JON SUTHERLAND'S STREAK HITS 50 YEARS;
THE LONGEST ACTIVE STREAK IN THE WORLD;
"The 50TH ANNIVERSARY STREAK CELEBRATION"

By: Jon Sutherland

Wow, what a great weekend. I'm still glowing from all the great people I got to share it with. The celebration was especially sweet because years forty-eight, forty-nine and fifty were very difficult. I tore a ligament near the spine and that made running feel very hard. I went through a lot of pain, unbelievable seizures and spasms. I fell down a lot when I got tired at the end of runs. As soon as I got past that I needed hernia surgery and then during the exams that are necessary before operations I was diagnosed with atrial fibrillation and pulmonary hyper tension. I went through eleven doctor's appointments and a dozen blood tests looking for other issues. The procedure in the hospital went well and I ran the next day no problem; but I noticed that my wind was significantly diminished. I had a lot of trouble learning how to use my body in such a different way. If I went out too fast; I'd be in oxygen debt for the whole run and I couldn't enjoy it. It was discouraging and I thought about chucking it all many times.

Then I started to feel a little better. I started running shake-ups on the dirt dog run behind my house and I enjoyed it. I felt some of the old magic, my form was improving and I began to believe I could run longer and faster. Since then I've retrieved my love of running and I've been on the upswing since. My main problem now is that I'm not as agile and athletic as I was but on a smooth surface I can pick up the pace. On the uneven rutty trails in the park across the street I have to spend all my time looking down instead of at the lush foliage that came after the last fire in November. It swept the rolling hills clean and everybody was talking how much greener the hills were after the heavy rain we had. This past winter was the coldest and wettest in southern California in the last fifty years. Now the hills have started turning golden and yellow with fields of black mustard. I've seen flowers that I had never enjoyed before.

As my fitness increased, I started to get more interested in my anniversary. In the beginning I wanted to keep it quiet but I saw how excited Mark Washburne was so I let it go. I try my best to honor every interview request and question because I feel I owe that to the Streak Institution that it has become. I know Jim Pearson and Steve DeBoer would do the same thing if they were in my position.

Mark started promoting the 50th and I could feel the buzz growing. I started getting e-mails from friends how the weekend was going to play out so Mark and I talked it over. Mark and his wife Diane, as well as Steve DeBoer would fly to LA on Thursday afternoon. We met on Friday morning at the Victory Trail Head where the festivities would take place. We ran up onto Laskey Mesa where there is a spectacular view of the San Fernando Valley and a corner of the Conejo. On that flat hill top there are blessed ocean winds that have cooled me off hundreds of times on summer runs. Then the pictures started happening. We took a bunch on the runway trail. (I named it that when I saw a plane in trouble make an emergency landing there years ago.) Right above that there was a Stonehenge type rock formation getting built and that caught our attention. When we finished we posed under the VTH tall wooden entrance sign. Just a couple hours later we regrouped at the Sagebrush Cantina, one of California's most popular restaurants and one of my favorite watering holes.

The guest of honor was Mark Covert, who is the definition of a streak runner and a great friend of mine. Mark and I met in 1968 and both ran on the LA Valley College's cross country and track teams. We lingered over a two-hour lunch. We traded stories, laughed, joked, and took more pictures. It's always great to see Mark Covert who now is the de-facto leader of the California running community. He is always the first to congratulate any runner's latest achievement on Facebook.

Saturday was an off-day. Steve wanted to take an easy three-mile run because he was running yet another marathon the next day. After that, Mark and Diane took off site seeing and I drove Steve to the Flyway. I worried that I might be forgetting something for the event and when I saw the weather forecast for Sunday May 26th, 2019 it was for 70% rain! The corral where we start running at VTH is all clay so if it rains an inch the soil turns into gooey sticky mud and it's just not runnable. I went and got a tent from Chaminade High School where I coach and prayed for sunshine.

We got a grey cloudy morning. I ran a couple miles early because I wanted to walk jog the course I picked out. Slowly the crowd started to assemble. First to show up was my buddy Dave 'Gigantor' Carlson. We named him that when he came out for cross country as a 195 lb. 6'3" basketball player! My CSUN alums were next, then a massive Notre Dame XC team joined us and a lot of streakers I had never met did as well. My sister and her husband Steve Sundin represented my family. I was in awe at the congregation that had been created. Our special guest was the great Rod Dixon - a four time Olympian, world record holder on several distance relay teams, #1 in the world for 5000M in 1975, two-time podium finisher in the World Cross Country championships, bronze medalist in the 1972 Munich Olympics, and the 1983 New York City Marathon Champion. Runner's World sent a reporter and two photographers. Channel 2 and 9, the local news TV stations sent a van to film the festivities.

I told everybody to line-up. The course would be an out and back run to the newly built big rock formation. Gary Valle, an ultra-running bud of mine, told me that they had added another layer to the foundation. A lot of us have seen it but nobody knows what it's going to be. One guess was it would be Kanye West's new religious forum. I sent all the runners, walkers, hikers, everybody off. I stood in the middle of the crowd trying to high five everybody that ran by. A couple NDXC runners were too enthusiastic and almost knocked me into the scrum.

Then it was time for the Awards Ceremony. Mark Washburne came to the tent and presented me with a wonderful plaque and a lifetime membership to the U.S. Running Streak Association which is very well appreciated. Then it was my turn.

I have a million stories and anybody who knows me will admit that. So I asked everybody if they wanted to hear one they hadn't heard before and they laughed. I'll do my best to recreate it here.

In 1969, the Sutherland family moved in next door to the Ogiela family at the southeast most corner of Las Vegas. The Ogielas had four boys that were roughly the same age as my four sisters so there was a lot of going back and forth. I latched onto Don the third of the four boys and my brother Stuart became friendly with Tom, the youngest son. I saw Tom create so many artistic works I was in awe of him. He could carve, sculpt, draw, make fish flies, invent tools, and paint. He saw all the pictures of Herb Elliott I had on the wall and gave me an oil painting of Herb Elliott winning the 1500-meter gold medal in the 1960 Rome Olympics as I was leaving back for college. Tom was only thirteen! It has been my most prized possession ever since. Tom came to live with me one summer looking for work. I told Tom that one day I would become a good enough runner and Herb Elliott would see his painting. He eventually moved to Colorado where he found work as a carpenter. One day he fell off a scaffold, hit his head, went into a coma and flat lined. He passed at twenty. It killed us all. I still think about Tom fifty years later.

One day, when I was talking with Rod Dixon if he had ever crossed paths with Herb, he said he had and that he had his e-mail address. I asked him to see if Herb would be willing to see the portrait. He did and the next day Herb sent e-mails to both me and Rod saying he loved it and it was the best 'picture' (it's a painting) he had ever seen of that glorious race and it captured the pain, the pressure, and relief it is to become an Olympic champion. I was shaking when I saw Herb Elliott's name in my mailbox. When I read Herb's praise, I immediately called Don Ogiela who quickly called his brothers Phil and Greg. Greg e-mailed me back and told me how much the Ogielas thought of me as a brother and was happy that I kept Tommy in my heart. Then he said, "but it's hard to work when you are crying."

I told Rod about this and he found a way to digitally copy the master and make thirty print copies. Herb agreed to sign twenty-five of them and have them authenticated and numbered. At my 50th running celebration, Rod awarded me with a beautifully formed autographed rendition. Also, he generously donated a copy to the Ogiela family that I was thrilled to give it to Don. I was so happy to honor my promise to Tom and grateful for Rod's determination to make this happen. I don't think I have been that happy in years.

Once again it was time for more pictures. I don't take pictures because if I do I'm not in them! Everybody who wanted one with me was accommodated. As I was standing in the parking lot, my CSUN brothers agreed on a place to get a good meal. We took over the big family table at the Stonefire grill and had another two-hour leisurely lunch. It was so much fun for me to be with great teammates from our era. As I looked around at Don Ogiela, Jimmy Coup (our guest singer/guitarist at VTH), Claude Maugien, Ed Chaidez (NCAA champion), Nancy and Rich Hart (who's father was a US Olympian), Alan Keith Hammond, and Charlie Horn, I felt so content and we agreed to meet in two years and thirty-eight days later if the host could manage a miracle.

I've had a great career being on two State Cross Country championship teams at LAVC, breaking six school records at CSUN, then coaching four All-Americans shortly after. Then I went 'pro' running the fastest 10K in the US for the first four months of 1979, 3rd place in Bay to Breakers, the biggest race on the west coast. I've been on numerous US best lists, broken dozens of course records in California, and won over half of the races I competed in.

Every long-standing distance runner, no matter how good they were, will tell you that the best part of the journey are the people you meet. The great four-time Olympic Champion Emil Zatopek said it the best, "Great is the victory, but the friendship is greater."

Now I have run every day for fifty years and averaged ten miles per day during that span. I'm very proud of that. I was asked many times on my coronation day how long I can keep it going? James Hetfield of Metallica says when he is asked how long his band is going to last he says, "I don't see any F..... stop sign!" I'll give it my best. God Bless you all; and thank you so much!

EARLY STREAK RUNNING IN CALIFORNIA

By: Mark Covert

I first met Jon Sutherland in the fall of 1968 when we both enrolled at LA Valley College and were on the XC team. I was coming into the program knowing little about what I was stepping into and Jon was coming into the program knowing nothing about what was going to happen to him. I had run XC and Track in High School, where Jon had played baseball at his school. I knew little about our coach to be, Laszlo Tabori, where Jon again knew nothing. I remember over that first year how hard it was for Jon to just get through the workout, as it was for all of us, but especially for Jon having never really run before. Jon would work hard, keep getting better, and you could see that he was not going away.

Jon somewhere along the way was living in Las Vegas with his parents and we would exchange letters now and then about how our training was going. Jon had told me that in one of my letters, I had told him that I was closing in on a year of running without missing a day. That was enough for Jon and his streak was on its way. Over the years Jon and I have been good friends. We watched our streaks grow from months to years to decades. During our streaks, we used to run fast, however, there have been plenty of slow runs when we just needed to get in another day. Even though we would sometimes go years without seeing or talking to one another, we always knew that the other one had gotten out the door and went for a run.

My streak ended on July 23, 2013 after 45 years. I chose to end it, not because I couldn't get another day in, but because my feet, which had always given me problems, were not allowing me to do anything more than just get another day in. While my streak ended, Jon's has continued to grow and on May 26 his streak hit 50 years. Congratulations Jon on 50 years and I hope that it will go on until you decide to bring it to an end the way you want.

An inspiring story of perseverance and dedication

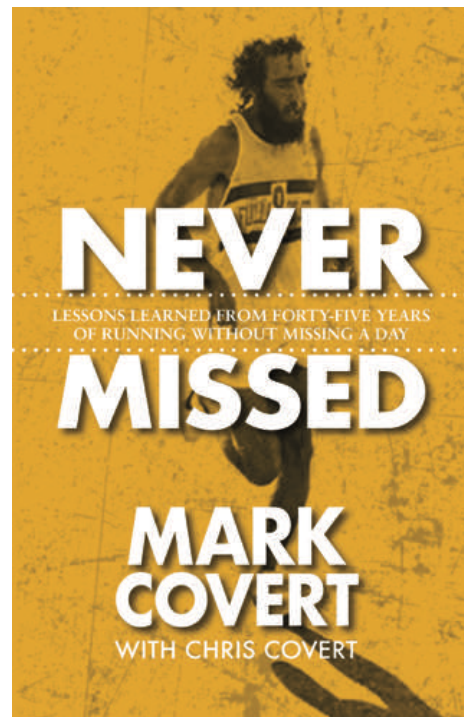

"I got to see Mark Covert run a couple times when I was very young. It was crazy to see all those elite athletes start together and have one man come out on top. The book is an amazing look at Mark's journey and the times through which he was traveling. Other reviewers have used the word "inspiring". It's hard to write about his story without using that word. So happy to have this book written by Mark and his son Chris. Get one for yourself, and one for a friend."

IRELAND'S TOM BLENNERHASSET FINISHES BOSTON MARATHON By: Tom Blennerhasset

Boston Marathon report - summary version : I crossed both lines, stuff happened in the middle!
Now read on if you want the full version and I warn you now - its long.

I went to Boston after a 17-week training program, feeling confident that I could match my qualifying time and perhaps even better it. I'd run 3:35 6 weeks previously in Kinvarra in driving wind and rain. I hadn't missed any long runs so all the pointers were positive. I was ready. All the lead up had been good from getting to Boston, slept and ate well before hand and read all I could about the run so as I'd be ready.

The alarm went off at 5:30am on the morning of the marathon. I'd decided to not have cereal as usual so a rice krispy bar and mug of coffee did the morning routine perfectly. Put on my throw away layers, picked up all my gear for before and afterwards, put on my rain cape and the taxi collected me at 6:10. The first thing that hit me when I went outside of the apartment was firstly it wasn't raining, secondly it wasn't cold and thirdly the humidity was a shock. As our relations in Cape Cod say "you could bite the air."

Uber driver was a gas man – regaling me with YouTube clips of a comedian telling jokes about the last royal wedding, then on to the Dropkick Murphys, a version of Come out you Black and Tans and asking me numerous times would I win today. Best driver ever and really distracted me from the day ahead. Just as he was dropping me to Boston Common, the drops of rain appeared – once out of the car the monsoon rain, thunder and lightning hit. Well done Tom – rain cape saving me. Bag drop was seamless and easy despite the conditions. The rows of yellow school busses were lined up and I got onto one quickly and glad to escape from the rain.

These school buses look great but they are for kids! I'm not tall but I got an ache in my glute sitting with the knees up to fit in the inside seat – lesson one – take an outside seat on the bus. An hour out to Hopkington and we were at the athletes village at about 8:10 and the rain had stopped thankfully.

At the Athletes Village, I was also ready by having read stories from last year. Couldn't get to the toilets without destroying your footwear. Tents, while covering the fields, were pure mud also. But I had my bin bag to sit on and ate a banana and two cookies that I had stole on Mairead who still hasn't forgiven me for taking! Trying my best to relax but just no comfort.

At about 9:30am I got up and started to get myself organised. Towelled off my feet, and put on dry socks and runners – life saving tip from last year's posts also. We got called to the starting waves close to 10am so began to shed the layers. Kept the hoodie for another while but could have kept it all the way to my corral. Big batch of portaloos just before the start also that were another life saver as they were on concrete and it was safe to use them with the dry runners.

Two women from Cork pass me on the way to their corral after spotting the Brendan's Running Club shirt – great to chat for the few seconds and wish each other luck. I'm standing in Wave 2, Corral 5 – and I'm feeling calm. No aches and pains, feeling rested, and I tell myself I've earned this, I deserve to be here, I belong here. That wave of feelings have never happened to me before at a start line and it's a revelation.

And we're off. Dry weather, everyone around you going at the same pace, crowds cheering – this is Boston. Gary sent me off with marathon pace of 7:30 min miles and to give it socks. Brendan told me to leave nothing out there, but I was happily barreling along and even felt I was holding back as we flew downhill. Before I knew it we were at mile 1 and the first water station – they are at every mile! I was happy as I was carrying 2 small bottles so as I could avoid stopping and wouldn't have to negotiate drinking from cups – more research paying off! I was surprised though how many went for water so early though.

Mile 2, 3, 4, 5 all uneventful – enjoyed the scenery, the crowds, and feeling comfortable, but was sweating up a storm. Took first dextro glucose tab at mile 5, first problem of the day – couldn't get them out of the sealed pouch and ended up ripping the bag to get at them. At 6 miles in 45 mins so all going to plan. Over the next 4 miles I began to think about the next parts of the run. Take salt tab at mile 10 to mind the hydration as the sun was coming out now – though it might lift the humidity – nope! I slowed slightly for miles 8, 9 and 10 as I reckoned I'd burn out with the conditions if I didn't behave a bit.

Mile 11 – hello blister! I must not have smoothed out the sock on the damp foot before getting the dry runners on and had a small crease of some description beginning to hurt my right foot. Ah it'll be grand, slow a little and it'll abate. Nope! This mile was 8:44 as I tried to fix the runner/sock but no joy. So slowed down to about 8 min miles for the next three miles, hitting half way at about 1hr 42 mins and thinking to myself that I can still do well here if I manage it well.

Mile 15 came and I got the first indication that the day was about to get a lot tougher. Got an ache in the middle of my left knee. What the hell was causing this? Sitting funny on the school bus, sitting on a bin bag in the mud, running different to ease off the blister – I just don't know. Mile 15 and 16 in 8:50, not the end of the world, hopefully it will all ease out.

Mile 17 and I was really looking forward to seeing Mairead who had negotiated the T and made her way out to meet me. Big hug and a kiss really lifted the spirits. Told her I was struggling now and that I'd be a bit later to the finish line than expected. Was beginning to get sunburnt now too! 10:00, & 11:32 for 17 & 18 doing walk jog, began then to think I was ok and did 8:43 for mile 19. Then the knee gave me another shot and ground me to a halt! Slowed again to walk/jog for the next 4 miles at about 12 min miles. 25 & 26 were 16 mins as I had to walk it all. Sole of the right foot not helping either!

Mile 26 and Mairead was waiting for me again with another kiss, hug and handed me the Ireland flag and told me to finish the job. I went to go on and another Irish runner, Petrina from Meath, let a roar at me too. I ran that last stretch, all of Boylston Street and crossed the line on 4:15. And then the monsoons came back again and drenched us to the skin and froze us once more!

Collected my medal - that cherished unicorn, got my gear no problem and headed off to meet up with Mairead who was getting me a sugar laden coffee!. Got changed slowly and bumped into my Uber driver from this morning roaring at me "Well - did you win?"

So that's the story, warts and all. None of it matters though as I'm a Boston qualifier, a Boston finisher and I had one of the greatest days of my running career to date. The support of the crowds was awesome, the event was magnificent and I had so many people with me out there following me on the tracker and cheering me on.

I've chased the unicorn for 7 years and now I have it – don't tell Mairead though but I think it looks lonely and would love a friend for company!

Finally, thank you to all, for the best wishes, encouragement and congratulations. Thank you to Gary Ohanlon who got me to the start line with a plan that challenged me, changed me and had me ready.

Thank you to my other coach, mentor and friend Brendan Loughlin – so proud to wear the new international Brendan's Running Club shirt and for being a small part of such a great club and group. Thank you to all of my club friends also who shared so many miles with me as I bored them to death with my stories of training.

But finally thank you to Mairead – I just couldn't have done any of this without you, you made my dreams become a reality and shared every step of the journey with me. "Together we're invincible."

BTW - I still look better than yer man!

Traversing the Tundra – 60% Solution (Plus Cities & Metropolitan Areas) Revisited By: Steve DeBoer

For those of you not familiar with the most famous fictitious detective, Sherlock Holmes, one of his most well-known quotations was, “The game is afoot!” which obviously refers to the necessity of being very physically fit to work as a private investigator, with running being the fastest form of foot power. Mr. Holmes was also noted for using a 7% solution (of cocaine), when he had no interesting cases going on and got bored playing his violin. As streak runners, we have less of a propensity for “Coke,” as things go better for us when we experience the 60% solution – that is the attempt to run daily for at least 60% of our lives. Among streak runners, it is more challenging than covering 100,000 miles (77 of our group have accomplished that, with Norm Spitzig reaching that mileage the last week in March).

Though Ted Corbitt and Bob Ray were the earliest US streak runners that have been certified, neither of them actually achieved 60% (Bob was at 55.9% when he retired his 38-year streak in 2005). Bob Hensley was the first to reach 60% in 1992. Mark Covert followed in 1995 and Steve DeBoer in 1996. For comparison, Ron Hill, who began his running streak December 1964, at age 26, did not reach 60% until age 67 in 2005 (he was at 66.51% when his 52-years of daily runs ended in January 2017).

Lois Bastien, who has the longest running streak by a woman (39 years) is only at 47%, since she began daily runs after age 42. She will not reach 60% until she is almost 108 years old! On the other hand, Sierra Stempke started her streak before age 4 and could reach 60% in 3 years, just before her 10th birthday!!

Twelve years ago there were only 9 runners in this category in the US. Now there are 45, some of whom are now below 60%, having discontinued streak running, with 10 more within 2% of that number. Bob Hensley was also the first to reach 70% in 2006, before his 3rd running streak ended. Now there are 8 that have been over 70%, including Joel Pearson, who began his streak before his 9th birthday.

Here is the list of those who have run at least 1 mile daily (along with their age and years of longest streak) for at least 60% of their life as of June 1, 2019:

Steve DeBoer is the first documented streak runner to have run daily for 75% of his life, though this is not “US Streak Association official,” since he ran less than 1 mile several times the first 10 ½ months. Ron Hill is the only person outside of the US who has run daily over 60% of one’s life. Rick Rayman of Toronto is the next closest to get there but at 55.5% currently. Sue Favor is the only woman over 60%. Julie Maxwell may soon become the 2nd woman to do so.

Regarding number of people streaking in cities and metro areas, Fergus Falls, MN continues by a large margin to have the highest percentage of their population doing it, whether we look at places over 5,000 population or over 10,000 population. Just looking at those over 10,000 as of 2017, here is the listing of the top twelve by numbers and by population percentage:

BY NUMBERS

BY PERCENTAGE (Per Million Residents)

Portland, OR	22	1. Fergus Falls, MN	826 per million resident*
Rochester, MN	19	2. Williamsburg, VA	400 per million (6 total)
Minneapolis, MN	19	3. Katy, TX	333.3 per million (6 total)
Phoenix, AZ	18	4. Decatur, GA	250.0 per million (6 total)

Austin, TX	11	11. Cheyenne, WY	78.1 per million (5 total)
Atlanta, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, Raleigh	10	12. Bloomington, MN	69.8 per million (6 total)

* 11 total, all active, though 2 (Craig Davidson to Phoenix, AZ; Gordy Strickland to Rochester, MN) have moved.

Honorable mention goes to Signal Mountain, TN, having 5 streak runners, all currently active, with a rate of 555.5 per million residents (their population of 8,560 is just under the cutoff). Four of their streakers are in the same family, whereas #1, Fergus Falls, has 6 from the same family.

When looking at those who run daily in larger cities, they are often part of a larger metropolitan area (MSA), so I am also including numbers for those, mainly Combined Statistical Area (CSAs), which are larger than the MSAs. Using 2017 population estimates, as of 4/27/19, here are the top 20 by numbers and by percentage. New York has added 63 persons in the last 20 months; Boston has added 44, DC is up by 43, and Minneapolis-St. Paul added 42!

TOP Streak Runner CSAs/MSAs (number)

New York (includes parts of PA, CT & NJ)	144 (was 81 in August 2017)

Pittsburgh	26 (was 17)

Other CSAs/MSAs with 20 or more are St. Louis (25), Indianapolis (24), Milwaukee (22), Cleveland (21), and San Diego (20).

Even though the NYC area has the most people who have run daily, with 23.9 million people (8 times as many as Mpls-St. Paul), their rate is only 6.0 per million residents.

Indianapolis, IN	24	10.0 (was 5.9)
Cincinnati, OH	18	9.04 (was 3.6)
Cape Coral/Ft. Myers, FL	10	8.99 (was 7.4)

I decided to add the top ten states too. Keep in mind, CSAs like New York, DC and Boston cover residents in other states, which is why the state numbers are actually lower in some cases!

I recently learned that a fellow streak runner has passed away. Bill Roger, Sr., of Levelland, TX, was on the original list of daily runners put together by George Hancock published in December 1994 at #39 (Streak began Nov 12, 1986). When I did an update of what happened to the 51 runners on that 1994 list in 2013, he was still running daily but had not registered his streak with the US Running Streak Association. He thought he had but probably never responded after the one-mile minimum distance was agreed upon. He was born March 22, 1939 and died Nov 27, 2018, age 79. He completed 26 marathons, including Boston twice and New York once. His obituary noted his strong Christian faith, with his wife and 3 children surviving.

On April 9th, I passed a notable milestone. I began my first running streak on that day in 1969. Who knows how long I might have kept going if the Running Streak Association had existed back then? If I had run a minimum 1 mile each day from that time, I would now be at 50 years. In reality, an ankle sprain 10 months later during basketball practice, ended that streak. But I did live to “Streak Again”!

PATRICK FARISS' STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Just finished 6 years of running every single day. I took my 2-mile minimum to 3.1 miles starting on December 15, 2017, and I think I'll keep this streak-within-a-streak up for the foreseeable future. This last year's most memorable runs include running (again) on a cruise ship, running at 3 a.m. because of an early morning flight (at least 5 times), and having my 9-year old join me on our Saturday morning runs. I'm honored to be a part of such a worthy endeavor!

AMBER YOUNG'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

March 1st 2019! A day to celebrate 6 amazing years of running every day! And a minimum of a 5k since January 1st 2016. As well as at least 150 miles per month for the last 1.5 years! So streaks within the streak!!!

It's not always been easy, but I am so thankful for every mile. As anyone knows who has attempted the journey, it takes a level of commitment and dedication. My family and friends have also been instrumental in my success. And there have been many great miles!

I have run across the Grand Canyon and through Antelope Canyon so many adventures and distances up to a 100k last year. I never imagined I would make it this far, and in 2 weeks I will be running my first 100 miler! We shall see what the next day brings. Wish me luck!!!

ALEXANDER KRULL'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

In 2014 I was determined to get back to running consistently. My commitment had been sporadic at best after high school ended. I had to rely mostly on myself for motivation as I was not a member of my university's running team or club. So in February of 2014 I decided to start on a running streak.

It was going well, and I felt like I could keep it going for a while, but then March 8th happened. I had an event I was working all day, then went out to dinner to celebrate. That wouldn't have been an issue at all. I could have easily run a mile after that. But some friends I hadn't seen in a while called me during dinner and I headed over immediately after. I didn't have a change of clothes. We ended up playing games, talking, drinking, and watched Wolf of Wall Street starting at maybe 9:30 or 10. It's a good movie, but a long one. I ended up getting home at 2 or 3 a.m., not having run at all and ending my initial attempt at a streak just thirteen days in. After sleeping off the booze and late night, I got out for a run of over two miles on March 9th. That's when my current streak began.

I've run through any number of interesting circumstances, as I'm sure many of you have. Notable challenges I have encountered include an 8 a.m. wisdom teeth extraction. I ran at 1 a.m. so I didn't have to worry about running after surgery that day, although I wound up getting less than six hours sleep.

In April of 2017 I ran through some pain and ended up making things a lot worse. The result was piriformis syndrome for over a month and I wasn't really fully back to full strength until July. I even had to opt out of running a race for the first time ever, and it's still the only race I've had to cancel. I signed up for it again the next year and won (setting a course record along the way). So, all things considered, I feel I redeemed myself.

In July of last year, I became a bit too dehydrated on a fifteen mile run on a very hot day. I ended up passing out later on in the evening, only for a second or two but long enough to fall over and hit my forehead against the edge of a counter. I had to cut back on my running for about a week after because of my concussion symptoms. And then there are the days when I just don't feel like getting out. Sometimes it's the weather, sometimes I'm tired and/or hungry, sometimes I just want to sit around at home. I'm committed to the streak, though, and more dedicated to my running than I've ever been.

Over the past five years I have run an estimated 19,289 miles, with an average mile time of 6:50. I totaled over 5000 miles last year alone! I've run plenty of races, made any number of new friends, and enjoyed myself immensely. Hopefully there are many more awesome years of the streak to come. I wish the same to all of you and am thankful to be a member of such an accomplished community. Cheers!

BILL ROBERTSON'S STREAK HITS 42 YEARS

February 7 marked 42 years of running at least 3 miles a day. I do run some treadmill but don't count that for the streak. Winter in Massachusetts has not been too bad this year, the usual cold and not too much snow. I was able to get to Florida for a week during the streak anniversary. Most runs lately have been with my 9-month-old son Ryan in a running stroller - it lets him sleep, his mother gets a break and I get to run.

BEN ZICKAFOOSE'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

My name is Ben Zickafoose, 42, from Wichita, KS, and I am nowhere near many of you in my streak journey. However, this accomplishment is my greatest athletic achievement and something that I am proud to have started. Today, March 14, 2019, marks the completion of my 4th year of running everyday - no matter the schedule, health, or location! What began as a 30-day challenge on March 15, 2015 (my son Jack's birthday), has now turned into a daily habit (obsession) of beginning each day by putting my running shoes on before I do anything else.

Those of you who are ahead of me and those who are behind me in my streak are an added motivation to keep the streak alive! During the streak I have run over 2,600 miles and have run in 22 different states. This has included runs in the mountains, on beaches on both coasts, in the country, in city streets, and of course on my laundry room treadmill!

As I celebrate the completion of 4 years of running each day, I am thankful for the ability to have made it to this point, and also hopeful that I can make it through tomorrow's run to add another day to the streak! Good luck on your journey, and I hope I never improve my rank so we can all keep increasing our streak!

TUCKER ANDERSEN'S STREAK HITS 27 YEARS

During 2018, I turned age 76 and despite some occasional problems kept my streak alive and completed over 2000 miles for the sixth year in a row.

My most memorable achievement was extending my longest racing streak by finishing the 18-Mile Long Beach Island, NJ run - a wonderful event which I recommend to all. In 1975, it was the first race that I ever ran - two-years after I started running in 1973. I have participated every year since then, and in which I earned my first medal ever, a silver when I turned age 60 and the age group competition had thinned considerably.

The next month I completed my 41st NYC, one of three runners tied for second place in number of finishes there. And 34 days later I completed my 48th total marathon, the Kiawah Island Marathon, and my daughter completed the half marathon there despite her MS.

I am very pleased that I continue to be able to complete these long distances runs, and accept the reality that my times are almost exactly double my best times that I ran in the late 1970's.

Around Christmas as I recovered from my worst cold in years. I noticed some tightness in my chest when I exerted myself whether running or climbing hills or lifting heavy objects. I cut back on my mileage and waited to recover from my illness in the hope that was the cause. However, it persisted and the symptoms were similar to those diagnosed over six years ago due to an over 90% blockage in my left coronary artery descending.

As a precaution, I visited my cardiologist and the catherization, which he scheduled on January 30th as a precaution revealed another artery blockage of over 90% and necessitated the placement of two additional stents.

Of course, I planned for this possibility and kept my streak alive by getting a mile in on the road early in the morning of the procedure and then completed an easy mile the following evening approximately 30 hours after the procedure was completed. I had followed this procedure to maintain my streak on some previous occasions, including after my previous stent placement, my prostate cancer surgery, hernia surgery, and a fractured shoulder sustained during a race. Thus, while still only gradually raising my times and increasing my pace I was able to celebrate the completion of the 27th year of my streak symptom free a week later on February 6th.

Fortunately, my years of LDR had provided me was such amazing collateral circulation that I had been able to stay healthy and run marathons despite my arterial blockages. Luckily, I paid attention to the subtle background symptoms of heart disease which developed. But, I was not able to overcome the genetic history of my family, which on my father's side had a history of all males having coronary artery disease. So, my running has not only been a wonderful journey of self-discovery and personal achievement, but in all likelihood a lifesaving regimen as well.

My current goals are to keep the streak alive one day at a time, and to complete my 49th and 50th marathons in NYC and at Kiawah Island later this year.

TIM WOODBRIDGE'S STREAK HITS 41 YEARS

Thanks for the 41st anniversary wish from the USRSA! Always enjoy getting that message!

I know I had mentioned last year that my 40th year was a real challenging year – but unfortunately compared to this year – that year was a piece of cake! I technically broke my own streak definition (which when I started my streak back in 1978 – I personally had a minimum of “outside running mileage” and a “time requirement”).

I was able to keep the USRSA definition streak alive by running my mile on a treadmill, although I had several days with over 15- minute miles – which I'll explain!

I did want to say that I continue to enjoy the USRSA Facebook page – it's good to see how many people are sticking to their goals and hitting those milestones – it certainly is a fun forum to keep up with everyone!

Again - I feel like I've really learned that you are blessed to be able to do what you do each day and just enjoy the streak – for as long as that lasts! I did spend over 4,200 minutes in the running pool at my gym, while it doesn't help my mileage totals – it does help with overall fitness!

I did have a couple of trips to the emergency room this year that did challenge my running streak. In March I had some issues with BPH – guess age is catching up with me – but was able to keep the streak alive – although had several days of the one-mile streak saver... In June was working on my deck and fell off and tore some meniscus in my right knee (again talking about getting old – the orthopedic Drs said at “my age” they didn't want to do anything except give me a shot).

Then late October – I was leaving early as I had a board presentation at work – I backed out of my garage, down the driveway and was pulling away when I realized I didn't have a key to the main office. (I keep that on my truck key ring as I usually only go to the main office on Saturday when no one is in.) I pulled back into the driveway and ran back into the house to get my key...

As I cut around my wife's car – leather shoes on the icy blacktop – created a major issue – as I fell directly on the left side of my face – full impact – fractured face bones in multiple places with 3 displaced fractures – and a concussion. So I am now the proud owner of 2 metal plates and 8 screws in my face. As the surgeon said – it could have been worse if the impact was over a couple of inches.

With the fractures, surgery and concussion – that lead to a couple of weeks of running the one-mile streak saver on the treadmill. My wife and children took turns watching me run to make sure nothing happened – so as usual – have to give my family a “shout out” for the continued support over the last 41 years – and this year especially!

I did do my 61st mile birthday “run” again this year – completing a total of 61 miles of swimming, biking and running. Am working on my strategy for keeping that going and doing the 62 miles coming up in June as it is my game – so I am looking at changing some of the rules (the swim takes me almost an hour now – and I think it’s time to make it a bi-athlon)!

Again – thanks to the association for keeping up on all the streaks – I always appreciate getting the newsletter and catching up with all the different streak anniversaries! So keep up the great work – and keep on running!

BILL MIDDLEBROOK'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

Today, Sunday, March 31, 2019, marks the 9th anniversary that I have run at least one mile every day without missing a day. Not bad for a 76-year old man!! Right?

I began this most current running streak on March 31, 2010. During the last nine years I have run a total of 3,288 days and 7,406 miles.

I actually began my initial running streak on February 29, 2008 and became a member of United States Running Streak Association on February 28, 2009. I continued this initial streak until March 11, 2010. Juanita and I had just taken a trip to California and I returned with something that I picked up along the way and I had to go to the local Emergency Care Center for diagnosis and meds. That took me off my feet until I began my current streak on March 31, 2010.

I normally run early in the morning as soon as I have completed my Bible reading and prayer time. No matter what the weather is, I prepare for it and do it whether cold and snowing or warm and raining.

I have adopted the US Postal Service motto as my motto: "Neither snow nor rain, nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

Of course, I have changed it slightly so that my Streak Running motto is: "Neither snow nor rain, nor heat nor gloom of night shall keep me from running at least one mile every day and remaining a loyal member of the United States Running Streak Association."

I tell people that I do the daily runs just as much for mental exercise as I do for physical exercise. There is something about being out there every day that just clears the mind. I also say that I do it for spiritual exercise enjoying the beauty of God's creation all around me here in Colorado Springs or wherever I may be and also praying along the way for those who live in or near the areas where I run.

I am so grateful for the USRSA and the great incentive that they give me to not miss a single day of running at least one mile no matter what the circumstances might be nor where I might be on any given day. I consider myself to be so truly Blessed and I just pray that I will continue to have good health so that I can continue on this running streak for years to come.

KIRK WILBUR'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

On March 20, 2019, I transitioned from "neophyte" to "proficient" (according to USRSA's classifications) when my run streak hit five years. The previous night, I celebrated my fifth "runiversary" the same way I'd celebrated the prior four: at my local bar eating ice cream cake and drinking beers with close friends.

The past year—particularly the beginning of 2019—has treated me pretty well. After two years of off-and-on leg and piriformis issues, I've been injury-free for quite a few months. In October, I hit a new PR at the Urban Cow Half Marathon in Sacramento, finishing in 1:38:32. I also hit a PR in weekly mileage recently, hitting 76.3 miles between Monday, March 11, 2019 and Sunday, March 17, 2019. I continue to love running and relish keeping the streak alive. I look forward to another year!

LAURA HAST'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Today 03/26/19 is my 4-year streak anniversary, small compared to my retired streak from 1999-2012 that ended @ 12 years, 9 months, 4,672 days (stress fracture in foot) but goal this time is to stay healthy & uninjured.

Definitely important to "run smart" - I've found since I turned 50 I "break" easier. I hear from many non-streak runners that running every day isn't good for me but I choose to take my chances on that.

I had a pinched intercostal nerve a couple weeks ago & the nurse advised me to not run - I told her "Thanks but I'm going to run anyway." If I'm sitting in a chair & you ask me how I am, I will probably say "fine" but if I can't run a mile, I'm definitely NOT FINE. In fact, I can qualify how "fine" I am by how well that mile goes.

I can't imagine not running every day. My husband is a good sport about it & very supportive but the rest of my family less so. I'm happy here in my crazy streaking running world & isn't happy what it's really all about? I've included my favorite race photo - it looks like I'm beating him but he found another gear & crossed the finish line first. Wish I could find him & thank him for a great race.

GREG REDEKER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

April 1st, 2019 I just completed my second year of consecutive days running. For year two of this streak my goal was to hit at least 3 miles a day. I accomplished that and as of eight months ago I have been hitting at least 4 miles every day.

I began the streak 2 years after breaking my right hip. Prior to breaking my hip I had completed more than 20 years consecutive. I never knew about this club so I never signed up. Anyway, have a good run.

JOHN DANIELSON'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 3,746 DAYS

I had to end my streak on 3/27 with my final run having hurt my left foot the week before. I told my family in the morning and told my girls track team yesterday afternoon I would not be running with them. Some cried, did not realize how many people were touched by my streak. Hopefully, I can rest up and start another streak at some point. I really appreciate all your efforts as the Streak Master. I will continue to support this group for many years to come!

The streak is still alive; I'm "Proficient" now. All runs have been outside and at least 5.5 miles the last two years.

SAM LATHROP BECOMES LIFETIME MEMBER OF SRI/USRSA

I write this from 30,000 feet, I presume halfway to Los Angeles. I'm not a terribly good runner, most of my runs are 1.15 miles these days. I did lock in my streak for today over lunch since I land in LAX and continue further westward an hour later.

Sam Lathrop

I started streaking because I would start running, and then decide I didn't feel like running the next day, for the next few months. You can credit Jason Gay of the Wall Street Journal for introducing me to streak running. Mr. Gay wrote an article sometime between 2011 and 2012 about streakers that I happened to read while on the road. It was the title that drew me in, but it took me a few months to kick it off on a treadmill in a Fairfield Inn gym somewhere in Minnesota.

My greatest challenges are boredom and time: there are only so many routes I can do near my home and I constantly find other demands on my time (nothing too serious, but I like TV).

Unintentionally I've found myself putting off my nightly run until 11:50 PM. I try not to, but the pressure to finish before midnight makes it interesting. I'm fortunate to travel a fair bit for work, and those weeks I log substantially more than my average. I keep my streak based on Eastern Standard Time with some weird rules around DST. It gets difficult when halfway around the world, but the challenge is worth it.

I credit streaking with losing 30 lbs initially and keeping 20 of it off. I also took extreme pride in listing the US Running Streak Association as an organizational affiliation on my Russian Visa application; as far as I can tell, recreational running in Russia hasn't really taken off.

Being a lifetime member now, I really can't quit. And I'm glad for that. I'll keep running and let you know if anything changes.

JOHN MANNINGS' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

My second year of the streak has resulted in a 5k PB (15.50), a half marathon PB, (77.43) and on my 2-year streak anniversary a marathon PB (2:40.06) at the Manchester marathon.

I'm still chasing a 10k PB, but hoping to do that this summer as I carry my streak into it's 3rd year.

My streak is a mix of road, trail, track and cross country running.

RON SHEALY'S STREAK HITS 18 YEARS

The 18th year of my running streak turned out to be a great one! And for that I am very thankful.

--1832 miles run (182 more than last year).

--Reached 85K and later in year 86K lifetime miles (I have been a serious runner for 41 years).

--Completed quest to run in all 50 states with August runs in Anchorage and Seattle.

--Streak continues to be longest active one registered by South Carolinians and recently exceeded length of retired streaks registered by Palmetto State residents.

--Ran 1:53:31 half marathon just three weeks before my 73rd birthday.

Kendra Bealmear

KENDRA BEALMEAR'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

On April 9, 2019 I celebrated four years of running every day a/k/a KCFlash Streak #3. My first streak ended at 300 days and my second streak ended at two years, both with injuries.

I'm a lifelong runner but only started streaking in 2011. I read an article about streaking and thought it would be a fun challenge.

Since the early 1980's, I've completed 478 races of all distances from the mile to a 50-mile race. Streaking has helped me in recent years stay somewhat competitive in my age group which is currently 60-64. I don't do any speed work, races are my speed work.

The consistency of running every day has been more beneficial to my well being than I could have imagined. Of course, some days are easier than others but overall I've enjoyed every step that I've taken.

Just completed my 150th career 5K race at the Carlsbad 5000 and am looking forward to completing my 100th 10K race in the next couple of months. Because my knees have been protesting and insisted, I ran my final (and 61st) marathon in 2018 at my hometown race, the Kansas City Marathon.

I have covered approximately 7,197 miles during my current streak and look forward to covering many more miles in the days and years to come.

It is not a question of "will I run today" but "when will I run today." My motto is "Keep on Truckin..." and that is what I intend to do.

PATRICK FERRY'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 2,293 DAYS

On March 31, 2019 my streak ended after 2293 days and just under 11,000 miles over that period. I collapsed leading worship services on campus and hit my head on the hard floor. Taken by ambulance to the hospital, I was kept overnight for observation. Unable to have my two IVs removed, I could not persuade the medical staff to let me out of bed for a mile run! In the end, it was Influenza A that was my undoing. I never thought it would end. Now I am looking forward to starting over.

My love of running was born at the age of 16 upon winning my division in a local 5K — and has been my lifeblood ever since. Long distance became my passion after I ran my first marathon in Toronto and qualified for Boston. I've run in 50+ races, including 16 full marathons (9 Bostons), and 13 half marathons with a goal of "running when I'm 80." I serve on the Board of Directors for Boston Road Runners, and work as an Agile Coach in financial services IT when I'm not running.

I've also attached a photo of me running the Boston Marathon.

CHRIS GRAHAM'S STREAK HITS 30 YEARS

I just completed a 2-mile run to complete the year from April 16, 2018 through April 15, 2019 and certify that I ran at least 2 miles every day during that period, in addition to every day since April 16, 1989.

I also ran 50K in a 6-hour trail ultra on April 13, 2019, but didn't have any trouble punching out 2 miles the next day.

The only other notable event for me this year was a trip to Italy. Because the time zones confuse me, I ran just before leaving and just after landing - both ways.

DANIEL VIRTUE STREAK HITS 5 YEARS; JOINS USRSA

Yesterday [20 April 2019] was my five-year running streak anniversary, which is why I joined the association. I found the website when I started my streak years ago, but I wanted to wait until now to join, just to make myself earn it a little more.

I have been running Marathons since 2009. I have completed 13 full marathons and one ultra where I ran the unique distance of thirty-miles.

I started running every-day in 2014. In my first year I ran some runs on a treadmill. After my first year, I have run almost exclusively outside, with the only exception a run I did in the Narita Airport in 2016.

My current PR is 3:15:22 at the GO! in 2016. I had my two best marathon times before that in 2015 (3:17:58 at the GO! and 3:18:58 at the Mo' Cowbell Marathon).

What I lack in speed, I make up for in consistency and endurance. Since I started my streak I have run 7,303.91 miles averaging almost 4 miles a day.

My current goals are to run every-day, run at least one marathon every-year, and to run at least a 1,000 miles every-year.

I had the crazy idea of keeping a blog of my runs when I started, which is still up at virtuesruns.blogspot.com, but I have not kept it updated for years. I hope to start updating it again someday.

CHRIS KUNKEL'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,008 DAYS

My running streak has ended after 1,008 days.

Unfortunately for me, my body broke down to where even cortisone could not help. Time to let my right knee heal with some well-deserved rest.

Cheryl Wheeler

CHERYL WHEELER JOINS USRSA

My name is Cheryl Wheeler. I live in Simi Valley, California and am 42 years old. I've always liked running and it was my go to throughout my high school and younger years but was never really a constant till around my 30's. I would run to lose a few pounds here and there or if I felt I needed to be healthier but never really stuck to any regiment for long.

One year I was talking about wanting to be healthier and wanting to run again but had every excuse, like, "it's too hot" or "too cold" etc. So, my husband bought me a treadmill. My thought was "Crap! he actually bought this for me, now I HAVE to use it." That turned into a new love for running.

After the treadmill came the thrill of outside running and my first race was a marathon. I didn't do too bad for a first timer. After that I started running in 5Ks, 10Ks, half marathons, and 3 more marathons. My husband was running with me as well and started his streak before me. After almost a year I thought to myself, "I can do that too." I celebrated my 7-year streak on January 30th of this year. I heard about USRSA a while ago but wanted to make sure I was fully committed before joining. I pretty much just run for fun these days at about 5 miles per day. At this point I cannot see breaking my streak any time soon and hope to continue running for many, many years to come.

Craig Whitfield

CRAIG WHITFIELD'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

On May 1st, 2019 my run streak will reach 3 years. I am still going strong and happy I started it. I do not view my daily run as a drudgery I have to do in order to stack up the days; rather, a period of time in during the day that I look forward to and typically brings me enjoyment.

I do most of my running in the morning with my pacer/bordercollie, primarily so she doesn't torture the cat when I'm at work.

Craig Whitfield

DAN FURLONG'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

As I have grown older, my running pace has continued to slow. However, I have also found that I am no longer concerned about my time.

Typically, my Garmin watch will beep, indicating I have completed a mile, and I will look at the time and think, "Wow! That was slow," and continue along without a thought.

More importantly, I am enjoying my running more. As such, I increased my daily mileage throughout much of 2018. By the early fall, I was averaging eight-plus miles a day during the work week and 10-plus miles on the weekend.

After doing the math in late September, I realized that if I increased my daily mileage, I would have a realistic shot at compiling more than 3,000 miles for the calendar year.

Although I accomplished my goal (finishing with 3,008), I also developed a nagging pain in my left knee. I ran through this throughout much of November and December, but decided my New Year's resolution would be to run less.

Throughout the first four months of the year, I am averaging six miles a day. My knee has improved slightly, but I think that can be attributed to daily icings and ibuprofen.

My favorite time of the day to run remains the early-morning hours. I usually arrive at work just before 7:00 am, and I set my alarm for 4:00 am and try to head out the door by 4:30 am. I have grown to view this as the only time of the day over which I have complete control. I can decide the pace, distance, time and route.

Typically, I will have a predetermined course in mind, but that usually changes as I start running and wander down the various side roads and housing developments of my community.

JUNICHIRO KONO'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

My streak is still going very well! It is very cool to look back on some of my new accomplishments as I begin the 4th year of my running streak. In this past year, I ran a total of 1340.78 miles, 111.73 miles per month, or 25.78 miles per week (compared to 1191.96 miles/year, 99.33 miles/month, or 22.92 miles/week, respectively, in my 2nd year).

In January 2019, I ran my 13th Houston Marathon, finishing in 3:52:24. I also completed a half marathon in 1:46:57 in February 2019 as well as two Olympic distance triathlon races last fall.

I am a research-active professor and often travel to Asia and Europe for conferences and collaborations, and I must be very careful in choosing flights.

Traveling to Asia is particularly tricky because you have to cross the International Date Line. Even if you run in the morning before you go to the airport in Houston, it is already the afternoon or evening of the next day when you land in Japan, Korea, or China; therefore, you have to dash to your hotel to check in and go for a run sometime before midnight.

When traveling to Singapore, which is located exactly on the other side of the Earth from Houston, I usually fly to Tokyo and run at Narita airport before boarding onto my connecting flight. I look forward to another year of running!

LESLIE SHOOP'S STREAK HITS 39 YEARS

Running every day has not been easy. Luckily, I am very OCD. I vividly remember the day my streak started (April 28, 1980). I was teaching History and the head boys basketball coach at Punxsutawney high school. I would run 3 or 4 times a week. It was raining outside and I thought I'm not running today and then I said anyone can run on a sunny day and the streak began.

As I look at the other runners I realize how my running is so insignificant compared to those great runners on that list. They are truly remarkable. It's raining out now. I'm going to go for a run.

MICHELLE KINDER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I am enjoying the streak so much and have found it to be truly life changing. Year two I did a minimum of two miles every day to mix it up and going into year three I am planning to get back into races which I haven't done for over five years. Here are a few things I have learned from my streak:

Being a runner reminds me of the capacity of my own body to take me places, it gives me a regular and uncomplicated connection to the natural world, and it acts as a sort of a mental floss for my busy brain and amped up nervous system.

Being on a streak gave me a unique adrenaline rush from committing daily to something and doing it – no matter what. It flipped my mentality from 'I hope I can get a run in today' to waking up every morning knowing that no matter what else did or didn't happen that day, I would run.

Which stretched my mind and soul around other things I wanted in my life but might have dismissed as not available to me. If I can make this happen despite the challenges, what else can I make happen?

Freedom and discipline often are positioned as polarities but running every day for two years has taught me that there is freedom in discipline.

And it taught me that self-care is better served up daily than as a life preserver.

BRIAN JOHNSON'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I was very happy to make it to 5 years of my running streak - injury-free - on February 28.

Memorable moments during the 5-yr streak include running through a couple minor bouts of the flu, running a mile in my tailor-made suit and dress shoes, once when on business travel and the airlines lost my luggage (had my Garmin in carry-on!), all 60-months meeting goal of at least 100 miles a month, and over 2,250 streak miles spent pushing my son in his jogging stroller.

I enjoy recruiting new runners where I work, and am happy to get them hooked on running, no matter how slow their pace may be.

Other highlights include a 19:57 5k when I was 3 months shy of my 50th birthday, a 6:27 mile pushing my son in his jogging stroller (mile 5 of a 7-mile run), and a 5:59 mile in 2015, a few months after my 50th birthday.

I have never followed a plan or regimen, I just get out every day and usually run at about an 8:30 to 8:45 pace when running solo, or at a 9 minute to 10-minute pace when with co-workers.

I hope to still be running when I'm my mother's current age of 76. I finally got her to start a run streak last October. On May 10, she will reach day 200 of her streak. During our overlapping streak this past February, we both ran 5 half marathons in 5 states in 5 days; I was very pleased to PR on the first of those halves with a 1:46:48, and to finish three of the next four halves in under 1:56, and the other under 1:59. But mostly, I'm just happy to be able to run every single day at a comfortable pace, and to share the joy of running with others.

These past four years have been filled with lots of ups and downs from changing careers, finishing school (then starting again), travelling, getting engaged, getting to watch loved ones get married, and some health scares- but one of the few constants through it all has been running.

The sketchiest run this year was running up and down my street between rainstorms and tornado warnings during Hurricane Irma.

The most exciting and challenging was a 50k run/ walk/ hike through the mountains of El Paso. I'm looking forward to hitting 5 years next May and have no plans of stopping!

LUCAS HENDERSON'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I can't believe it's already been four years! Time flies when you're having fun, right?

Last year was another PR setting year for me. Not only in faster times, but also longer miles.

First, I set a new personal goal by running 4,051 miles for the year. That's not a mistype. I actually set a goal to average 10 miles a day and I far exceeded my own expectations.

I also ran at least 10 miles every day for 180 consecutive days. The only reason I stopped was because I started reaching my races and I needed to properly taper.

I ran the most miles in July (a total of 528.28 miles) but that's not all I did that month. Even though walking isn't part of the running every day, I also walked an additional 80.67 miles because I was trying to take over a million steps in the month, which I did. My total steps for July was 1,101,143 (June's total of 868,448 is what really had me try for the million in July).

As far as PR's for races go, I set a new PR for the 5K (18:03), 1/2 marathon (1:25:30) and marathon (3:11:53) but still fell four minutes short of qualifying for Boston. Hopefully I can say otherwise by the end of year five!

DOUG DIXON'S STREAK HITS 15 YEARS

Today I am celebrating 15 years of continuous running.

I will celebrate with a leisurely run past the white water and over the rolling hills and trails of Haliburton county where I will view more deer and other wildlife than cars. Life is good.

My streak started on May 23, 2004, the day my best friend was diagnosed with a brain tumor. I told him I would continue to run each day until he recovered. Unfortunately, he died 45 days later. My pledge to him is a lifelong pledge. He lives on with me in every stride.

In the past year I have run two marathons including the Boston Marathon on April 15, 2019. The spirit of Boston and that Holy Grail of Marathons never ceases to amaze me. The volunteers, who do so much for all of us running, and the crowd support, pushing and pulling us forward, is inspiring. Running that last Gauntlet of Love down Boylston Street is an emotional nirvana.

It was my fourth consecutive Boston and I finished with a Boston PR, which I am so proud of.

I clocked in 3696 miles during the year and ran some other half marathons and 10k races.

Life teaches us purpose and dedication and a will to accomplish anything in life if we so choose.

JENNIFER FITZHARRIS-FUNK'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I started my streak on 5/26/2014 with my husband Brian (who is a fellow stalker). The idea was simple, a 99-day streak from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Labor Day came, and while Brian stopped his streak, I thought it seemed silly to stop at 99 days - why not run 100 days? Then day 100 came and it seemed silly to stop - why not run an entire year? Now here I am 5 years later, still at it. Brian kicks himself for stopping that 99-day run streak – he did pick it up a year later – but I'll always have that extra year on him!

My streak has not only allowed me to accumulate mileage - 6,892 miles to be exact - it's brought many opportunities I couldn't have imagined when I started. Although I'd been running and competing in triathlons for years, I never felt confident enough to tackle the marathon distance. Plagued with injuries up until 2014, I didn't think I could handle the mileage needed to train for a marathon. In 2015, after a full year of running every day, I had slowly built up my mileage and was finally injury free. I was ready to run a marathon. And so, I did.

In October 2015, Brian and I ran the Twin Cities Marathon. It was supposed to be a one and done marathon for me, I had triathlons to get back to racing, after all. But lo and behold, I had qualified for Boston. Brian, a long-time marathoner, wasn't going to let me not run the BOSTON MARATHON for crying out loud. And just like that a marathon runner was born.

Since then, I've run 8 marathons (including three trips to Boston). This fall, Brian and I will get the chance to run the New York City Marathon. Bringing my marathon count to 10 marathons in 4 years – all thanks to that little 99-day running streak.

Hitting the 5-year milestone is pretty special, it means I finally get to move out of the neophyte category and can now call myself a proficient stalker! Attached is the route I ran to celebrate the occasion!

BRIAN FLASPOHLER'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Six years! Seems crazy. Each of the last three anniversaries I've contemplated ending the streak but so far, I decided to keep it going. Maybe I'll end at ten years...

DAVID HAMILTON'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Just a quick update for my 3-year-old "new" streak. Still plugging along with 2 and 3 milers and an 8-year-old chronic sore ankle issue. Have to resort to my hybrid step/runner machine to have any chance at staying in shape. A lot of hours at work doesn't help either. As I get older I find that paying more attention to diet, core exercises, weights, etc. is also an increasing necessity. Good running and streak on. Cheers!

CHRISTINA RICHARDS' STREAK ENDS AFTER 6,732 DAYS

After 18 years and 5 plus months of continuous running my streak ended October 10, 2018.

I was so sick I could hardly get out of bed. It was sad but it was great series while I had it going.

I have run all over the world in places remote and bursting with people. I have so many favorite places that it is difficult to name only one. If it wasn't the beautiful lake in the middle of our lovely town it would be running along the Tiber river in Rome. My companions were often my grown family but certainly my husband was often there with me. He not only ran step by step with me but gave me the gift of time to pursue this passion of mine. I happily watch our next generation running as well. So really the streak of mine ends but our family continues a true running tradition.

Ever grateful.

JEFF AND KATHY KAPCSOS' STREAKS HIT 3 YEARS

My husband, Jeff (whose streak is also registered) & I started our running streak on Memorial Day in 2016 (5/30/2016) and hit our 3-year Streak Anniversary on 5/29/19 on Day 1,095. We have run a total of 3,441.47 miles together; mostly outdoors. What an amazing & incredible journey it has been!

BRIAN SCHEMBRI'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Three years already! What started as simply an attempt to get to 100 days, has really blossomed into something else entirely!

As I think back, I can think of all the milestones. I remember thinking, "wouldn't it be great if I could do a full year!" Then that became an attempt to run every day in a full calendar year. After that, it became the attempt to make it to 1,000 days. At that point, I really thought it would be over, but on the 1,001st day, I found I became addicted to it.

I thought back at all the times I forced myself to keep the streak alive; when I was injured, or sick, or recovering after a hard marathon. So, on a day I was healthy, I really couldn't come up with a good reason to stop. So it continues.

Overall, I have run in six official marathons (Detroit X2, Glass City X2, Canton, Chicago) during my 3-year streak. I have run a total of 9,577km (5,951 miles) during the streak.

Not bad for a person that four years ago just started running to lose weight (about 35 pounds), and to keep up with my three kids. Four years ago, I could never imagine how my life has changed in so many ways, all thanks to running, and this running streak.

DIANE SHUMWAY'S STREAK HITS 19 YEARS

I have enjoyed a wonderful year of running every day with my husband, Jeff. He is now retired and we sometimes take a little get-away.

Running is a fun way to see more sights other than by car. Last summer we went on an organized camping excursion. We got up very early to run before other campers were even awake. I will always remember the lure of the stillness of the barely light dawn as we went out to explore the area outside of camp.

We recently ran in downtown Denver along the 16th street mall. A complete opposite experience but one that also opened the senses and gave us that "it's great to be alive" feeling.

Here is looking forward to another awesome year!

ANNE-LIE RIDEFORS JOINS SRI FROM SWEDEN

I'm 62 years old. I have done 4 marathons with not too good results- my best was 4:24, several half-marathons - my best 1:55 and lots of 10k races with my best 50 minutes (only once).

I have had some bad luck last 3-4 years and had 2 meniscus surgeries (same knee) so I need to do something and maybe this is it?

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

In this 74th edition of The Streak Registry, we celebrate the 50th running streak anniversary and amazing accomplishments of Jon Sutherland. As you know, Coach Sutherland now has the longest active running streak in the world and the second longest running streak ever after Ron Hill, who retired his running streak in 2017 after 52 plus years. Given the significance of 50 years of never missing a day of running, I contacted Coach Sutherland in late February to learn of his plans for his Golden Streak Anniversary. I heard back from him in early March about the 50th anniversary run. "There is a trail head a bit over a mile from my house where I run all the time. I have practices there with my teams and my 40th and 45th celebrations were on the same spot," noted the California coach. "I still have more than three months to go . . . I'll keep you posted."

By early April, my wife Diane and I had booked tickets to fly to Los Angeles from our home in New Jersey to represent the streak association at the 50th. Also, in April, I ran my 15th consecutive Boston Marathon, where I had a PW (personal worst) time for the 26.2-mile distance. While my 2019 Boston is one to forget, the events and the people I met at the Boston Marathon Expo made the trip worthwhile for me.

During the Expo, I attended a seminar of some of the legends and great journalists who have covered the Boston Marathon over the years. After the seminar, I attended a book signing by some of these legends and journalists like Amby Burfoot (winner of the 1968 Boston Marathon and former editor-in-chief of Runner's World), Jonathan Beverly (former editor-in-chief of Running Times), and prolific running author Roger Robinson (author of "When Running Made History"). Not only did I purchase signed books from these legends, I talked to them about streak running and covering Jon Sutherland's historic streak anniversary the next month. Later that day, I attended another seminar of the great women athletes of the Boston Marathon, where I met and received a signed postcard from Bobbi Gibbs, the first woman to unofficially run and win the 1966 Boston Marathon.

After attending the Expo, I walked to the next block to visit Runner's World's popup store. There and much to my delight, I met the 2014 Boston Marathon winner Meb Keflezighi and purchased a signed copy of his book "26 Marathons." I also met an editor from Runner's World, Kit Fox, who said that they would be interested in covering Jon Sutherland's 50th too.

Later that night, I also was stopped by one of our international runners who noticed the streak association sweatshirt I was wearing. The person who stopped me was none other than Ireland's top streak runner, Tom Blennerhasset, who introduced me to Ireland's top women streak runner and his wife, Mairead Blennerhasset. You can read Tom's 2019 Boston Marathon experience on page 10 of this issue.

In the end, my Boston contacts paid off as Runner's World sent a reporter and two photographers to Coach Sutherland's 50th celebration, Amby Burfoot posted a story on Jon Sutherland on his webpage Lifetime Runner and Jonathan Beverly intends to do a story on the Golden Anniversary for his new publication Podium Runner. Oh, and I met three Boston Marathon Champions so despite my PW I still had a great Boston Marathon experience.

I also had a great time attending Jon Sutherland's 50th running streak anniversary over the Memorial Day weekend. Diane and I arrived on Thursday afternoon, May 23, and had dinner with another running legend, Steve DeBoer, the athlete that currently has the third longest running streak in the world and a contributor to this publication.

The next morning Diane and I finally met Jon Sutherland and ran with him and Steve at the Victory Trail Head, where the anniversary run was also held. Later that day, the four of us had lunch with Mark Covert, another running legend who ended his streak in 2013 after 45 years. Amazingly, between the three of them – Jon Sutherland, Steve DeBoer, and Mark Covert – they have accumulated over 52,000 streak days and covered over 520,000 lifetime miles. Wow!

On Saturday morning, May 25, Diane and I ran with Jon and Steve again and also met a reporter and photographers from Runner's World. Unfortunately for us, we had to say goodbye to Steve DeBoer who was returning to Minnesota so that he could run his hometown race, the Rochester Marathon, the next day.

Sunday, May 26, of course, was the big Golden running streak anniversary. We thought we were arriving early but there already was a crowd of people surrounding Coach Sutherland at 8a.m. We also noticed a van from the local Los Angeles CBS station. Besides many friends and students of our celebrity host, we also were able to meet and run with some other streak runners who were in attendance including Lee Berg, Adrien Friggeri, Chuck Lindsey, Mark Jasper, Falamack Zaltash, Luke Friedl and Michael Friedl.

Following the run on a beautiful and scenic trail course, we all returned for the 50th running streak anniversary ceremony. There the runners were treated by a very touching speech by Coach Sutherland about a painting of Olympian Herb Elliott he had received from a friend and artist who had died at a young age (please see page 5 and 6 of Jon Sutherland's essay for more details). Also speaking at the ceremony was Rod Dixon, who is a four-time Olympian from New Zealand, Bronze Medal winner at the 1972 Munich Olympics, and winner of the 1983 New York City Marathon. I also had the honor of saying a few words on the historic running day and also presented a Golden Anniversary plaque and lifetime membership to Coach Sutherland from all of us at SRI/USRSA.

As always and in conclusion, I want to wish everyone – especially Jon Sutherland – good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!

MEMBERSHIP—DUES

Membership in Streak Runners International and the United States Running Streak Association, Inc. is open to all interested individuals.

SRI/USRSA dues are $20.00 annually or $250.00 lifetime. Credit for one-half of all previously paid dues will be applied to the payment of lifetime dues. Once lifetime membership status is achieved, no further dues will be assessed.

A completely filled out and signed membership application must accompany the dues payment. Applications may be downloaded from our website at www.runeveryday.com, or will be mailed upon request.

STREAK CERTIFICATION

Once a running streak reaches a year in duration it is eligible for listing by SRI/USRSA. Listing of one's active or retired running streak requires a fully completed and signed streak certification form, which may also be downloaded from the SRI/USRSA site or mailed upon request. Although membership is not a requirement for listing, the SRI/USRSA appreciates all contributions to its cause.
