively streaking for the first time, with half of the total ending at least one string of certified daily runs. Those with multiple streaks have dropped from 11.9% to 6.2%. But if I remove those who have been streaking less than 2 years (28 people on the list end 2010 vs. 1908 end 2020), the multiple streak percentage is much closer - 12.8% ten years ago and 12.2% now.

When restricting the analysis to those who are most addicted (I mean dedicated) to the daily running cause (20 years or more), we find 101 active in US and 6 active in other countries (same numbers as 10 years ago, though not all the same individuals). There are now 104 with 20 or more years daily runs retired (includes Ron Hill and Frank Clarke outside of US), compared to 46 with 20 year or longer streaks retired end of 2010. Of those 107-active world-wide, 4 had previous streaks lasting over 1 year. So, 51% of this group has had to adapt to the ending of a streak (32% ten years ago). I think hope springs eternal in the cardiovascular system of many of us that we will be able to go for a run on the last day of our lives. Of course, we have had several members who had to quit due to medical issues related to the heart, including, very sadly, Chuck Brumley, who suffered a fatal heart attack the same day after his last run in 2010. Since I wrote that last sentence 10 years ago, 2 more of our group, Roger Carlson (2015) and Mike Halloran (2019) died of cardiac issues on their last run. All 3 of them had active running streaks on the days they left us.

Besides the 235 runners with multiple streaks already mentioned, there are 7 individuals who have run daily for 1 year or longer at least 5 times. Howard Feldman of Houston, TX (lived in MO during his first 3 daily running periods) is 70. His longest streak was almost 9 years (Jan 1998 to Dec 2006). His 5th streak is currently active, just having passed 3 years. Jay Kammerzell is 63 and has always lived in WA (#2 active streak runner Jim Pearson was his high school coach; Jay's first streak started in 1974), with the longest of his retired streaks being 23 years (1983-2006). His daughter, Stephanie, also has a retired streak. Gordy Strickland is 74 and now lives in MN. He first ran daily starting in 1981, his longest running streak was 10 years (1990-2000), he has lived in IL, IA, WI, and NE during his daily runs, and just reached 4 years on his 5th streak. Brad Kautz, age 63, now lives in NM, but lived in MN for 3 of his running streaks and part of the 4th one (which was his longest 2011-2018, over 7 years). He is currently running daily since September 2018.

There are three streak runners who have more than 5 streaks. Bruce Mortenson is 77, living in MN. Though he has not certified all his streaks, he has run at least 12 months daily 6 different times in the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s and now, his longest, since August 2011. Terrell Worley is 60 and lives in CA. He has had 7 periods of daily runs, the first beginning in 1982 and his 7th is currently active since Dec 31, 2015. Two of his streaks lasted over 8 years. That brings us to Herb Fred of Houston, TX, who besides being the first streak runner to run over 200,000 miles (253,010 when he quit running in 2016) and the second streak runner to reach age 80 while running daily, has 10 retired streaks of 1 year or longer, the longest being about 8 years, the last ending in April 2016, 2 months before his 87th birthday. He switched from treadmill running to indoor cycling because of balance issues after turning 87 but was still exercising when he died in Dec 2018, age 89 1/2.

So, yes (as I wrote end of 2010), there is life after daily running for 1, 5, 10, 20, 30, 40 and 42 years. The question to answer in another decade is whether there is life after running continuously for 50 years! Stay tuned. Updated ten years later (Jan 2021), there is life after running every day for 45, 50 and 51 years as well, at least in the US. If Jon Sutherland makes it to July 4, 2021, he will pass Ron Hill and have the longest running streak ever recorded.

PS. For the first 66 years of streak running, the US has been the country with the highest percentage of people running daily. Even one year ago (1/1/20), their rate was 7.7 per million residents; Sweden was 2nd with 4.4 per million (44 streaks). If only considering people on the active list, those rates were 5.0 US and 4.0 Sweden, since Sweden had only 4 retired streaks. However, in the last year, Sweden has added 166 new and 20 retired streaks, now totaling 230 as of 1/20/21, which is 22.2 per million. The US has added 1500 (4065 total), but that rate is only 12.3 per million. If only counting active streakers, Sweden's rate is 19.8 and US's is 8.1. Maybe that partially explains the high rate in MN - lots of Swedes (10% of population)! This compares to Canada's active rate (90) of 2.6 and United Kingdom's active rate (108) of 1.6 per million.

PPS. MN became the first state to have 140 active registered daily runners at one time the last week in January. CA had 138 and TX 136. There is only one country (outside of the US of course) that has more than MN and that is (you guessed it) Sweden with 205 active on 1/29/21! Based on 2020 populations, that works out to 24.75 streak runners per million residents in MN and 19.75 in Sweden. No other state can top Sweden for current daily runners as the next 3 highest are NH (15.7), MA (11.6), and IA (10.4). If we include retired streak runners, the streakiest five are MN (38.7), WY (25.9), Sweden (22.2), NH (21.7) and MA (17.4). WY has 15 total but only 6 are currently active.

The 70,000 Mile Club

A large number of streak runners (at least 151 that I have been able to confirm) have accumulated over 70,000 miles running in their lifetime. Here is an update of their total and streak mileage. Herb Fred ran more miles than any other person with verified records that I am aware of.

Darryl Beardall had run an estimated 280,000 miles by the end of 2012 but has not been able to locate all his running logs to verify his total. He was only able to confirm his 2007-2018 mileage. He did not run on Sundays, so is not a streak runner. He ran the Olympic Marathon Trials in 1960, 1964, 1968 and 1972.

Dallas Robertson, Bill Rodgers, and Suzanne Ray are also not streak runners, but I have included them because of their high mileage totals. Rodgers won both the Boston Marathon and New York Marathon four times. He twice set the American Record in the marathon, the first time while winning the 1975 Boston Marathon (2:09:55) and the second time while winning the 1979 Boston Marathon (2:09:27).

Don Ritchie, British ultrarunner, who was not a streak runner, logged 208,100 miles from 1962 to 2011. His still standing track and absolute 100K world record (6:10:20, set over 40 years ago) was achieved in a track 100K race. Ritchie's halfway split in that race was under three hours, the first time anyone had run that fast for 50K as a split in a longer race. It was the longest standing world record in all of Track & Field until broken by Nao Kazami (6:09:14) on 6/24/18. Don also held WRs for 100M on the track (11:30:51) and 100M on the road (11:51:12).

With Darryl, Dallas, Bill, Suzanne and Don, there are 156 runners now mentioned, though only 151 are part of the streaker "Club."

* have not had their running streaks certified by the US Running Streak Association; Chester T was certified but then dropped from the list; his mileage is from when he was on the certified list.

 not streak runners; Darryl developed L-4 pinched nerve April 2018 – since then has not been able to run but exercises with a walker).

+ money found in 2020 and since his streak began – has found money every day he has run since 1983 except for the week last April he was in the hospital!

The person with the most miles in 2020 was Carolyn Mather (7165). Those with the most miles who have a current running streak in 2020 were Woody Woodburn (6711) & Dave Dial (6506).

I probably did not get everyone who qualifies. Please send your data if you have surpassed (or will this year) 70,000 running miles, at (stephen.william.deboer@gmail.com) and I'll include you in the next update.

STREAKING CHANGED OUR LIVES

By: Jeffrey and Jami Downs

Hello streak runners! You are amazing people who inspire and motivate us in ways that only you, who have been streak running, intimately know and understand. Almost six years ago we discovered the running streak association. We had been running on and off for years. To keep running we would sign up for races from 5Ks to 50Ks. However, signing up for the next race eventually lost its luster and our running waned from a weekly routine to an every-so-often adventure.

That all changed in March of 2015 when we read an article about Jeff and Diane Shumway who had been streak running for ten years. We read with interest and enthusiasm about the United States Running Streak Association and how people from all over the world had running streaks. We were motivated and inspired to try this “new” way of running, to change our focus from finishing the next race to running every day. What we didn’t know then is that this revolutionary way of running would change our lives in magnificent and fantastic ways than what we could have ever imagined.

Our “running” streak started March 23, 2015 and continues today; however, we do have to state for the record that our running streak does not qualify for the running streak registry. Unlike you great runners, we decided we needed to do it a little differently. We decided that our streak would be to run or walk at least one mile daily six days a week. This streak has quite literally changed our lives.

300 days into our streak we discovered through a series of events that involved teeth, dentists, dental hygienists, and dental floss, that Streaking was much more than what we ever thought it would be. We learned, what you know innately, that a streak is missing tool in the tool belt of personal and professional growth. We learned that a streak is the true power behind the engine of success and streaking is the operational system of consistency.

For years experts and researchers have claimed habits are the secret sauce to progress and growth. This is a hoax. The real secret sauce to professional and personal growth is the streak! You know this because whenever we talk with streak runners, they talk about all the other streaks they have in their life. In fact, to degrade a streak by calling it a habit is heresy. Streaks are intentional conscious activities that promote powerful progress in a person's life and to say they are automatic degrades the work energy and effort you employ daily to become who you want to be. Growth is never automatic, it is always intentional.

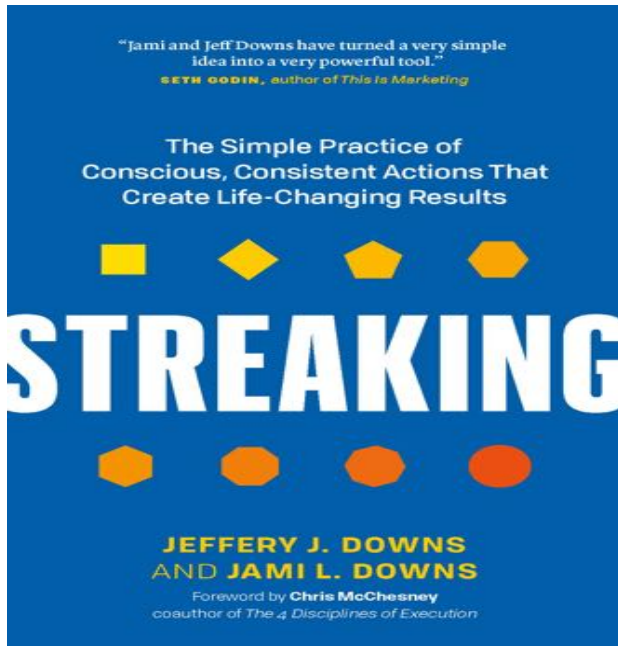

With this in mind we determined to discover or uncover the power of the streak. From our research we learned that people who are highly successful in any field employ streaks. We learned that there are three laws to streaking and that when a person learned and followed these laws, they successfully set up streaks that changed their life. We learned so much that we decided we needed to publish a book and we did. The title of the book is "Streaking: The Conscious Consistent Actions That Create Life-Changing Results."

Thank you streak runners for showing us what we needed to become who we want to be through Streaking. Your dedication and devotion to the greatest sport of all time, running, is simply inspiring. You are amazing people who have changed the world and the movement you started 21 years ago has and will continue to inspire not only thousands but millions.

What started as a running streak has become a powerful tool to become who you want to be!

The laws of streaking, detailed in this book, unlock consistency not only in running, but in every area of life.

Thank you, fellow streak runners, for showing everyone the power of consecutive consistency. This book details what you know innately.

Purchase your copy of the Streaking book at Amazon, Barnes & Noble, or Indie Book resellers, and download the Streaking app at the Apple App Store or Google Play!

"I have been setting "laughably simple" streaks for myself and sharing the technique with my coaching clients and seeing some seriously complex results! When dreaming big, the only way to get started is simply. So when setting these small first steps I say "if it doesn't make you laugh, it's not simple enough."

ANDREW BRADT'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

Just hit my 9 years running streak and celebrated it by running @ 9.9 AVG speed for 1.25 miles and then 9.25 miles intervals.

This year has been the easiest of the 9, not having to wake up early for all day meetings or travel. I was lucky enough to run in Grand Cayman and add it to the list in late Feb, but the one downside is not adding new areas and stories to my run adventure.

The best is seeing my 8-year old daughter start her run streak and is now over 250 days in a row. I just won my company's 5k for United Way on Oct 30th in Miami with a time of 17:52. That was my fastest 5k since I ran in college, so take that turning 40 this year! Keep streaking my run family. The inspiration is so infectious in the best of ways.

WILLIAM ROGERS' STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

My run streak began with my sister asking me if I wanted to run at least one mile every day from Thanksgiving to New Years. I was not a runner. My sister is. Eager to prove myself, I decided to take on this challenge.

After one month, the bet was 20 to the person still standing. My first run was a community turkey trot. When I first started, I stuck with the one mile every day. Soon I had the energy to do more. Long story short, I have now run 15 5k races, 7 10k races, one half-marathon, and one 15k trail race that I won! Now, most days I run 3 miles or more. Sometimes much more.

I've run in countless places and situations. I ran on a trail near the hospital after my wife gave birth on two separate occasions. I ran in a hurricane, a snow storm, the hottest months that Georgia can throw at me. Many days I ran pushing a stroller with my 2-year old and now a double stroller with my 2 and 4-month old.

Most days I run the same stretch of monotonous landscape, the neighborhood across the street. Using this time as reflection has become an important part of my day. A necessity. My 5-year mark lands on Thanksgiving this year, where I started 5 years ago.

To say I am thankful for this run streak is an understatement. In the 5 years I have been running, my now 11-year old has started cross country and track and excels at both. Soon, he will be faster than I am, but right now I am savoring all our runs together. I won the 20.

PHILLIP HAWLEY'S STREAK HITS 21 YEARS

Just like everyone else, this year has had its share of challenges for me. In August I had a pair of thermal ablation procedures on my legs to alleviate the pain from blood pooling in my ankles.

It took months to get close to back to normal. I'll probably lose twenty seconds a mile for good on training runs but I had kept my college pace for over a decade afterward.

There are benefits to going a little slower. The cold doesn't hurt my fingertips quite as much and running doesn't take as much out of me.

JAY EITELJORGE'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

I had no idea where things would lead when I decided to start streaking! I started on November 28, 2013 when I saw something about the Runner's World Holiday Streak. The goal was to run every day from Thanksgiving to New Year's in order to help keep people motivated during the cold, Winter months.

Shortly after starting the streak, I heard about the USRSA and what that entailed. I decided to try for a year. Mission accomplished. So, I then set a goal of 500 days, then 1,000. Then I realized that I really didn't have a reason to stop. I had my health and was able to keep it going, so that's what I did.

The streak has helped me become a better runner. I am sure to listen to my body and take easy run days at least a couple times a week or more often if needed. The streak has also helped me connect with many people that I may not have otherwise made a connection.

My mileage has increased a lot since starting the streak. The first year of my streak, I completed 841.13 miles. This year, I decided to challenge myself more than I ever have in the past. My goal was 2,020 miles and I decided to go for at least 2 miles every day. As of this writing, the culmination of year 7, I currently have 2,200.6 miles.

I set mileage PRs all over the place. I set my highest daily total of 40 miles (plus two 30-mile days), my highest weekly total of 100 miles (I also had a week of 91.5 miles) and I set a monthly mileage PR of 300 miles in May...after just setting that PR in April with 260 miles. I set a marathon PR in March, by over 10 minutes, on an elementary school track because I was not going to just stop training or not see the result of that training. I set a half marathon PR by nearly 5 minutes at a (rare) live race. I set a 5k PR by about 20 seconds and finally ran a sub 20-minute 5k at a live race.

As we all know, this year has been different. A pandemic that brought on a lot of uncertainty in our general lives, a lot of canceled races, and a lot of "What now?" But I knew the answer. Keep going!

The milestones would have been a lot different, and probably not attainable, without 3 people (pictured, I'm the tall one) that have stuck with me through these uncertain times. We were brought together by way of the Fishers Running Club. We continued running together through this pandemic, keeping the circle small, keeping each other informed of any possible reason to separate for a period of time. We count on each other to not only get through these weird times, but to thrive. Grateful for this group that tells me I'm crazy but then figures out ways to help or push me a little more. I am very grateful for the health and ability to keep this streak going and to keep piling on the miles with just over a month left of 2020.

There are people who will run further, faster, more and better than I will. But that will not stop me from pushing forward and constantly challenging myself. Can't wait to see what happens next year.

MEG BRAITHWAITE'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

I did a 7-mile run today [28 November 2020] to cap off 7 years of running at least a mile a day. I got lucky; it was right around freezing today and not super windy. I'll take every one of these nice days while they last. I know the -35°C windchills are coming and I'll run then too. I don't even really think about it anymore.

I don't schedule my run, but it fits somewhere in my day and really, I think there's only been one day in this streak when I really probably should not have run. It's that simple. Put on my shoes and get out the door. Go run!

ALLISON VANLOON'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

It's my runniversary! For five years, I have run at least one mile every day without missing a single day. Here are the streak numbers:

- Shortest run: 1 mile
- Longest run: 13.1 miles
- Day started: November 26, 2015
- Length of streak: 5 years or 1462 days
- Total mileage: 3896.25 miles
- Coldest outdoor run: -24 degrees air temp
- Hottest outdoor run: 96 degrees (feels like 106)
- Pairs of running shoes: 8
- Shoes worn during run: running shoes, sandals, winter boots, dress shoes (some of these were smarter choices than others)
- Running injuries that did not stop the streak: feet, shin splints, knee, elbow, sickness, skinned knees and hands
- Falls on ice or pavement: 4 (only 1 major fall)
- States run in: 15
- Number of years I want to continue the streak: Unknown, but I'm still loving it!

REBECCA BIESBROUCK'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I began my run streak five years ago when I saw a post by Runner's World about running at least one mile every day from Thanksgiving to New Year's Day. I've always liked to run, but I thought I should be more consistent. The run streak was a perfect solution. I just kept going and hope to keep going!

I usually run around my neighborhood or at our local river walk. I am lucky to have a treadmill to use, but I prefer the fresh air and freedom of running outside. As streakers know, there are times when keeping the streak isn't easy, but I'm thankful that I have been able to.

I would like to thank my loving wife who has provided unwavering support for this running streak. I would also like to thank citystrides.com for their great software program that allows me to see all my runs on one map at one time. I just finished year 2 of my running streak!! 2020 has been rough, and I haven't been able to do any races this year, which has been a major bummer. But, I still kept my streak going!

During the early months of COVID/ quarantine, my weekly mileage was actually higher than it's ever been, and keeping all this up has been a source of sanity during this strange time.

I ran over 2000 miles this year, making my 2-year total well over 4000. Can't wait to mark off year 3!

BRIE MCSHERRY'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

When I started my run streak on 12/1/15- all I was looking for was some sort of motivation to push me out the door during the Holiday season...a time when it's often easy to come up with excuses not to get out there.

After the initial 31 days, I decided I'd try for 100 days - after all, it was still winter in MN and I knew the extra motivation would come in handy. 100 days turned into 6 months, 6 months turned into 1 year...and now here I am celebrating 5 years.

Years 1 & 2 were set at least 1 mile each day, years 3-5 have been at least 2 miles daily (most days, many more) with a grand total of 12,384 miles covered over the time.

It's taught me so much about consistency over motivation and how all you really need to do is talk yourself into starting, because once you are moving- it's never really so bad!

I'm so thankful for the lessons I've learned during these last 5 years, and look forward to where this streak will continue to.

CHRISTINE CROOKE'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

This past year has been very busy for me. I just completed my sixth year of my streak. My next goal is to get to my seventh year. Thankfully this has been an injury free year. First time in quite a long time.

I have cut back my miles for several reasons. One: because I was tired of getting injured all the time and running with pain. Two, the better reason: I became a grandmother this past year. I have a beautiful granddaughter and I enjoy spending as much time with her as possible. When the virus hit last spring my daughter and the baby came to spend time with us, as her husband is an essential worker and they did not want to possibly expose them to the virus. So there were many one milers during that time. Babies don't really sleep like "babies" and they can be exhausting. But anytime I get to spend with the baby is precious.

I look forward to continuing my streak. Once the virus is gone I hope to sign up for some races. Not sure which ones, but looking forward to running in a couple. Streak on and may 2021 bring only good news!!!!

DAVID PHARR'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

Year 11 of my running streak has been one of the most difficult probably since the streak started. Early on I was plagued with Plantar Fasciitis. I am grateful that I have never been truly "injured" with my streak thus far, but the PF was a very painful experience. I came to realize that the number one way to help it was by taking some time off. However, having a decade long running streak that I wanted to keep, I was going to do everything in my power not to miss a day.

11 years ago, when I started this thing, it was just going to be for 100 days in order to stay committed, start a good habit, and lose some weight by running every day for at least two miles. But this past year with my PF the 2 mile a day streak ended and I settled with one mile a day in hopes to let my foot heal and to be able to run bigger miles again.

Come pandemic and signing up for a Virtual race across TN (GVRAT), I decided the other option was to just run on my foot until it didn't hurt any more. I ended up completing the virtual challenge in under 40 days, and my foot still hurt. After more stretching and treatment, the foot is finally somewhat better.

Year 11 was not great for training or racing. But with a new year came a new commitment to training as I plan to run Big Horn 100 in June of 2021. The streak lives on. Happy running to all you other streakers.

NICOLE VAN ECK'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

Today [30 November 2020] was my 8-year streakaversary! This year has been a rough one. Not only with covid and the cancellation of races and clubs; this year I was diagnosed with fibromyalgia. My mileage has dropped and my weight has increased. However, my doctors have all agreed (finally!) that carrying on my runstreak is the healthiest thing for me!

I'm still learning to reframe my running to accept slower, shorter runs. I'm also learning to be grateful that I can still run every day with a chronic pain disease!

I'm not great at the word things, but I hope I can keep going strong and share more updates in the future!

BARBARA LATTA'S STREAK HITS 37 YEARS

This has been a challenging year for me as I know that it has been for all of you. The first part of my streak year of 37 years was a "regular" month of December. My husband and I took a trip to Italy, Greece and Turkey. Greece and Turkey were two more different countries in which I have run.

I have run in all seven continents. Yes I ran in Antarctica. I have run in all 50 states and all 100 counties of North Carolina.

In January 2020, I did have the opportunity to run in one race called Run for Young, in which I placed third. In February 2020, I ran in two races and placed first in both. In March through September all of our races were canceled. October 31, I ran Trick or Trick race which had a different start. All runners started a minute apart. There were no people on the course to direct runners. I ran one circle two times because I missed a turn. I still came in third place.

There were many Virtual Races in this area for me to run. In March 2020, I ran one Virtual Race which was a 10K. This is my usual length of run most mornings so I just timed myself specifically one morning. There were no awards for first, second, or third place. We did get a shirt which we had to pick up later.

In April 2020, I also ran a Virtual 5K race. I was told I came in first in my age group. We also received a shirt. In May 2020, I ran one Virtual 5K race. Again, I was listed as first place in my age group. We received neither an award nor a shirt for this race.

The month of June brought a 5K and a 10K Virtual races. I really was missing being at a real race by this time. July had one Virtual 5K and August passed with three Virtual Races. I also did a Virtual Bike Race.

I kept training for a ten-mile American Tobacco Trail Race which I hoped would take place in October and a Half Marathon which would be in November.

By September, race directors were active again. I ran in four Virtual Races. I was very disappointed in October that the American Tobacco Trail race of 10 miles was canceled. I did participate in 3 Virtual 5K races.

On October 31, I ran the Trick or Treat Race. We started one minute apart. We received a bag of candy and shirt at the end of the race. No one was on the course directing traffic and I ran one loop two times. I still came in third place but there were no awards for age groups.

In November 2020, the Marathon and Half Marathon Races were canceled. I had run either the marathon or the half since the beginning of the City of Oaks Race started. This year I ran a Virtual Half Marathon. For this first place I received a hoodie.

In November, I also ran Turkey Trot and Gobblers Races. Both were 5K races. I also am participating in a 266-mile Virtual Run in the Winter Wonder Race.

This month of December I am registered for the 12 Days of Christmas run in which we do different runs such as by a lake, by a gym, when you hear a bird singing, run with a friend, pass a music store, a night to see Christmas lights. This has been an interesting challenge. I am also registered for my second 5K race when each runner starts a minute apart.

God has blessed me with excellent health this year. I have escaped the COVID-19 Virus. I do wear a mask when I am out of the house. I am enjoying running day even if I cannot race.

CHRISTOPHER BIELINSKI'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

Year #9 started off with so much promise as I had signed up for four marathons, a couple 10ks, and a triathlon. And then February rolled around and one by one they all got cancelled.

There is nothing I could do about that so I figured out some other running activities to take their place. I did a virtual Colorado trail race that lasted most of the summer.

I was fortunate enough to be able to run one in person race, the Kenai River Marathon in Kenai, AK in September and took 2nd place in my age group. For someone who travels a fair amount, it was really nice to get out of the house after being at home for months.

In some weird timing as I start on year #10, I got matched with a buddy in the I run 4 group (<https://whoirun4.com/>) on the day before my 9-year anniversary. So, this year is going to be a bit different but after the last 10 months it will just be more motivation to keep running.

In 2013, I started running 4-5 miles every morning with a neighbor and I would only miss a handful of days a year when I would travel for work. In October of 2018, I set a goal to run every day in 2019, which I did and I have continued that streak into 2020. As of today, 12/6/20, I have a 791 days running streak of a minimum of 4 miles/day. I feel blessed that I am able to run every day and do not take it for granted!

LANCE NELSON'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

December 1st saw the completion of the 8th year of my running streak, and boy, what a crazy year. With over 9,000 miles logged during my streak, I cannot remember a time when so many of my runs happened within a short distance of my house. All of my races become "virtual" and I learned the joy of sleeping in my own bed and not needing to travel to run an event. I could get used to it.

In October, I completed my 4th ultra-marathon, the Marine Corps 50k, and then the next weekend I completed my 8th marathon, the Marine Corps Marathon. No fanfare, no crowds, no post-race beer tent, but I remained very thankful that I could still take part.

As I work on year 9 of my streak, I am looking forward to passing 10,000 miles and finding some new and creative virtual events to take part in. I hope my fellow streakers are staying healthy and I look forward to a (calmer) new year, hopefully.

I started running every day when I realized too often I would skip training sessions because I couldn't be bothered. Having a rule that I cannot skip a day of running has significantly impacted (and improved) my running and I feel better than ever! Since starting this streak, I have participated in several big races such as the Taupo 100km Ultramarathon and a Sri Chinmoy 6-hour track race. Looking to next year, I want to run further and faster while maintaining this steadily building streak.

Hard to believe that another year has passed. I feel like I just celebrated my 5th year Anniversary but I just keep on running and now celebrated my 6th Year! And with so much happening in the world, the year went by quickly and my daily running and streak continues on!

It just part of life to get up, relax with a nice cup of coffee and then lace up and go for a run. With this pandemic I have done a majority of my runs on the treadmill. I still enjoy to hear my watch buzz that tells me I have got another mile and another day in the books. I am grateful and blessed to enjoy running and doing something good for my health. Looking forward to #7.

My running streak reached 2 years. Wow! As many of you know a streak is an Honor, goal and burden all rolled into one. Most days we love the run and the freedom it gives us, but there are those days when the struggle is to start. When we look at how far we have come, however, nothing is going to stand in our way, not even our own self.

The thrill for me was running with Robert "Raven" Kraft in Miami for a great few hours. I look forward to day 800, 900 and comma day. I most like to thank the group for the support and motivation.

I have been a dedicated runner nearly my entire life. I grew up in Dayton, OH and went to General Motors Institute in Flint, MI for college on an academic scholarship.

I moved to Brownsville, TX in March, 1988 for a 3-month work assignment in nearby Matamoros, Mexico, and I have been here since then.

I have never missed a single day of school or work my entire life, from kindergarten through college and 35 years of employment. This has been the principal reason that I have been able to maintain my running streak. In fact, I believe that running and excellent health are symbiotic in that each fosters the success of the other.

I never knew about documented running streaks until a local newspaper reporter wrote an article about me in July 2018. In fact, I have appeared in a few news articles and local television pieces. My running streak and career mileage totals are well-known locally.

Also, I am extremely analytical and keep accurate records of almost anything that involves numbers. Regarding my streak, my personal definition has been: "At least 5km or 25 minutes in exercise clothes (with the obvious intent to exercise). I have maintained this streak since 9/12/2001.

In Sweden, runstreak is a fairly unknown concept. That's why we have no runners with really long runstreaks - the record is a bit more than 7 years. My six years now puts me in fifth place in Sweden.

My runstreak is just a coincidence. As late as just a few years ago, I realized that I have been running every single day for lots of years. If I would have known about the concept earlier, well then, my streak would have been much longer.

A short presentation of myself: I am 72 years old, former economy reporter at a major newspaper in Stockholm, a father of five, been running for about 40 years, large average training distances, my 6-year runstreak is an average of 150 km, I take part in marathons and half marathons where I have been top three in my age group for many years but I consider myself more an adventure runner than a competition runner.

Freedom, solitude, and seeing many new things is the lure for me. I have for instance run seven times across America without support and also made several long runs in Europe. In my home town Stockholm, I have this year run on every street, about 5 000, a distance of 3 500 km.

I have also made long runs to pick blueberries and lingonberries in the woods north of Stockholm. The lingonberries I use for making the best sports drink or table beverage in the World. Long slow distance, LSD, is what I believe in, not tempo training or intervals. During my 40 years of running I have made a total distance of 200 000 km, the equivalent of almost five times around the globe.

My intention was to make my eighth coast to coast run but the corona situation in the world put an end to it. My plan is, therefore, to make this eighth USA run in 2021 but it looks impossible right now. I hope my 6 years runstreak will be much longer. What I like most about runstreak is that it puts pressure on you to run at least a mile every day. Us too, who run long distances, need this pressure!

My steak running began with a fitness challenge with my daughter - the 12 days of fitness. I purposefully had her run 1 mile the first day knowing she'd have to run 1 mile 12 days in a row. Sure enough, on that 13th day, she said she was going to run another mile so that she could say she had done it longer than me. Challenge on!

Her streak lasted a little over 4 years and included finishing 2 half marathons. It ended during her pregnancy. The greatest reason for a streak to end. I have continued on.

Running provides so many benefits along with physical fitness. I have great friends that I run and talk with and I also have times to run on my own and soak up God's creation and focus on the things that really truly matter.

I have run through the flu a couple of times as well as a hip injury that came very close to stopping the streak. Lord willing, I'm looking forward to running with my granddaughter someday.

I am truly thankful for my ability to run while always remembering 1 Timothy 4:8 - "Physical training is good, but training for godliness is much better, promising benefits in this life and in the life to come."

Steak on!

Yesterday [22 December 2020] was the 3rd anniversary of my latest running streak, a good day in what has otherwise been a horrible year for most of us. My daily runs still average about 3.5 miles. Nearing age 70, it now takes me about 40 minutes to complete the run. When did I turn into an old, slow guy?

Like all of you, I take pride in this accomplishment. It also feels good to know that all my streaks total more than 22 years. That seems like a very long time but short compared to the runners who have streaks of 50 years. Did they come out of the womb with sneakers on?

Well, on to another day of running.

BOB PASTECKI'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I was asked to submit a bit of news now that I just started year 4 of my streak.

This is my third streak of over a year. The first one ended in April of 2016 when I went to the hospital with vertigo. I thought staying home in a seat was the best thing to do, since we didn't find a cause for the vertigo.

The second one ended Christmas day of 2017. I came home from work at 9am and dashed to my parents' house for Christmas brunch. We were just about home that afternoon when I started feeling ill. I ended up with a bad 24-hour stomach bug. I was sitting in the bathroom with a garbage pail on my lap. I didn't feel confident enough to leave my house, even for 15 minutes. I didn't think my neighbors wanted any kind of mess on their lawn.

So, my current streak started on 12-26-2017. I have completed my first marathon in this streak. I have no idea if there are any others in my future. In 2020, I have logged more miles than in any other year. I will be just shy of 1,500 miles.

I started running the year I turned 40. Someone told me about this group on Facebook and I thought it was one of those joke posts about naked runners. I finally looked closer when a second person I know told me about this group. He was trying to do all his miles outside. I opted to try this as well, and have been logging all my miles as outdoor miles. No treadmill for me. The first year I tried this, it was the coldest February that Rochester, NY had on record. I thought to myself, "Is my determination being tested, or is this a message telling me to stay inside?"

I am determined.

Hello! I celebrated my 4-year run streak anniversary today (Dec 27, 2020) by running 4 miles with a running friend and having socially distanced outdoor mimosas! Thank goodness for running during Covid!

I've never celebrated a milestone before aside from running 9 miles on day 900. I've had weeks where I have run 40 miles and weeks on family vacation where I have done 1-2 miles a day. I have run through the flu twice and a kidney infection where I thought I would just end the streak but antibiotics kicked in by 9pm so I did a slow run before midnight. I have run loops around a parking lot. I have gone out for one mile and ended up running 7. I have run 2 marathons and 6 half marathons. I have run four 5ks and 6 10ks. Some years I have run more than other. But I'm still freaking streaking!

RANDY WISE'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I just recently surpassed the two-year mark of my streak! I've averaged 2.1 miles per day since I started, and my average is increasing as I'm currently adding mileage to prepare for the Georgia Half Marathon in a couple of months.

I'm also a streaker in that event, having run either the full or the half every year since it started in 2007. I will end up 2020 with about 900 miles of running, my best year ever by far, and I'm happy for the spillover effects on my exercise and health as I age into my 50s.

I am glad to be past the solstice with the lengthening of the days--running when it's dark and cold is not my favorite thing about the streak. I wish everyone a happy 2021 and

MELANIE BOUGH'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Hello! On 12/24/20, I hit my three-year run streak anniversary!

I had previously begun a run streak in the spring of 2017, but after 38 days, tragedy struck our family, and I didn't feel like I had it in me to continue at the time. So, on Christmas Day 2017, I started over. I had an old treadmill in the basement, but that first year, I ran mostly outside. We live in NW Iowa, and the winters can be brutal. But I didn't let a little thing like the weather stop me.

That first winter, I ran in the dark, lit up like a Christmas tree, in several layers of clothes and yak trax through snow and ice and freezing temps. While running outside, I've been very close to being struck by lightning, fallen hard and scraped up both of my knees pretty bad and have been close to being hit by a car more than once, but it's all an adventure and I wouldn't trade my experiences, good or bad, for anything.

I have a nice, sturdy treadmill now, and I use it quite often, but there's just something about running outside in the fresh air that makes me feel alive. I've learned to love running and am enjoying the run streak. I will continue for as long as I physically can. Thank you so much for the congratulatory e-mail! It really made my day!

HOLLY BOYD'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

“Things that I have learned from running every day for three years”

1. A good running partner gets you out the door. Mine is a border collie. She is relentless.
2. You can find new passions in old hobbies. I added trail running into my workouts a few years back and it was a game changer. New challenges, new scenery, new people. It completely reinvigorated my love of running.
3. Truth be told you run a lot of junk miles when you run every single day. Some days it's a mile for a mile's sake.
4. Racing really does add a little inspiration and motivation into your running plan. And winning some hardware in a racing series can feel like a top life achievement. Looking back, I realize I could not have pushed myself so hard without my running streak. Streaking taught me that I can do far more than I ever realized.

5. Hitting a goal is motivating too. Seeing your hard work payoff is immensely satisfying. It could be a time, or a distance, or in my case a really ambitious (for me) yearly mileage goal.

6. When your joints start to hurt, listen. Cut back miles, way back. A lot of days it could be just one easy mile. It may not be what you wanted, but you'll live to run another day.

7. Make sure you get your run in before you start winding down for the evening. Otherwise you may have that first glass of wine, then remember you still have to run. At that point, it is really hard to put your shoes on and get out the door.

8. You can really dazzle some people with your running stats. They will follow up to make sure you are still at it. It's like having your own tiny fan club. Unfortunately, your running stats can also have the opposite effect on some people. They do not find endless conversations about running to be interesting. Meh.

9. Running makes you smarter, or at least the podcasts you listen to while running do! Endless miles lead to hours of time to listen to podcasts. Science, pondering on life, the history behind the news, tales of FBI drug busts, the psychology of happiness, analysis of court decisions... I am a fountain of random facts thanks to running.

10. All the best sightings happen when you are running... coyotes, roadrunners, owls, snakes, cacti, sunrises, tiny wildflowers lining the trails, mountain views. Miles and miles to explore. There is no end in sight... the open road awaits.

In this crazy year that was 2020, I hit a milestone. 10 years with no days off. I was able to get in 4 "in person" races and knock out 3 states.

To all of my running buddies, I thank you for all the miles through the years. You all inspire, push and encourage me whether we run together regularly or maybe not so much anymore. You never know where a casual conversation on any given run will take you!

My streak is still going strong! In addition to my running streak I've been alcohol free for the past two years.

I've never considered myself an alcoholic. I just didn't want anything to prevent me from reaching my goals in life and, at 44, alcohol can certainly slow you down.

Anyway, here's to a great 2021, reaching the 1000th day of my run streak, and setting new goals!

JENIENE NOWAK'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I actually wrote my thoughts down when I finished my two-year streak so here they are:

Strength. Sunshine. Solitude. Smiles.
 Ordinary becoming extraordinary.
 Mom's cheers every. single. day.
 Hubby's love on early, rainy, long-run mornings (& treating me to hamburgers!)
 Exploring.
 Adventuring.
 Fresh air.
 Breath.
 Vitamin D.
 Clarity.
 Nature.
 People thinking I'm nuts.
 Wet socks.
 Pee pitstops.
 Resilience.
 Heartbeat.
 Gift.

Stream of consciousness.
 Rosy cheeks.
 Moonlight.
 Crunchy ice.
 Stinging chafing in the shower.
 Pigging out.
 Saying goodbye to toenails.
 Friendship.
 Chirping.
 Laundry. So much laundry.
 Saying hello to epic-ness.
 Solidarity.
 Leading.
 Following.
 Indescribable.
 Lifted spirit.
 Achieving.
 Striding.
 Moving forward.

That's what a 2-year running streak means to me. xo

I'm still running every day including throughout the pandemic! I've run through a broken arm, illness, crossing the Atlantic in a force 10 storm. I run with my two little dogs.

What makes this great is that I'm not a great runner at all so being better than most by simply running every single day makes my running a bit special. I've only run twice on a treadmill and that was on the Queen Mary 2 crossing the Atlantic.

I've run all over the UK, in the Caribbean, in Philadelphia up the Rocky steps but my favorite was the Disney World Half Marathon with a broken arm!

Year 3 of my run streak has been the most challenging and rewarding yet. I'm thankful every day that I have the ability to get out and run during these tough times. I added a few ultra-length runs to my streak this year, starting with a perimeter run of Manhattan (32 miles) in April. I kept it going with a 50K trail race in CT in September and a 50M NYC road race in December, where I made sure to high kick at the finish line.

Yes, my streak is intact through year 8. I got in 1,900 miles this year to keep my daily average at 6.4 a day. My run streak hit 4 years today [31 December 2020]! That's no days off in 4 years. In that time, I've run as little as a mile and as much as 62 miles on any given day...and always laced up those shoes the next day. I have simply not allowed myself an excuse - No "I'm gonna" or "I could have," only action.

I've been inspired by so many others doing amazing things in their own lives whether bravely battling disease, grinding through tough life circumstances, or working through their own physical achievements. Keep going.

My kids continue to be my greatest fuel and reason why. I hope to show them grit through action, not by words alone. Wishing everybody a happy and healthy 2021!

I am so glad to celebrate the completion of six years of streak running AND the end of 2020 on the same day. Streak running was one of the few healthy constants in my life that helped me deal with the inconstancy of the past year.

I am so happy to have gotten in two half marathons (Key West and Gasparilla) plus one full marathon (Miami) in 2020 before the lockdowns and race cancellations. At least I was able to defer my Marine Corps Marathon entry to a later date.

My total mileage suffered a bit this year, though, without the incentive of training for Spring, Summer and Fall races (and my pace as well). Total miles this year was 1791.

My running goals for 2021 are modest: continue my streak (5K/day), return to more disciplined training, and enjoy the blessing of each and every new day.

MARK ERMIS' STREAK HITS A DECADE

Let me start by saying, it feels great to finally hit double digits in years (10 years) for streaking. I am a lifelong runner who has been at this gig since 6th grade. I have been fortunate to have competed at all levels in the sport in my life, but after college, I needed a break and focused on my career.

During this time, I would "spot" run when I felt too out of shape, but nothing serious. Then, one day I was talking with a high school teammate and college running opponent (who actually is a part of this community and celebrates his 15 years streaking today also) and he commented that he started a running streak. His main motivation was that American society has become complacent and overweight and with 24 hours in a day, there is no reason why people can't carve out at least 15 mins to exercise in some capacity.

This really hit home for me and so on January 1, 2011, I made a resolution to run every day that year. When that year was completed, I realized that this streaking thing is pretty easy. It just becomes a part of your day, like sleeping. You just have to get creative at times to keep the streak alive as life does get busy and at times you are thrown curveballs, but to me, that is the fun part!

My buddy and I have a saying while streaking...it is all about "Finding Ways!" Congrats to everyone on whether today is your day 1 or 10 years! Just find a way to get to the next run!

LUTZ BALSCHUWEIT'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

It's been nine years now. I started my first streak on 02 January 2012 and didn't have a goal in mind back then. I just ran. But I ran a relatively high kilometre average from the beginning. I ran in the years:

2012 7,642.33 km
2013 8,566.33 km
2014 8,729.86 km
2015 8,703.76 km
2016 8,400.25 km
2017 7,770.28 km
2018 7,089.41 km
2019 7,219.86 km
2020 8,002.00 km

In 2016, I had reached the distance for a circumnavigation of the Earth at the equator of 40076.6 km on 19 September. I am also trying to run a second circumnavigation with this average. If I can keep running like this, it will take a good year. Maybe after that I will reduce my daily distance. I am very grateful for what I have achieved.

Simply put, I started at 450 pounds and today I'm a 4-time Ironman, 19 marathons, and 5-year stalker!

Each year I reflect on the hardest runs of my streak. I call it the Mount Rushmore of run streak days!

1. Running a mile in jeans, downtown Richmond, VA while out for drinks with some friends. I've done this a few times!
2. The 4 times I had to run a mile the day after an Ironman
3. Multiple times sneaking in my "mile" at 11:30 pm or later. This year I've been working two jobs to cover some pandemic related challenges and will often finish job 2 and sneak in my run late, right before I go to bed.
4. Keeping the streak alive while recovering from Covid-19.

I am pleased to report that the streak is still alive. A weird year but I am incredibly fortunate to live in gorgeous Charlottesville, Virginia where quarantine running options abound.

Lots of running with my wife, kids and dogs and very few trips to the airport made for a memorable year in spite of all the Covid strife. I hope everyone is doing well and finding some peace through running.

My running seemed far more important to me this year and I hope that other streakers were able to use their time running to squelch the negative news. I ate my black-eyed peas this morning (New Year's Day) and I am trusting that this batch will work better than the pot I cooked up last year.

Violet Kern

VIOLET KERN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

The one-year anniversary of my streak felt like an incredible feat; this two-year anniversary heading into 2021 feels less so. Maybe that's because running has become so much a part of my daily routine, or maybe because the year we all just had was so overwhelming in a million other ways that it's harder to feel excited about things anymore. Yet I have lots to be excited about as this year saw me accomplish some big lifetime running goals. I ran a marathon PR (virtually, of course) and I finished a 100 miler after DNF'ing the year before.

But my streak year wasn't made up of those big events; we all know it's the little things over time that come to mean the most. I ran most of my miles with my mom and dad (fellow streakers) and we completed some cool adventures.

We ran a 50k in our own event we dubbed the "Kern Ultra," leaving my parents' house with packs on our backs and heading up into the foggy mountains to a quiet wild area in Penn's Woods. Rocksylvaniam!

We ran long sections of the Greater Allegheny Passage, stopping along the way to eat apple pies and gummies at the gas stations.

We ran to overlooks, into valleys, along railroad tracks, and through dark city streets at three in the morning.

We battled heat, wind, rain, and ice, like us streakers always do, but we all battled so much more this time around.

We survived an incredible year and did an incredible thing, keeping our daily habits as much as we could in a time of uncertainty and unrest. It's hard to get excited sometimes and it's hard to recognize our victories, but I can see a light at the end of the tunnel. We just have to keep running.

As you already know, 2020 was not a typical year. This was as true in running as much as anything else. In 2020, I chased the sunrise on practically a daily basis, I logged enough miles to get from Boston to London, and I ran every street in my home town of Belmont, Massachusetts.

When I had time, I headed out to the Mountains tagging 6 more of the NH 48, 4000 footers, and simply just enjoyed nature, a nice reprieve from the chaos of everyday life.

Kudos to all of you that kept your streak going in these crazy times.

CLIVE START'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

I have loved running every day, and just brought up 6 years. I started initially 30 December 2014, with an objective of just 100 days. When I got to 100 days, I decided to go to 1 year. At 1 year, I was enjoying it so much, I decided to continue for an indeterminate period.

I run ultra-marathons, some of which go overnight, like the Tarawera Miler. Sadly, Strava does not consider a run that goes over more than 24 hours as a run for each day, only for the day the run started. This means that when I have finished the event on the second day, then I need to do a minimum run so Strava recognizes I ran on the second day.

I also run from one year to the next (for example, start before midnight 31 December 2020 and finish just after midnight, on 1 January 2021). This also means I still have to do my run on 1/1/2021 so Strava plays ball. This is somewhat easier than needing to run after completing 34 hours of running over 2 days.

I am very inspired by all the people who have done 10 years, 20 years, etc., and am amazed at the people who have done 30 years or 40 years plus. I have no plans to stop.

I am happy to update you that I am still streaking. For 2020, I completed 660.9 miles of running (average of 1.8 miles per day), which included one virtual half marathon.

The highlight of the year was when my sons planned a 24-hour race on a 1km loop around our house, that as a family, we completed. They made it complete with t-shirts, medals, and an amazing snack table to keep us going all night.

CHUCK HALIKAS' STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

As a career military officer, running was always something I was forced to do but did not enjoy. In 2006, I entered my first half marathon with a friend and was immediately hooked on the race day vibes. 25 half(s), 5 fulls and a bunch of 5s and 10s later. Running has become a way of life for me.

On Jan 4, 2018, I challenged myself to 30 days of running a mile every day. Now 3 years later, I'm 35 lbs lighter, I'm faster than I was at 25 and I can't see myself not running every day and not signing up for races.

My wife and two adult daughters are runners because of me and it has become our main family "thing to do together." Registering this streak after one year was a dream come true and now I see the possibility of achieving incredible milestones.

I wake up every day and I am eager to plan my day around my run. The run is the priority over everything else. The run is my sanity check. The run is my peaceful retreat. The run is my daily promise to keep my body healthy. And above all, the run is a sign that I'm still among the living and loving it.

THOMAS MCDOW'S THIRD STREAK HITS 1 YEAR

On December 18, 2019, after hospitalization and a long bout with urinary tract infection, I laced my running shoes and ran 1.00 miles in 13 minutes and 21 seconds, my first run since November 24, 2019. In the last 14 days of December, I eked out 23 miles. Not much, but at least the start of my third streak. For about the last 15 or 20 years on my birthday, I have run one-tenth of a mile for each year. On February 8, 2020 (two days early) I ran 7.80 miles at a 12-minutes, 54-seconds pace, completing day 53 of the new streak. On March 7, in Durham, North Carolina, I ran the Florence Fourth 10-K with a 12-minutes, 36-second-pace, completing day 81. On December 17, 2020, I completed day 366 (leap year) to establish my third streak. I finished the year with 1,300 miles.

I doubt I will ever match my first streak, 3,433 days, or even my second streak 853 days, yet my streak is important. Without a streak, it is easy to skip a day and when I skip one day, it is easier to skip another. With a streak, there is no allowance for a skipped day. As Crash Davis said in the great baseball movie, Bull Durham, "Don't ever screw with a streak," but he did not say screw.

Wow. Crazy to think how far I've come. Started running in 2016, barely could run for a minute without stopping to walk. Worked my way up to a Full Marathon in 2017 and 2019. In between, I have done numerous 5ks, 10ks, 10 milers, half marathons, and relay run races.

I run the Team KSB (KrosStrain Brewing) Run Club & participate in other local clubs. When everything got cancelled this year, I said RUNNING ISN'T CANCELLED. And thus, my streak was born!

Next goal, 500 days! But really, I have my eye on getting to that coveted comma day!

SIMON LAPORTE'S STREAK HITS 45 YEARS

As of January 6th, 2021, I have 16,495 days in my streak. Running km in 2020: 5467 km. Pandemic did not stop me. But maintaining more than 100 km per week is a hell of a job.

Glad to stay in the 4000 km now. At Dec 31th 2020, I was at 269,397 km in my running lifetime. And at 258,478 km for 16,489 days of my streak.

Happy in 2020 to have reached 16,384 days which is written. In binary mode by 1 followed by 14 zeros (2 power 14). It was a goal as an ex-computer man.

Also, glad to have reached the 45 years mark and be in front of my first reference in running streak, Mark Covert.

JOHN LIEPA'S STREAK HITS 44 YEARS

As I finished my 44th-year-run today (Jan.1), my thoughts went back to a book I read when I started taking my running seriously back in the early and mid-1970s. Allan Sillitoe's The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner (1959) is a perfect antidote to what we've all gone through over the past 9 months. It's the story of a teenager in England incarcerated for petty crimes, who turns to long distance running as both an emotional and physical escape from his situation. He purposely loses an important race against a prestigious school to make a point that running is so much more than winning and medals, and by doing so demonstrates his free spirit and independence.

Over my 50+ years as an educator, I know that our personal time, uninterrupted by all the demands of modern technology, is hard to come by, and very limited. I've found solace; a sense of personal freedom; and some of my most creative and innovative ideas for my teaching about 4 or 5 miles into a country roads or trails run. Non-runners or 'non-streakers' might think that the "loneliness of the long distance runner" might be an affliction to be pitied, or someone in need of therapy, but it's quite the opposite.

All these years, all these miles, all the challenges and obstacles we've overcome and endured — they've prepared us so well for something none of us could have anticipated and prepared for — Covid-19. We have PhD's in "social distancing," getting extreme daily exercise is as normal as eating and sleeping, Vitamin D? - we're continuously being 'over-dosed,' there's virtually no 'hand-shaking' or any physical contact when 99% of our runs are alone, and masking?- do you think any of us will risk giving up a 44-year running streak by being an 'anti-science' moron?

As I set out on my first run of my 45th year, my thoughts were more about how beautiful the trails were with a recent 9" snowfall; would I see my pair of Barred owls who often greet me at the beginning and end of my runs; is my 10-point buck and his harem of does going to let me engage in a 'close-encounter' conversation; and how about my flock of wild turkeys - do we have a 'stand-off,' or do we fly?

It's all good, and I'm so gratified to be a part of a very special group of friends, vicariously and in spirit, long distance, and 'streak runners, and no, we are not lonely!

MATTIAS BLOMQVIST JOINS SRI FROM SWEDEN

My name is Mattias Blomqvist. I'm 43 y/o and live in Upplands Väsby, Sweden, which is just north of Stockholm.

I've been running more or less for 14-15 years now, and under that period I have completed about 10 marathons, maybe 12 half marathons and like 15 10k races. I always bring my running gear wherever I go to be able to run in different places.

I do all kinds of running and all kinds of distances between 3K and 42K, but right now my favorite kind of running is trail running. To be out in the forest is just beautiful.

The reason I started doing runstreak is to get more quantity and consistency of my training, since I want to become a better marathon runner and even try ultra-marathons and backyard running in the future. I think 1 mile is too short for me so I do a minimum of 20 minutes/day.

My first runstreak ended after about 65 days because of illness. My 2nd runstreak, which started on December 30, 2019, is now on 375 days.

SCOTT HENDREN'S STREAK HITS 13 YEARS

Though I completed my 13th year of my daily running streak on December 31, 2020, this has been a very difficult and unusual year to say the least. I'm grateful that I have stayed reasonably healthy, avoided Covid-19, and my wife and I and adult children have all remained employed.

With all the turmoil though and with no races on the schedule after February, it was difficult to maintain motivation to train. Consequently, I ended the year with one of the lowest mileage totals of my streak and, with just two live races completed, my lowest race total since I started running in 1990.

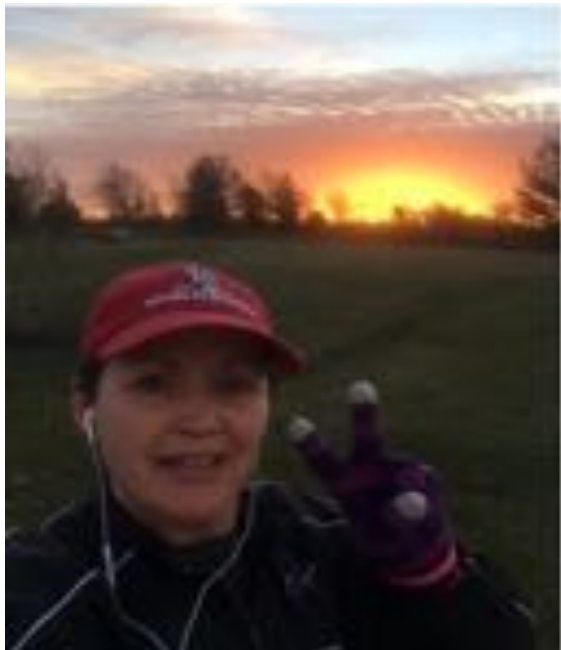

Here's hoping 2021 brings a little more normalcy and happy and healthy running to us all.

RAEMA HOWELL'S STREAK HITS 1 YEAR

In 2019, I was inspired by an article in Runner's World featuring Robert Kraft (and others) about running streaks. I said to myself, "I want to do that!" And I did it! On December 30, 2020, I completed 365 days of running. Now for year 2.

Wow, what a feeling of knowing I accomplished my goal and have been doing something healthy daily! I am just a "baby stalker" and keep my mileage to 1-3 miles/day, but love the feeling of getting up early, owning the pavement (not many people are up at 4 am) before work and accomplishing a goal each day!

I am so thankful and blessed to be able to get up out of bed each morning to run, knowing that others may not be able to. I run with my Border Collie daily and often, my daughter bikes by my side. And after each run, I take a minute to dance and celebrate...life is too short not to!

As my daughter says, "Slow and steady wins the race!" I am by no means fast and definitely not out there to break records...but what I am out there to do is to be disciplined and passionate about staying healthy!

Wishing each of you a happy and healthy 2021...may your streak be long and you endure what life brings your way! "I can do all things through Christ who gives me strength." Philippians 4:13.

Two-year streak under the belt and still feeling good! Some runs have been tougher than others, but each one comes with its own unique memory. Over the course of the streak, I've had the chance to run with friends, family, work colleagues, my furry nephew (six-month old golden retriever), and most of the time with myself and my thoughts. It's been a journey, and created a habit that is going to be hard to break!

"Run Streak Builds Confidence"

Here I am on run streak day 740. It was a crazy year, this second year. The first year went by with the intention to just run one whole year, every single day. I ran a good number of local races and reached a fair amount of miles for the year (1,290 miles total).

For 2020, I wondered how long I was going to stick with this new routine? I did sign up for the Citrus Heritage Half Marathon in Riverside, California on January 4th. It was one of the prettiest races I've ever run. My run partner, several years my senior, beat me the last three miles. That's okay, I've never been a fast runner. Slow and steady gets the job done too.

On March 1st, I ran the second half marathon of the year in my hometown of Redlands, California blissfully unaware that it would be my last in person race until who knows when. Only ten days later the world shut down and we were left to our own devices. This is where a run streak comes in handy because no matter how scared, anxious and frustrated you are, you still have to run, every single day. Not because you feel like it, but because you still have one purpose to get up for every morning.

After trudging 1 or 2 miles every day for a couple of months, someone on Facebook proclaimed that his wife was going to run the Covid-19 K race on April 19. During a weird spring it sounded like the thing to do.

A week later I did the virtual 'Stay Home' Half Marathon. I had come up with the ultimate self-torture by running a one-mile loop 13 times from my house. The mental exhaustion (not just the legs) was crazy! But as the run streak kept telling me, you can do it.

During the last week of April, I had come across a crazy challenge put up by ultra-runner legend, Lazarus Lake, to run virtually across Tennessee over the course of four months. 635 miles for an average of 5.2 miles/day. Luckily, walking miles counted too.

As anyone with a running habit will tell you, you get it done by moving one foot in front of the other. In 68 days, I reached the (virtual) finish line, ultimately reaching 1,000 miles within the four-month timeline.

After that big milestone, I got the idea to celebrate my birthday in a big way. Why not run 45 kilometers on my 45th birthday in August? Another runner friend turned 40 the day before, and with a couple of other friends we made it into our first ULTRA.

I want to point out that I have never run a full marathon. We spread the distances from 4 am in the early morning hours when it was still kind of cool (but not really) and ran varying intervals of 5.5 miles down to the last loop of 1.5 miles at 1 pm. The day turned out to be record setting even for Southern California, with temperatures reaching 99 degrees by the end of our runs. But did we finish? Yes, we did.

I've always wanted to be a writer. A runner? Not so much. I didn't even really start to run until 11 years ago. It took me a couple of years to start describing myself as a 'runner.' This past year has also gotten me to the point of building enough confidence to call myself a 'writer' as well. Thanks, run streak!

In August last year I connected with Ben Dillow, a famous run streaker in this impressive association. He had kept a 39-year run streak going through thick and thin until a piece of pavement got the better of him and was hospitalized. I was so lucky to write about his run streak and its demise for our local newspaper, and it was the final push for me to officially join the USRSA. I wasn't even aware that in the neighborhoods I trotted around every day was a legend running his daily miles too!

August and September turned out to be beyond hot and September added horrible wildfires and smoky conditions. For at least a week, I had to run with an N95 mask not because of the pandemic, but because of not wanting to breathe the hazardous particles wafting through the air. My asthma has been well regulated for years, and I wanted it to stay that way.

On October 3rd, I ran the 'Running From 2020' virtual half marathon simply because the t-shirt was hilarious. In November, I wrote a draft for a novel with NaNoWriMo and (virtually) ran the Mission Inn Half Marathon. It is a local race in Riverside that I absolutely adore.

I ended the year with a last virtual half marathon in December, the Loma Linda Holiday Classic. I had chosen to run to the local viewpoint where the teenagers make out. That gave me 7 miles uphill more or less.

It was the perfect ending and representational run to a horrible year of disappointments and catastrophes. For every hill I ran, another started around the next bend. As soon as I reached the top and thought I would enjoy the downhill, wild Santa Ana winds started blowing and I was reminded that nothing will get easier just because I think it will. For 2020, I reached a total of 1,375 miles.

And here I am starting my third run streak year. I am taking a break from entering any races, though a friend and I are looking at how soon we can finish 2,021 miles together as part of the Run Life Challenge.

My city has also set up a challenge: 'Redlands FRESH AIR Challenge.' The goal is for residents to reach one million miles for the month of January. I'll do my part for us to reach that.

Keep running. Thanks for supporting us run streakers and letting us know we are not alone.

Brian Woodall here and STILL running. For 2020 I ran a total of 1,184 miles along with 33 miles of biking and a few miles swimming and the hardest thing I did this was ROW 26.2 miles!! WHY?! Cause, I am stupid haha!

Running is my favorite but I have a crossfit habit and my running friends say, "I have a crossfit problem." I will probably end the streak this year; mainly because I have completed and won the bet I made with a friend. However, will still run every day, until that day comes. See you on the Road!

STEPHANIE CORNELIO'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

When I first started my streak, I figured if I could manage one whole week of running, I would be amazed. But here I am, on day 738 and still going strong.

I was the person who would run 5K races and have that feeling of dread in my gut because I was nervous that I wouldn't be able to finish.

In the past 15 months I have completed 4 half marathons. Four. Half. Marathons. Sure, my feet look a little worse for wear, and I have spent a king's ransom on running shoes (Brooks forever!!) but the feeling of pride and accomplishment have kept me going and will continue to do so until my body decides it can no longer do it.

Another wonderful side-effect of my streaking; my husband decided to start a streak of his own! Today will be one week for him, and I could not be prouder.

The streaking community has been so encouraging and supportive; I thank you all so very much for keeping me going. And a special "thank you" to Ellen Adamo for getting me started in the first place; you are amazing!!!

SUSAN SCHULTZ'S STREAK HITS 13 YEARS

Happy New Year! I am happy to report my streak continues and as of this writing I can proudly say during my 13 years I've completed a couple marathons, many 5 & 10Ks, several 10 milers, half marathons and relays. I have run in snow and ice, rain and blistering heat. I've run in hurricanes and in temperatures way below freezing. I have run on trails, on suburban streets, on the beach, on boardwalks and many, many times on the Baltimore water front promenade!

I have run in several states - on both coasts and in the middle. I have been fortunate to even run in other countries! I have run with friends and with family and while pushing a stroller with my grandson along for the ride.

Mostly I run by myself (which is really how I like it). For the past 10 months I have run every day during a global pandemic! Who would have ever thought it! The streak has saved me spiritually, mentally, emotionally and of course physically during this trying time! I look forward to my run more than ever now. Best wishes for a happy and HEALTHY 2021 to all of my fellow streakers!

DAVID SHANNON'S NEW STREAK HITS A YEAR

I'm happy to report that I can officially be added to the active list again after tonight's run. I ran 3.66 miles for RSD #366. Over the past year I've run 2,406 miles for an average of 6.57 miles per day.

I was able to complete a 10k and marathon before the pandemic hit full force and then a couple of small live local trail races late in the summer (a marathon and a 50k). I also ran a half dozen virtual races over the year. (Including the Great Virtual Race Across Tennessee on the "Streaking Across Tennessee" team.)

Aside from a dozen New Year's resolution streaks before I heard about this group in 2012, I started seriously streak running in December of 2012.

Unfortunately, I've broken streaks four times due to injury or surgery. I'm not sure if the 2nd and 4th streaks count as they were shorter than a year. I had surgery scheduled on 12/18/2019 to fix two hernias. Once inside of me they found two bonus hernias, so I got four fixed for the price of two. The next day I waited for my wife to leave the house and then snuck down to the basement to attempt a treadmill mile. It didn't work as I still had too much pain.

So, I didn't run that day and decided to follow the doctor's orders and take five weeks off. I haven't missed since then.

So, I'm happy to be back on the streaking horse after getting thrown off. Hopefully I'll be able to keep my running shoes in the stirrups for a while this time.

PAULA HARKIN'S STREAK HITS 12 YEARS; "RUN THE EARTH"

I am pleased to announce that on February 19, 2020 I reached my mileage goal of 24,901 streak miles. This happens to be the circumference of the earth, hence my manta of RUN THE EARTH.

I continued my streak and just completed my 12th year of running every day with just over 2200 miles for the year, an average of 6 miles per day.

My husband Dave and I were scheduled to run the Tokyo Marathon in 2020 but it was canceled due to COVID-19. Tokyo Marathon would have been our 6th and final World Marathon Major (Boston, New York, Chicago, Berlin, London, Tokyo) and we were looking forward to receiving our 6 Star Medal. We look forward to running the Tokyo Marathon in the future.

Being a race organizer and owner of Portland Running Company in Portland, OR, it was a crazy year. COVID-19 changed everything about my everyday life but the streak not only kept me in my routine but also kept me sane.

Running is so many things but it is so good for my mind and spirit, friendships and social wellbeing. We learned to run 6 feet apart with masks on. We learned how to create virtual races and challenges.

It has been an interesting year and I am proud of continuing my streak.

Run yourself better!

RYAN FLETCHER'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

The Streak Lives On! I celebrated 10 years with a 15-mile run indoors. That 15 miles took me to 3000 miles for the year. I closed 2020 with a grand total of 3005.

Over my 10 years of Streaking, I have run 17,870.26 miles. I have finished three 100-mile races, 2 Ironmans, 50 milers, marathons, half marathons, triathlons, and countless 5K and 10K races. It has been an amazing journey that I look forward to continuing for many years to come.

The craziness of 2020 actually allowed me to spend more time running. I did participate in several virtual races, including Laz's Race Across Tennessee. I also ran a couple in person races.

I finished Burning River 100 (for the second time) in 23:28:32. It was a beautiful day to run in northern Ohio. I had an amazing crew/pacer. It was a tough race at times but overall an amazing time.

I also participated in Kentucky Last Sole Standing. It is a last man standing race. I finished 20 laps which equals 83.4 Miles. It was held on a large farm just outside Elizabethtown Kentucky. We were literally running through herds of cattle at times. The race was cooler in the morning but warmed up to around 60 in the afternoon, then into the 40s overnight. There were a great bunch of people running and the race director is a great guy and greeted each runner at the end of each loop. I definitely recommend checking it out.

Overall, I had a good year despite the craziness. Like everyone else looking forward to a better, less crazy 2021.

My run streak survived 2020. I had far more 1-mile days than I would have preferred but given the tumultuousness of the year I can't complain.

I managed to keep my run streak going despite breaking my wrist, selling my house, buying a new house, residing said house, completing a 200-hour yoga teacher training, going through a breakup, and working full time as an essential worker during the pandemic.

Here's to higher mileage in 2021.

ISABEL RINGUETTE'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Running was never easy for me. I was the girl in high school with her hands up in the air in gym class, grasping for every breath. Over the years I tried over and over and eventually gave up - until 1999 when the idea of entering a 5km race (while six months pregnant) dawned on me. I did it and, not expectantly, I struggled. Even though my time was pretty poor compared to the pack, I felt really proud thereafter.

After that, running was still so difficult, but something internal kept me at it. I wanted it to be easy and enjoyable, and thought if I just keep at it, it will be so. It never got easy. I just got better at dealing with the trials and tribulations of running, and eventually the running became less problematic, still not easy but something I could handle and look forward to handling. I found nothing but joy, enjoying this growing passion of mine, notwithstanding the challenges.

After years of starting and stopping running, here and there, without any understanding of running streaks, one summer day in 2014, August 4th, 2014 to be exact, it just all fit together, and became a part of me. I ran, and I ran, and I never looked back. The streak began on that warm day, but to be honest, I didn't even realize I was on a streak!

In 2017, I found Runner's World Run Streak while recovering from an accident. I broke my left ankle and severely sprained my right one. I was in two casts. But I decided to never again complain about running, once I was able to get back at it again. On January 23, 2018, six weeks after my fall, I began running again. It's now been three years and change. In those three years, I've run in 6 countries and on 2 continents. I've run in airports, down hotel hallways, on gorgeous sandy beaches, through forests and glens, up and down mountains and even on snowy, ice-covered trails (a little less intrepidly, but still relentlessly). I love running, whether it is just an easy 1 mile, or all the way to my maximum personal best of 32 miles! My favorite distance is the half marathon. I have run one at least every week, sometimes several in a week. My daily average over the last 3 years of this streak is just over 7 miles a day.

I run with my sister as often as possible. We do all the formal races together, 5 km, half marathons and our annual full marathons. We follow similar whole food, plant-based diets and we're well suited in terms of endurance and speed. Finding a partner to run with is so rewarding as it gives us the opportunity to share so much together, on our runs, away from all the distractions of life. I found mine. My sister Julie. Of course, having a wonderful, supportive and loving husband who understands my passion, helps too!

On December 30, 2020 I completed year five of my streak and began my 10th year of calling myself a runner. Not all of my streak days were easy, but even though it's a bit trite to say, all of the hard runs ended better than they began.

The physical and emotional benefits of the streak continue to add enjoyment to my life. The days go by like pages in a book, with each one offering up something for the mind to chew on.

One interesting twist to my routine that I'm trying for the next five years, is to run first thing in the morning - after making the morning coffee anyhow. :-)

Happy running everyone! Shout out to all the inspiring updates in the newsletter, and posts and photos on FB! Nice community, this group.

TOBIAS APELT JOINS SRI FROM GERMANY

I have been running for more than 20 years. I started to run, to get rid of emotions during my stressful work in my first restaurant. I run irregular. I started to enter races, to have personal goals and a reason to do training, to run. Sadly, I found out I could run a half marathon without training. So, I lost the track of training. Next step needed. I signed for a marathon. It worked for a few years, then the stress level in my job went up, I quit the training, or did it half hearted. I entered the next marathon, anyway. It worked well, without training. Again, motivation faded away.

There must be longer races. Next goal! I went for the Rennsteiglauf (76K cross-country, mountain Thüringen). I had to train. No matter what. This race is not feasible with no training. Still my motivation changed every now and then. Depending on family, work, mental health and food. I finished those races with 12 h as well as in 6 h. I did not get the training into priority 1st ...

3 years ago, I read about streak running. I tried it and suddenly - no problem to be motivated. I did training. Regular. I was in best shape. Sure, some side effects came across. I broke my arm, I got a serious flu, I used excuses to stop training. As I thought, only for a day or so. It ended in 2 month pauses. I still was not engaged enough. Obviously!

I had to make a decision. If I really wanted to stay in shape and run on a regular base, if there should be some real enthusiasm, I have to do it literally every day. No rain, no pain shall stop it. A personal routine.

My last "break" was November and December 2019. I started on Jan. 1st. And since then, no flu, no insobriety, no broken arm nor a torn calf kept me from running. 3k is always possible. Glad to come this way. Hope to stay here.

I'm delighted to be considered Proficient! Like everyone, it has been a very challenging year, mentally and physically. It has reinforced the importance of running for me personally to my mental health and ability to cope with stress.

There were many moments in the past year where my streak commitment was severely challenged. During the initial lockdown curfew in UAE my only option was to run in circles in a subterranean carpark (which can't have been healthy).

However, this obviously pales into insignificance compared to some of the challenges other members of this group have faced. I derive a great deal of inspiration from you all, so I just want to say thank you for sharing your stories and motivating me to lace up my trainers each morning.

Running is my go to way of handling anxiety and depression and a great way to get impressions from the outdoors. Had I not started my day by going for a 1-2h run I would have remained in bed and felt like nothing was worth it.

Now I have managed to go out running every day for two years and have faced all sorts of hurdles but I have conquered them all. Cold weather, hot weather, rain, snow, storms have not dampened my spirit. Neither has dyspnea, periostitis and a stress fracture, I have pushed through them all.

My dog Kia is also doing a streak now by accompanying me on one of my runs every day and she will soon hit one year, not bad for a ten-year-old! Keep fighting and investing in your health!

JIM TAYLOR'S STREAK HITS 28 YEARS

This year, as last year, has been a challenge due to my deteriorating knee problems (and age...). I turned 66 last September and although running has remained a real focus in a day, I continue to be frustrated that I am not able to do the mileages that I used to. I imagine that is the complaint of almost every runner! My mileage hasn't been impressive but I still maintain the minimum of at least one complete mile per day. I continue to do the exercises to build up those muscles around my knee as per the instructions of the physio and this adds to the time taken to get out every day.

You'll understand how fearful I was whilst waiting to hear of the restrictions that COVID introduced but I was lucky that in Scotland, the restrictions around Lockdown still allowed us to have 'one period of exercise per day' so I was still able to keep the streak going. The biggest thrill of 2020 was that I passed the 10,000th consecutive day. There was a little temptation to stop there but I am pleased to report it served to spur me on even more! Onwards now.

Thanks again for the interest; it provides good motivation to know that this run is being recognized.

I have been competitively running since 2002 I've completed 11 marathons including a PR of 3:16:03 with a Boston Qualifier in Chicago in 2009. These days I stick to shorter distances. Running is a passion of mine and so is writing. I combined the two to write a book about my journey to qualifying for the Boston Marathon called Four Seconds from Boston. I maintain a running blog (it's mostly about running these days) at <http://www.doctorrunning.wordpress.com>.

I completed my Doctorate in Business Administration last year and after the pandemic hit I accidentally stumbled into a run streak attempt. I had attempted to do one in 2015 when I was training to run the Marine Corps Marathon (big mistake as I over trained and injured my hamstring less than a week before the race. Note: I did complete it on about 1 1/2 legs that day). That streak ended after 153 days. In April 2020 a friend of mine asked me to participate in a 50k in May run streak run with an organization she belongs to so I did it and decided to keep it going until the 4th of July. If you're reading this, well...you know what happened.

I am closing in on my first run streak (almost 300 days as of this writing) despite a few close calls. I also officiate ice hockey and strained a groin muscle that I had to baby for about a week, and as the season has worn on I developed some minor back issues I had to battle through. In the summer months I umpire baseball, so I guess you could say I don't take many days off anyway. I hope to hit my 1-year mark on April 29, 2021! After that, who knows? But if I know me, it will take an injury or serious illness to stop the streak. I won't stop on my own. It's just not in my DNA. Run on...

MERIANN BOXALL PASSES FORREST GUMP

I reached my Forrest Gump Running Day on February 1, 2021. A full 3 years 2 months 14 days and 16 hours. I could not live this close and not adventure to Forrest Gump Highway in Monument Valley, Utah with my family (huge support crew) in tow. I will be retiring my running streak but I had to hit this very fun milestone. Streak On!

VINCE ATTANUCCI'S STREAK HITS 18 YEARS

My 18th year of continuous daily runs was different. The year started as it always does for me, I ran the Houston Marathon in January on a glorious day, fifteen in a row now. I also ran a few city races in February including our bi-weekly Run the Woodlands 5K. At the end of February, I ran my 263rd of these races dating back close to 16 years. In early March I ran the Woodlands Marathon, right at the front end of the pandemic. I ran a slow first half of the race and then finished strong, sprinted in, and was happy with my time. I had a recovery 10K race scheduled for the next Saturday, but it was never held as the lockdown commenced. Little did I suspect at the time that my next live race would be the next Run the Woodlands (#264) in January 2021.

The lockdown kept me home and gave me more time to run in the mornings, so that I had a good mileage month in April, with nothing to train for. Then my great partner Tracey invited me to sign up for a "virtual race," whatever the heck that is, something called The Great Virtual Race across Tennessee. To earn a belt buckle, one had to complete 1000K (running and walking) over a four-month period. I decided early on that I could probably double that distance in four months, and off I set in the summer heat of Houston. This would hold my base until I could return to racing in the fall. Well, there was no return to racing in the fall, so I continued back across Tennessee for a third time, 1000K each crossing.

Needing a rest, I took two days off (from long runs) and then signed on with a ten-person relay team for a 30,000-mile virtual race around the world. The mileage demands on this team are a bit less, and I am holding a great base, though my pace has been very slow. I ran the Atlanta Peachtree road race virtual on Thanksgiving morning (nowhere near the same fun!), and had a promised marathon cancelled in December. I have no complaints. I got back to the YMCA in October, bought a kayak for weekly outings, have been blessed to be healthy, and ready to return to marathon racing by March of this year.

I ran the spring and early summer with my running partner. We had lovely mornings together, and a few weekends with a small residual group from Houston based Kenyon Way Running, and many miles on my own to think and process. I saw the beauty of nature this year: birds of many types, hawks and herons and bluebirds and ducks, young deer with their watchful mothers leading along, turtles all around! And appreciation and gift of health and the longevity of this streak. Many days in the dark early morning, alone in my thoughts and managing the strain with an easy rhythm. Coping with loss and change and new found time, I watched the year turn from pleasant spring to heartless summer, and softening toward fall. I watched each leaf fall and the grass grow dormant, and the sun settle further southward every day until sheaved in darkness, and cold crisp mornings. What a treat with wind and rain. I loved it all. I cleared my mind every day and returned home achy and hungry and satisfied with the effects.

I ran a different kind of year. For me, races are the reason to run every day and endure long training cycles. This year I was content to run many deliberate miles. Over 3400 miles this year which was a personal best, and injury free, proud and blessed by that accomplishment. As I write this the world is starting to brighten and open up to us again, the tide will come in for me as a runner and a person.

STEVE MODICA'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

I'm pleased I've hit the 9-year mark and have started on year 10! I've slowed down a little since I started but I've accomplished a great deal:

I ran 5015 miles in 2013 to win the Reddit running challenge.

I got my average run length up over 5 miles. I've run 5 miles a day since April 17, 2017 (I had salmonella poisoning from a bag salad and I could only run 4 miles that day!)

I've run several half marathons to prepare for the Baltimore marathon but COVID pushed it out to later in 2021.

I've run outside for the last 5 years (even here in Minnesota). It's been quite a challenge.

I got frostbite for the first time this year because I didn't notice that my little toe got into some salt water. It's not bad. Not much worse than a bad blister.

I've run over 17,659 miles since I started tracking in 2012.

I've encouraged one person to start running, another person to start a streak, and two other people to try barefoot running! That has made me very happy.

I really appreciate all of you and your updates every day. I think we run because we're alive and it's just part of our spirit.

We're not going to let little things like -8°F or icy roads stand in our way. We understand that whatever we do today is going to impact us tomorrow so we have to have balance.

We're all in this together. Keep running. Keep supporting each other. Stay safe and stay healthy. I hope to see you all at a race when all this COVID stuff is over.

Despite all of the challenges with the Covid-19 Pandemic in 2020, I had a great year running-wise. I finished the year with 4114 miles, a personal annual distance best!

I (finally) bought a treadmill which has helped during lousy weather, and it is also an occasional nice change of pace.

Grateful to still be streaking and excited to enter year #8. Here's a pic of my best-ever below-zero "ice beard" after finishing the John Dick Memorial 50K in the South Kettle Moraine State Forest in Wisconsin in February. FORWARD!

RANDY LYLE JOINS USRSA

I don't have a lot to say about my running. I am an accidental streak runner. It probably helps that I have a touch of obsessive compulsiveness in me.

I started running in 2008 because my doctor was unhappy with my weight and blood pressure. I started a couch-to-5k program through a local group, Run University, one month before my annual doctor's visit just so I could tell my doctor I was starting to do something about it.

In reality, my plan was to run the 5k and quit. The program was 7 weeks to get to the 5k and I hated every minute of the first 6 weeks. The week before the 5k, our coach, Danny Haralson, had us run the race route so we would be familiar with it. That was the first run that didn't suck.

After the 5k, I decided that it might be fun to stick with it and run a 10k so I did. By then, I was enjoying spending time with the people I ran with and we had become good friends.

I ran my first half marathon 9 months after I started running. I ran my first marathon 8 months later. Since then, I have run 40 marathons or ultramarathons and about 60 half marathons (I lost count).

My streak accidentally started in December 2011. There were several times in 2012 where I thought I would stop it but I couldn't do it. There was another stalker in town, Prince Whatley, that I looked up to and wanted to continue because he was such a good runner. When he found out I had a little streak going, he was always encouraging me. I remember the day it came up to me and asked if my streak was still alive. When I said yes, he informed me that I should have the longest streak in town. I had not heard that he had ended his streak a few months before due to injury. That just added to the pressure to keep going. Eventually, it just became what I do. I run every day.

MICHAEL MISURACA'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

During the last year, with COVID and a frankly distressing year in the news, year four of my running streak was essential to maintaining sanity! Early in 2020, I started training for a marathon. It didn't take long, however, to recognize that there would be no marathons to train for in 2020.

This photo shows my marathon equivalent, a 20- kilometer run to and from the top of Old Glory mountain near Rossland, British Columbia, Canada. My running streak continues to help me be a better spouse, father and person. During the year, it's been inspiring to read about the stories of other people running every day.

What started as a running streak has become a powerful tool to become who you want to be!

The laws of streaking, detailed in this book, unlock consistency not only in running, but in every area of life.

Thank you, fellow streak runners, for showing everyone the power of consecutive consistency. This book details what you know innately.

Purchase your copy of the Streaking book at Amazon, Barnes & Noble, or Indie Book resellers, and download the Streaking app at the Apple App Store or Google Play!

Streaking Endorsements

"Jeff & Jami leverage the power of consistency to create a simple, fun, and easily achievable way for anyone to become the best version of themselves. And Streaking develops self-confidence and an ongoing feeling of success as a byproduct."

Bryan Cipoletti
President, Guardian Protection

"I have been setting "laughably simple" streaks for myself and sharing the technique with my coaching clients and seeing some seriously complex results! When dreaming big, the only way to get started is simply. So when setting these small first steps I say "if it doesn't make you laugh, it's not simple enough."

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

- Rudyard Kipling (1865-1936) from his poem If.

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

While life in 2020 has been a challenge for many, we are all hoping for better things to come in the new year. If all goes as planned, we are looking forward to some significant milestones reached in 2021 including the possibility of a new athlete holding the record for the longest running streak in the world. Right now, Ron Hill, from Hyde, England, has that record having kept his running streak active over 52 years (19,032 days) from 21 December 1964 to 28 January 2017. Again, if all goes as planned, writer and coach Jon Sutherland, from West Hills, California, will tie Dr. Hill's record of 19,032 days on 3 July 2021 and, if you will excuse this American history professor's nationalistic rhetoric, the Yank from California will pass the Brit from England on the 4th of July 2021 – exactly 245 years after the American colony declared its independence from the British Empire. Stay tuned as there are sure to be fireworks should that record be broken.

Also, in store for 2021 and if all goes as planned, Steve DeBoer, our TSR reporter extraordinary from Rochester, Minnesota, will reach 50 years of running at least one-mile a day in June and Alex Galbraith, from Houston, Texas, will reach the same 50-year milestone in December. Steve sent an announcement to SRI/USRSA inviting us to Minnesota for his big day. I plan to be there in Minnesota for the big event. Hopefully, you can make it too. Here is Steve's announcement.

All Streak Runners (Active, Retired, Deceased - Dad Wendell will be there in spirit!) are invited to attend the 50th anniversary celebration of daily 1-31 mile runs for Steve DeBoer in Rochester, Minnesota, tentatively scheduled June 7, 2021 from 5-7:30 PM. No need to wear 3 layers, as the Southern Minnesota Tundra is Frost-free by then. Please contact Steve at stephen.william.deboer@gmail.com if you plan to attend:

Also, in 2021, we have a few runners that have or will mark their 40-year streak anniversaries. Those athletes celebrating their Ruby streak anniversary in 2021 include George Brown (1981-01-06; Richlands, VA, US), John Chandler (1981-08-09; Whitefish Bay, WI, US), Bill Leibfritz (1981-12-03; Midland, MI, US), Frederick Murolo (1981-12-30; Cheshire, CT, US), and Scott Snyder (1981-12-31; Littleton, CO, US). Good luck to all these amazing runners.

Speaking of amazing runners, our cover story this quarter features Eliza Eshelman Miron from Columbia City, Indiana. On 21 September 2002, Eliza, who was a 16 (almost 17) year-old high school student, began her running streak. Her streak is now over 18-years and ranks as the 11th longest female streak in the world. Over the years, Eliza has kept her streak active through some difficult challenges including the birth of her two sons. I had the privilege to meet Eliza and her father, Peter Eshelman, who has a 15+ streak, at the 45th streak anniversary for Raven Kraft in Florida at the end of 2019 and recently was interviewed for her blog, "Daily Run with Za." Please see her amazing story on page 11.

Unfortunately, we also have some sad news to report for our running streak family since our last newsletter. William "Bill" Brady Anderson, of Fort Worth, Texas, died in early January at the age of 75. Started on 27 September 1976, Bill Anderson kept his 44+ year streak active until a few days before his passing. In his memory, we have posted some of the updates he sent to TSR over the years (see page 5). I never met Mr. Anderson personally but his 2012 story about keeping his streak active despite being hospitalized for several days after his appendicitis surgery, resonated with me. In 2015, I found myself hospitalized after falling at the end of the Richmond (Virginia) Marathon. As I lay in the hospital over- night, I thought of Bill Anderson's courage and decided to follow his example when I was released from the hospital the next afternoon. SRI/USRSA wishes to extend our condolences to the entire Anderson family on the passing of a truly streak running legend. He will be missed.

As always, I want to wish everyone good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!

MEMBERSHIP—DUES

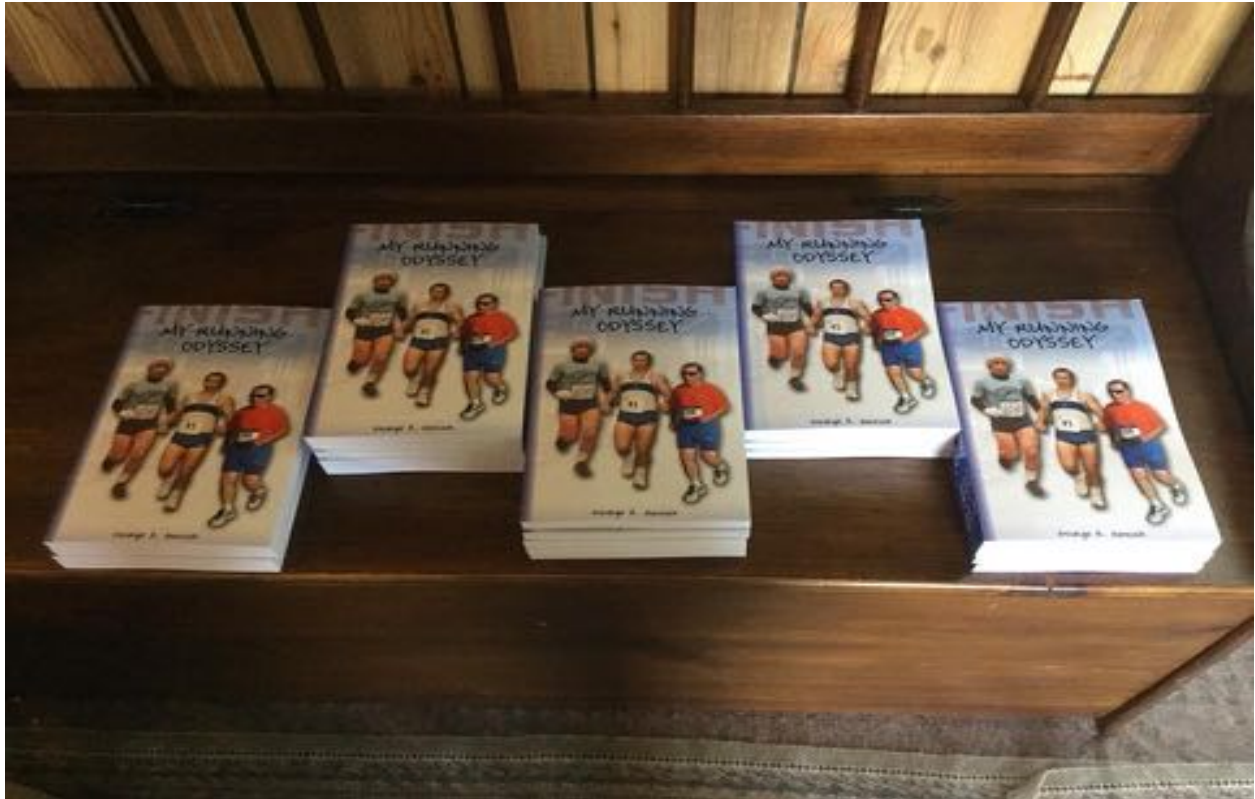

Membership in Streak Runners International and the United States Running Streak Association, Inc. is open to all interested individuals.

SRI/USRSA dues are $20.00 annually or $250.00 lifetime. Credit for one-half of all previously paid dues will be applied to the payment of lifetime dues. Once lifetime membership status is achieved, no further dues will be assessed.

A completely filled out and signed membership application must accompany the dues payment. Applications may be downloaded from our website at www.runeveryday.com, or will be mailed upon request.

STREAK CERTIFICATION

Once a running streak reaches a year in duration it is eligible for listing by SRI/USRSA. Listing of one's active or retired running streak requires a fully completed and signed streak certification form, which may also be downloaded from the SRI/USRSA site or mailed upon request. Although membership is not a requirement for listing, the SRI/USRSA appreciates all contributions to its cause.
