John Morgan

JOHN MORGAN PASSES AT AGE 83;
HAD 34+ YEAR STREAK FROM 1979-2013

By: Mark Washburne

Our running streak association was saddened to learn of the passing of John Morgan, a retired business owner, who maintained a running streak of over 34 years. “John Morgan of Emmett, Idaho passed away recently on Jan.19, 2025 at the age of 83,” said Susan Morgan, his widow, in a message dated 24 January 2025 to SRI. “John had a running streak of 12,494 days and did his last run at age 71. He loved running and was passionate about it, only stopping after rheumatoid arthritis made it too difficult.”

We at SRI send our condolences to his widow Susan and the rest of the Morgan family. The following are some of the articles by and about John Morgan sent to us through the years:

TSR FALL 2011
RUNNING WITH JOHN WATTS ON HIS
32nd RUNNING STREAK ANNIVERSARY

By: John Morgan

Allow me to introduce myself, John Morgan of Emmett, Idaho. John Watts [from Nampa, Idaho] is the runner on the right in the picture [see below]. The occasion was John’s anniversary of 32 years of running every day. On April 29th, 2011, John was kind enough to come to Emmett and do a little 3 mile run with me and Butch (you can just see Butch on the ground by my right foot). As a side note, John Watts had a nice feature article on his 30-year running streak appear on the front page of The Idaho Press Tribune on May 21, 2011.

I just run everyday, but John Watts still stays in competition shape. He recently ran a 9-mile leg in a relay race in the Western Idaho mountains at a 7:25 pace! Over the Memorial Day holiday he ran a 1/2 marathon with his daughter in Bend, Oregon. Ah well, we old timers can still dream, can't we? John Watts is not only a great runner -- he has a 2:29 marathon in his background! -- but a great human being.

John Morgan and John Watts

Editor's note: After Mr. Morgan's passing, we reached out to John Watts and received the following reply:

I moved to Nampa, Idaho from Bend, Oregon in July of 2010. I had noticed John Morgan's name on the streak registry and saw that he lived in Emmett, about 25 miles from Nampa. His streak was longer than mine and I was eager to meet him. As I recall, we met for the first time on the 30th anniversary of my streak, October 3, 2010. John ran with me. We got together several times after that. His lovely wife Susan was often with him. My lovely wife Helen rounded out our foursome and we really enjoyed each other's company. His streak ended before mine so I ended up with a slightly longer streak. On both occasions, we had long conversations commiserating on how something we had enjoyed for decades was no longer possible on a daily basis.

When we discussed the beginnings of our streaks, John told me that as he was getting more serious about improving as a runner, he decided that he needed to run every day. Then, as has happened with many of us, eventually the streak was long enough that he hated to see it come to an end.

Some days it would hurt to run, but it would hurt more not to run.

John was a great friend -- very outgoing and eager to catch up on what was happening in my life. I will miss him a lot.

John Morgan with Butch

JOHN MORGAN CELEBRATES 33RD STREAK ANNIVERSARY

It was a glorious, sun-drenched Sunday morning, a cool 37 degrees, but no wind! Left the home place at precisely 8:03 am and proceeded west on my little 3 miler.

I had invited John Watts (USRSA Chaplin) but he had pastoral duties. I had invited Kenny Keene, IBA World Champion at cruiser weight class, also an Olympian in boxing. Kenny has a professional record of 54-3 with 26 by knockouts. Kenny is retired but still runs and keeps in super shape. He declined, so I ran with Butch, my dog.

We were intercepted about 1/2 way where my friend Suzi shot some frames. It was a nice little outing. I actually tried to pick it up on the return, remembering my training days of "speed play." Pick 2 power poles and pick up the pace, then recover the next 2 power poles.

I refer to my running pace today as "SLOG": slow, laborious, outrageous, gait. So, if any of you streakers want to go "SLOGGING" with me, come ahead on.

All I can do these days is remember back in the day when I ran 36:35 for 10K and a 3:21 for a marathon. Ah well, yesterday. So, where do we go from here? I'm blessed to have exceptionally good health and the freedom as a self employed businessman to generally set my own schedule. Running first thing in the morning has been a habit developed over the last 34 years, so why change now.

Overseas travel sometimes throws a monkey wrench in that plan, but the thing about runners is they always seem to adjust. I go east to the U.K. at least once a year and ditto to Shanghai to the west at least once a year. So it's already tomorrow when you get there. Beyond the travel fatigue, your thoughts are primarily on getting to the hotel and going for a run. But, you know, after even a pathetic 2-mile run...you ALWAYS feel better. That is the remarkable thing about this sport, whether you're a sub 3 hour marathoner or a SLOGGER, you always feel better for the physical effort and the mental aspects.

TSR SUMMER 2013 JOHN MORGAN'S STREAK HITS 34 YEARS

With the events of Patriots Day in Boston and Copley Square still fresh in our minds, it's a little difficult to get too serious about a streak anniversary. Add to that, 2 simultaneous Church fires (arson induced) in Emmett, Idaho this last Saturday morning, 4/27/13, and it seems rather trivial to expound on something as trite as a running streak.

Be that as it may, I did my little 3-mile run this morning [April 29, 2013]. Isn't that the way we all handle life's turmoil, troubles and upsets? We just go out and run anyway.

Afterwards, I was interviewed by a reporter from our local newspaper. He shot a few frames of me jogging down a farm road and we talked. He was quite taken by my collection of running logs and shot some pics of them too. I expressed my surprise that in the state of Idaho, 1.5 million population only John Watts & I are listed in the U.S.R.S.A. registry. This is a state of many popular outdoor athletic activities, in which many people participate.

So, after all these years of training, racing and running every day, I find myself with a bit of arthritis. It just started this year, in the wrists and hands but has now migrated to the left ankle. This could be problematic. We all know what the Doc's will say. Stay off it, don't run, ice it, etc. Well, I'm icing it!

Back in the day, when a little "hurt" popped up, we just ran through it. Sure enough, after a while it went away. The V.A. hospital in Boise has things well in hand. They have me on 3 different arthritis meds, all of which make me feel like c*!@. (that means not good).

So? Just like all the little physical problems we have as every day runners, some good days some not so good. We just keep on keeping on don't we?

God bless you all. See ya on the roads.

JOHN MORGAN'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 34 YEARS
"TWELVE THOUSAND FOUR HUNDRED NINETY-FOUR DAYS"
By: John Morgan

Forty-eight thousand and three miles. Beginning of streak: April 29, 1979. End of streak: July 13, 2013. Ran in every state in the U.S.A. exclusive of Alaska. Ran in U.K., Canada, Mexico, Australia, New Zealand, Taiwan, and China.

I always enjoyed the end of every run except the last one on Friday, July 12, 2013. That one was misery. My left ankle was so swollen it nearly collapsed during the pathetic 1 mile outing. Your body doesn't lie to you. I knew the streak was over. Confirmed next day at the ER. Time to pull the plug baby! It wasn't really as devastating as I always thought it would be. I mean, you can't do what your body simply won't allow you to do. Some might argue this point. We've all run when we're so sick we should have stayed in bed. I ran once in Shanghai at the tail end of a typhoon. You literally couldn't stand up. So hey, run into the wind! As streakers, we GOTTA get the run in. Now, on the outside looking in, my advise to you is...Be pragmatic.

My girlfriend, Suzi, posted a message on Facebook regarding the end of my streak. Oh my goodness, the responses she has been reading to me! A couple of people wrote, "you have been running longer than I've been alive." Really nice, thank you all very much. I sincerely appreciate your thoughts. Your official U.S.R.S.A. Chaplin, my friend John Watts in nearby Nampa, Idaho told me in a telephone conversation, "when your ankle has healed, and you are running again (which it will & I will), let's go for a run." You betcha! We will too.

It was a year ago last winter that the longest streak by a female runner as certified by the U.S.R.S.A., one Julie A. Maxwell's streak, had ended. I was devastated for her. I got her email address and we exchanged some notes. I finally called her with condolences. She had fallen and broken her ankle. A compound fracture! Her attitude was incredible. She said, "what was I to do, the foot was just hanging there."

No, she didn't fall while running. I guess the message I got was there are some things of which we have no control. I've carried her attitude and composure with me as I passed through 34 years on April 29, 2013. But even then the left ankle was hurting and not improving. I cut back from a normal 3 miles a day to 2. No improvement. Then on the evening of July 10th I'm carrying some stuff from my car to my house. The dogs are racing around the yard. I whistle for them and the puppy, a 9 month old German Short Hair, comes crashing into me, takes my legs out, and very properly rolls my left ankle under me. Finally, now there's a reason for the ankle to hurt. It's damaged! I know, I know, shoulda, coulda, woulda. I should have put the dogs in the house, then got the stuff from the car.

I'm gonna take a page from Mark Covert's book. He's been planning to end his streak, the longest streak listed in the Registry, on it's anniversary, July 23, 2013. It will be an astounding 45 years! He's already taken up the bicycle. You know what? I'll bet he'll be competitive too. I'm gonna take up the bicycle too. Start with a mountain bike and graduate to a road bike. I have no thoughts about racing. I'll run again AND bike. Maybe get in good enough shape to take that run with John Watts.

Now all I do is elevate my left leg, ice my ankle, and try to stay off my feet. My girlfriend Suzi & I have horses. As soon as the ankle will allow, we'll throw some rigs on the horses and start doing some riding. Good way to see the countryside and get some fresh air. During this downtime and healing time, I've had some thoughts about all the training and racing during the streak years. I think a lot of the races, my last marathon, New York City, my PR marathon, Las Vegas (3:21) and my best week. I did the Los Angeles Marathon on a Sunday (3:30 & change) and came back the very next Saturday with a PR 10K, 36:35. Finished 2nd in age category and 20th overall out of a thousand. After I got thru the chutes, I ripped off my racing flats and ran thru the grass like a little kid! We've all had these moments haven't we? You know, when you really accomplish something. It's a good feeling. So, 34 years, 2 months and a handful of days. I'll run again, but I'll do it smarter this time, take a day off now and then. Now, my last word for you. Control. We all think we're in control don't we? Certainly in running and racing you better be in control of yourself, or you'll crash and burn. But the thought came to me Sunday morning, July 14th, I'm not in control of my life, God is! It is actually very comforting knowledge. So I guess I won't be seeing you out on the roads. But persevere, I'll be thinking about you...a lot!

Jon Sutherland

JON SUTHERLAND ENDS WORLD RECORD SETTING 55+ YEAR RUNNING STREAK

By: Mark Washburne

Jon Sutherland, 74, a writer and coach, from Washington Utah and formerly from West Hills, California, has ended his record setting running streak after 55.6 years, 20,309 days.

At the time his running streak ended, Coach Sutherland had the longest active running streak in the world and now has the longest retired running streak in the world. "I started running on January 1, 1968 and I started my streak on May 29th, 1969," noted Coach Sutherland in an email to Streak Runners International (SRI) and the United States Running Streak Association (USRSA). "My last run was December 31, 2024. I ran 625 miles in 2024. My lifetime mileage is 202,420. I have so much respect for everybody involved with USRSA and I ran as much as I could. I have seen several doctors about my issue. When I try to get up and run, I'm winded quickly. None of the doctors could tell me what was the cause. I would say 'don't you think it's from all the heat and smog I ran too in the SF Valley.' Then they say yeah that's it!"

We at SRI/USRSA hope for a speedy recovery for Coach Sutherland and wish him much luck and success in the future.

Raven Kraft

ROBERT “RAVEN” KRAFT’S STREAK HITS 50 YEARS
TRIBUTE BY RAVEN RUNNER FROM TORONTO, CANADA
By: Alan Davis, Esq.

[Editor’s note: The following article originated as a speech given by Mr. Alan Davis in his role as the Master of Ceremonies at the party to celebrate the 50th running streak anniversary for Raven Kraft on 31 December 2024 in Miami Beach, Florida.]

Every accomplishment starts with a first step and it’s often been said that the first step is the hardest of all. But that most often only applies to when you have an ultimate objective or goal in mind.

It wasn’t that way over 52 years ago, before the streak started, when Robert Kraft, an angry young 22-year-old, began to run the sands of Miami Beach.

Let me tell you a story. In fact, let me tell you part of “the story” of that long road that transformed Robert Kraft to Raven and the path he took through today; his remarkable achievement of a streak of 50 years of running each and every day on Miami Beach.

Robert was born October 17, 1950, in Virginia, and came to Miami Beach at the young age of 5 with his mom, Mary. Raised by his mother, and without a supportive father in his life, he proudly attended Miami Beach High where he forged many lifelong friendships. But school just wasn’t for him.

He was driven by a passion for baseball and a love of music. He was blessed and somewhat burdened by a photographic memory and an overriding belief and expectation that one's words represented their bond. Even in his youth he was guided by a belief and expectation that saying you are going to do something is a commitment to doing so. "Commitment": that's a thread that weaves its way throughout.....the story.

Robert wrote his first song at the age of 15 and a year later left high school.

In the spring of 1968, at the young age of 17, on his own, he left the east coast beach of Miami to the west coast beach of Los Angeles seeking out his father who he had not seen in five years. They had made plans to reunite at a Dodger's baseball game but his father fell asleep. Robert never saw his father again.

He returned to Miami Beach, after a 5-month working stopover in Las Vegas, and became increasingly focused on expressing his personal feelings and his observations of life through the lyrics of song.

Through song writing he was following his heart, and the heart of country music was Nashville, Music City USA, so he set off to Nashville, Tennessee.

Washing dishes during the day and hanging out with musicians and their music at night he was chasing his dream of becoming a successful songwriter, largely motivated through a connection he had therewith his hero, the original man in black, Johnny Cash.

Unknown to him at the time, he was taking his first steps that would soon after spawn the focus of his life journey that would put him on the long road that brought him to today. Those first steps, however, had nothing to do with running.

Music was, and is, a tough business and Robert was prolific in writing some wonderful lyrics. He remained of the belief and expectation that you could take people at their word, but not before long he came to harsh realization that was not always the case. Nashville was home to many talented and honorable musicians but tainted by some fakers and takers.

While inspired by his Nashville experiences his heart was still largely in Miami Beach. So, he returned to Miami Beach taking on jobs that included work as a dishwasher, busboy and as a security guard. Under the cover of darkness in the middle of the night, he continued to prolifically write songs and remained determined and committed to his dream of making it as a country music song writer.

Those dreams were unexpectedly somewhat realized, and setback, at one and the same time, on one Miami Beach day. It was his 20th birthday and while listening to music on a transistor radio he heard a song with lyrics that he had written, sung by country music legend Waylon Jennings.

You see when he was in Nashville, he wrote out those lyrics on paper with an intention to give them to Johnny Cash who Robert would often meet up with in Nashville. One-night Robert met up with Johnny outside the Grand Old Opry and offered the song to him. Johnny said (with words Raven would never forget) "Buddy, I am writing most of my own songs now but maybe he could help you out," pointing to a young songwriter standing beside them. Robert gave that young musician the lyrics which that musician took, and folded it into his pocket. Robert hoped that could possibly assist him in pursuing song writing success. But Robert never heard from that young songwriter again and, in fact, that songwriter who took Robert's lyrics went on to become a world-renowned singer, songwriter and actor. That was a pivotal experience, perhaps the most pivotal experience of Robert's life. Robert never got credit for that hit song, but as his life unfolded the real credit, the real impetus for the run was more than anything based on that stolen song.

He became consumed by anger and an overwhelming sense of betrayal. Those were dark times. For two or so years he searched for something to calm him down, something to restore his respect for others and a renewed focus on himself.

Miami Beach of the day had many iconic landmarks. One of which was the 5th street boxing gym at the corner of Collins and 5th. That gym was made famous as the place where world heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, later known as Muhammad Ali, trained.

The 5th street gym boxers would regularly train by running the beach and Robert began to hang with a few of the boxers. I guess the brutality of the boxing game appealed to someone still feeling dejected and so full of anger. While many years later he would come to forgive, he couldn't forget about the man who stole his song.

While the boxers immediately formed a strong friendship with Robert, they told him that, "if you want to hang with us you got to run with us," and so with no objective in mind other than maintaining his friendship with the boxers, Robert, in 1972 at the age of 22, took his first running steps along the sands of Miami Beach taking inspiration from the boxers.

Nicknames were commonplace among boxers and the boxers quickly took under their wing this young good-looking guy with long flowing black hair, who would dress in all black and write dark songs in the middle of the night. For those reasons they called him Raven. It was so fitting and it stuck.

With the wings of a bird, Raven was beginning to free himself of disappointment and despair to find a new self-satisfying purpose in life.

By the end of 1974, he had had logged a total of approximately 5,700 miles of running on the beach and had progressed to running the beach 13 out of every 14 days. On his off days he was consumed by a feeling of guilt, a feeling that he was missing something. After a few months of mental planning and as personal challenge he resolved to run 8 miles along the beach each and every day for a full year beginning January 1, 1975. Why eight miles? According to Raven, 7 miles was not enough and 9 miles was too much so he settled on 8 miles a day, every day.

Commitment was only beginning to come into focus, and that first year of the streak was not an easy one. Stubborn, superstitious, obsessive and compulsive by nature, quitting was not an option. He was determined to do what he set out to accomplish, to run for at least that full year, and that's what he did.

By December 31, 1975, the first anniversary run, he had not missed a day for that full year. For Raven that was in so many ways only the beginning. You see over that year of running his daily runs, the run had transformed his life, gave him life, and would become his life.

He ran alone for all but 13 days over the first 10 years of his streak but kept a mental note of those that had run with him and how many runs they had, but there weren't many who ran with him over those first 10 years.

Running was free and Raven embraced its freedom

After 10 years of the streak his dedication to daily runs was beginning to become noticed by others, and over time more and more people began to join him on his run. The first three to do the full run all had nicknames before they joined him. They were Coyote, Yule and Phoenix.

With a mind for numbers and a memory as good as any computer chip, Raven began to keep a list of the runners who joined him, together with their hometown, date of birth, and meticulously kept track of their number of runs. But runner number four didn't come with any nickname so Raven gave him the nickname Spiderman after he completed the run. Beginning a tradition of giving nicknames to all who ran with him thereafter, as long as they completed the eight-mile run.

From the beginning, Raven tracked through a handwritten list the names and nicknames of every runner who joined him with details of the number of each of their complete (8 miles) and partial (less than 8 but at least 4 miles) through "the list" which has grown to 3,753 runners (as of yesterday [30 December 2024]), including 6 dogs, coming from 50 states and over 100 countries. It's a list that to this day Raven has maintained and amazingly largely committed to memory: all becoming part of the story.

That list, the list, exemplifies the transformation of the run from what was originally Raven's personal challenge, to what, over the years, he did not so much for himself but for others. He became committed to being there, at the 5th lifeguard tower, every day for them, for us and in so doing became singularly focused on the daily run and sacrificing virtually all other pursuits.

With an engaging demeanor, a steel trap memory, a sense of humor, and a passion for story telling through the run, thousands came to run with him, further spawning countless friendships amongst the Raven Runners, including so far 4 marriages and 6 children from Raven Runner marriages: all of this forged through the Raven Run, and his running streak.

That list inspired an annual awards banquet with awards given out by Raven to runners who achieved various accomplishments over the prior year, with award winners largely determined through votes of other runners on annual ballots prepared by Raven. Included in the annual awards are the Raven Run Hall of Fame inductees. There are 32 Hall of Fame runners, with 26 still living.

One Hall of Fame runners, who for many more recent years was at the top of the list with the most completed Raven Runs of anyone, was Rudy Volenec, Taxman, who sadly passed away less than 2 months ago. Raven describes Taxman as the nicest guy he ever knew which has been echoed by most of the regular Raven Runners. He is so very missed.

With so much time spent on the beach much of Raven's backstory are beach stories.

One afternoon before his run, Raven rescued 3 sisters from the Bahamas in the waters of Miami Beach. In the wake of that incident, Raven expanded his daily routine to improve his swimming, adding a 3 tenths of a mile swim that paralleled the beach that immediately followed his daily runs. Over an uninterrupted period of approximately 35 years of running, Raven only missed 100 or so swims. This included a 4 year stretch, March 1988 through to February 1992 in which he never missed a post run swim. Other runners would regularly join him in the post run swim and, yes, "the list" also includes the number of swims that each runner on the list has done.

Over the years, either during, immediately before, or immediately after his runs, Raven undertook at least 17 ocean rescues. Raven has been on a first name basis with almost every lifeguard who worked the beach since his streak started and the lifeguards have been strong supporters of Raven, with Raven earning their respect and trust.

In so many ways, Raven found true belonging at that 5th street lifeguard tower on the beach where each daily run would start and finish. Every year, Raven, the lifeguards, and Raven Runners celebrate Ravens contributions at the Raven picnic dinner held at the end of March on the beach. Raven, himself, has also served on the beach committee for the City of Miami Beach improving the beach for us all.

Nobody knows the beach better than Raven.

And the world knows about Raven.

Raven's accomplishments including today's, have been recognized through achievement awards given by the Streak Runners International and the United States Running Streak Association. Raven currently ranks #6 on the longest active uninterrupted daily running streaks in the United States [editor's note: now #5 on active list from around the world]. Almost as amazing as his streak is the fact that no one has ever done more daily runs starting and finishing in the same place, or on the sand.

Raven has received numerous commendations by the City of Miami Beach including 3 keys to the city; not that he needs 3, you see Raven is a pack rat literally and figuratively, he holds on to practically everything he has experienced and obtained.

Raven has been featured extensively in the media on the web, TV, radio, magazines, and newspapers including HBO, ESPN and Runner's World. He has been the subject of a 2009 novel, titled the Lifeguard Murders written by Raven Runner named Reverend that came with a cd of Raven songs (there are some copies available at merch.) His story, the story, was told by Raven Runner Yellow Rose in a 2017 film documentary titled Unstoppable with an accompanying cd soundtrack of Raven songs, and by Raven Runner White Lightning in a 2017 book titled Running with Raven as well as in 2022 an illustrated children's book fittingly titled, "Raven Runs Free" by Raven Runner Tugboat. More recently is an eight-part podcast titled Raven, by Raven Runner Cubcast (who you will hear from shortly). All of these can be sourced online.

And here we are 18,263 uninterrupted days of running the beach at the same time, same place.....50 full years later.

For all of us, life is full of opportunities with turning points, we have the ability to go one way or the other, and decisions can change the paths of our relationships, our careers and our life experiences.

For Raven, and because of his focused commitment to the streak, he has chosen to sacrifice those life changing turns. His most significant turns were the turns he made back and forth, back and forth, in his daily runs along the beach. His life became largely consumed by the run, though not entirely.

Raven has also remained committed to that daily short trip north along Ocean Drive from his home to muscle beach where he bonded with others of mental and physical strength to work out early each afternoon. Raven is appropriately proud of the fact that at the age of 74 he can hang flexed, using only his arms from the fixed bar, longer than anyone.

And that's basically only half the story.

Raven continues in the dark of night to write songs and has built up a lyric songbook that now exceeds 1,800 songs. To Raven, his songwriting and his running share equally significant components of his life and life accomplishments.

Following up on a newspaper advertisement, Raven has for many years been sending his lyrics and sometimes accompanying music to musician Philip Clarkson in Kentucky and Philip would send back to Raven recorded songs using Raven's lyrics. Some of those songs can be sourced online through the likes of Spotify under Robert Raven Kraft. More recently through a project spearheaded by Raven Runner Backpacking Beaver, Raven's songs have provided the underpinning to recordings by Raven and the Dark Shadows, which very recently released their first full length album. You can access and purchase the songs and song videos online.

The road has been long and winding with almost every conceivable challenge including illness, injury, inclement weather, beach closures and reconstruction, the pandemic (which included 70 straight days of running alone), and the unforgiving effects of wear and tear of an incomprehensible magnitude. Raven has run through hurricanes, with sickness including severe food poisoning, injuries including a hole torn through his right foot after stepping on a three-inch nail, pneumonia, and a smashed head after a falling on a rock.

All of those obstacles are, however, pale in comparison to the pain which he has battled and progressively increased in severity during the past 30 or so years caused by spinal stenosis, sciatica, arthritis of the spine and degenerative discs. Doctors can't believe that he is able to stand up, let alone continue to run along the beach, daily without fail. How ironic it is that with a figurative backbone of strength, dedication and commitment beyond measure, his Achilles is his back.

Despite these challenges, he has remained committed to keeping the streak going and after 50 years the City of Miami Beach will be formally recognizing his achievements at a location within a few steps of Raven's condo on Ocean Drive.

The corner of Ocean and 3rd Street will forever now be known as Robert Raven Kraft Way. It's called a Way, not a road, likely because they couldn't find a road long enough.

But Raven may not be there for long.

The beach has been his home, and his condo on Ocean Drive where he has lived since 1988 is under a real threat. As a result of the unlawful actions of an unscrupulous president of his 8-unit condo building and the City of Miami Beach condo building recertification requirements, Raven has found himself in the middle of expensive litigation which will require payments he cannot afford on his own.

After committed perseverance giving rise to the accomplishment we celebrate, he is facing what is clearly his biggest life challenge, the challenge to keep his home. He has lived a modest existence that is almost entirely based on his streak, his songs, and the friendships. But he needs your support now more than ever in his fight to keep his home. I would encourage each and every one of you to do what you can to assist him in keeping it. In particular, please support the Robert Raven Kraft Gofundme initiative, a fight to enable him to keep his home.

He has been so committed to all of us. It's time for us, all of us, to be committed to helping him. It would be a tragic result if a street sign with his name in front of his home goes up but his home comes down.

So, you see driven by commitment it was a song that gave rise to the run and the run that gave rise to the list. And the list is comprised by individuals, represented by all of the Raven Runners here tonight, represents the multitude of special friendships forged by the run. Raven has through the run brought us all together with all of these friendships sustained by Raven and his streak. That's the heart of the story.

While it's the run that brought us all together, the gratitude we collectively express today is for Raven as a person and the positive influence he has had on making each and every one of us a better person. It's the lessons that we have all embraced and benefited from that have flowed from Raven's commitment and leadership, from his honor and honesty, from his humor and humility, from his acceptance without complaint, and his unrelenting encouragement and inspiration.

Heroes are exceedingly rare. Raven is a true hero and we are so fortunate and blessed by everything that Raven, his run, and his streak represents. Raven can look back with deserving pride of accomplishment in both his personal achievements and what he has done to improve and enhance the lives of thousands of others.

Through the story, his story, we have come to recognize and realize that notwithstanding all of the obstacles he has overcome to continue the streak, his hardest step moving forward will forever be the next step. While nothing lasts forever, we all hope and pray that his road ahead is the road he wants to take, in the manner, that he chooses, to travel which will enable him to do everything he wants to do whether that road be straight ahead, winding or includes life changing turns.

Through uninterrupted commitment of 50 years, the road has indeed been long, and long may he run.

Steve DeBoer Presents SRI/USRSA Plaque to Raven Kraft

Traversing the Tundra in Florida As Raven Reaches 50 Years By: Steve DeBoer

You can read elsewhere about the Miami Beach Run with Raven on Dec 31st, commemorating 50 years of his daily runs, all on that beach, never less than 5 miles, which is the highest minimum of all streak runners who have done it daily for more than 40 years. He is the 8th person in the world ever to run at least one mile daily for 50 years. With the retirement of #1 staker, Jon Sutherland, he now has the 5th longest registered active streak in the solar system.

He has been involved with the US Running Streak Association (now Streak Runners International) since its inception in 2000, being the first person to join after the four founding members. I presented him with a plaque from the organization before joining him for five miles of sandy tundra traversing, beginning and ending at the 5th Street Lighthouse station. SRI president, Mark Washburne and his wife, Diane, were also among the runners. As he does during the early miles of every run, he called out the nicknames given to all of us who have completed at least one 8-mile run with him. There were 167 persons who began the run, though well under half that number made it a full 8 miles.

Afterwards, we joined him at the Art Deco Welcome Center to continue the celebration, which included Raven and The Dark Shadows playing some of his musical compositions, Raven on vocals. My wife and I retired before the party ended, but I was back the next afternoon to join Raven on his first run of 2025 with about 15-20 others. I conversed with Mark Jasper, 15-year streak runner from MI, and his daughter, McKenna, while the sandy tundra was traversed. They had both run on the 31st as well.

After visiting some relatives and friends, I ended up in Pinellas Park, FL on Jan 4th, where I met and ran one mile with Lois Bastien, age 88, who is the oldest person ever to run daily. Her streak began April 18, 1980, putting her 20th on the Active List, the longest by a woman. She claims to be 5 feet tall, but I think she has shrunk a couple of inches in the last 20 years. Her husband, Ron, was a runner and had several run streaks that were never registered, two being about 6 years.

Lois grew up and got married in Canada before moving to Tampa, FL. She did not begin running till her daughter went out for track. She joined her for some runs until said daughter quit and switched to swimming. Lois continued running and soon started joining Ron on his 5-mile morning workouts. She ran races and eventually did 3 marathons, her fastest being 3:44 at Savannah. One of Ron's running buddies told him about the streak association, so Lois registered her streak in 2014. 83-year-old Barbara Latta has the 2nd longest running streak by a woman, now over 41 years.

“We May Never Pass This Way Again”
Ending the 30 Year Streak on my terms
By: John Byrne
Centreville, Virginia

As my family and I celebrate Christmas 2024, this is also the 30th anniversary of running each day. This may be surprising to some, but for me- and not a difficult decision—I will end my daily streak today.

These past three decades have taught me some discipline 😊 as I have been fortunate to have run in 42 states, 17 foreign countries and many interesting places. Like many of you, being challenged on times zones, early morning flights and bad weather (yes, I did many treadmill runs) was certainly part of the fun. Injuries were always something to navigate with colds, Covid and other (fortunately) minor hurdles. I was lucky there was nothing major and will discuss that more below.

Running every day also tests the patience of friends and family on the Byrne family age old question---“Did dad run yet?” My amazing partner and wife of 45 years, Sue, has been so understanding and I couldn’t have done this without her help as we raised four tremendous children, now adults. Our kids were patient too!

So why retire the streak? I have often told non-streakers who are fascinated by our commitment that from reading the stories from other now retired streakers - it never ends well. By that I mean a runner will be faced with severe injury or illness and cannot continue. I didn’t want to go out that way. My daughter Rachele’s sports hero was Cal Ripken Jr. and we were at the game when he stopped his consecutive game streak and we saw him inducted in Cooperstown. I always had in the back of my mind to end my running streak that way. As of this posting I am 68th on the list and 68 years old—perfect timing!

Will I keep running? Yes, as long as I can but just not every day.

I want to thank our President Mark Washburne, a fellow Marquette Alum from our 1978 class, for his leadership of this great organization for these many years. When I initially heard of the USRSA, what would be the odds of the head being from my same class at Marquette and his birthday one day after mine? Karma at the very least!

To the USRSA: Keep on Truckin!

Squares, Powers, Dates and More: Extra Celebration Opportunities for Streakers

By: Jeffrey Shumway, streak runner
Corvallis, Montana

I recently reached 15 years in my current running streak and am delighted and honored to advance to the Well Versed SRI/USRSA level. My retired streak of 3679 days barely qualified for the Experienced level. Like most streakers, I not only celebrate reaching a new 5-year level, but also yearly anniversaries and next 100 or 1000 days. I am an arithmetical nut to the point of obsession and have applied that propensity to my running streak, creating additional opportunities to celebrate ever-increasing numbers. I generally do all calculations mentally during runs. My habit usually takes only a few minutes each day. I hope some of the following number applications will be of interest to other streakers.

Squares. A few days before my 15th anniversary I reached 5476 days, or  $74^2$ . On that day I exclaimed “I have run 74 days in a row, 74 times!” Squares are frequent in running streaks, especially in early years of running. There are fourteen squares in the first two years on the SRI/USRSA registry – 400 ( $20^2$ ), 441, 484, 529, 576, 625, 676, 729, 784, 841, 900, 961, 1024 and 1089 ( $33^2$ ). Notice that the gap between squares gradually increases. I will arrive at only two squares in 2025,  $75^2$  (5625) and  $76^2$  (5776). Of particular significance are squares of 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, 80, 90, 100, 110, 120, 130, 140 (400, 900, 1600, 2500, 3600, 4900, 6400, 8100, 10000, 12100, 14400, 16900, 19600). If SRI/USRSA were to use these “pure squares” (ending in 00) as thirteen categories rather than the current twelve five-year rankings, there would be the following numbers of runners in each category (as of January 1, 2025).

Day 365 – 899	647 runners
900 – 1599	1101
1600 – 2499	1493
2500 – 3599	852
3600 – 4899	448
4900 – 6399	165
6400 – 8099	58
8100 – 9999	24
10000 – 12099	19
12100 – 14399	20
14400 – 16899	20
16899 – 19599	13
19600 and above	2

This alternative model allows for more uniformity in numbers because early streakers move up in categories sooner, and provides extra stepping stones towards the five- and ten-year levels. However, I show this model for comparison only. I am certainly NOT suggesting SRI/USRSA change the current categories. I am a huge fan of the five-year levels and especially love the titles!

Powers.  $2^9 = 512$ , and ensuing powers equal 1024, 2048, 4096, 8192, 16384. When I reach a new power of 2, I chortle to myself or to whomever will listen “Run two days, now double that, now double again, and again, and again...” Lois Bastien hits 16384 ( $2^{14}$ ) in late February 2025, followed ten days later by Leslie Shoop. They will become the 29th and 30th runners to exceed that top power of 2, including six retired streaks. The following are other higher powers in the range of the registry.

- $2^9$  etc. = 512, 1024, 2048, 4096, 8192, 16384
- $3^6$  etc. = 729, 2187, 6561, 19683
- $5^4$  etc. = 625, 3125, 15625
- $6^4$  etc. = 1296, 7776
- $7^4$  etc. = 2401, 16807
- $10^3$  etc. = 1000, 10000
- $11^3$  etc. = 1331, 14641
- $12^3$  etc. = 1728, 20736

Cubes ( $x^3$ ) of 13 - 27 lie within the range of current streaks, those being 2197 ( $13^3$ ), 2744, 3375, 4096, 4913, 5832, 6859, 8000, 9261, 10648, 12167, 13824, 15625, 17576, 19683 ( $27^3$ ). Steve DeBoer will reach 19683 ( $3^9$  or  $27^3$ ) in mid-April, becoming just the fourth stalker to reach that plateau, the others being Jon Sutherland, Jim Pearson, and Ron Hill.  $28^3$  equals 21592, not to be reached until just beyond 59 years. I will reach my next “cube day” of 5832 in December 2025, on which day I will shout to the skies “Hey, run 18 days in a row. Now do that 18 times. Then repeat all that 18 times!”

Matching the Date. Occasionally a running streak matches the date. For example, three runners (Tara Humble, Karla Gil, Rebecca White) hit 1125 days on January 1, 2025 (1/1/25). For streakers with four digits, the first digit must match the month, the second match the date, and the final two digits match the year. This rare event can occur during the first nine days of January through September. My streak number has never matched the date, but I project I will match on July 1, 2029 (Day 7129).

Matching dates is most common in January because of the large number of streakers in the 1000's. The following eleven runners matched dates this year.

1/1/25: Tara Humble, Karla Gil, Rebecca White (1125 days)
1/2/25: Karoline Kaon, Hagan McHenry
1/3/25: Martin Knight
1/6/25: Anna-Kirin Lindberg
1/7/25: Laura Szilagyi
1/8/25: Annelie Samuelsson, Andreas Gref, Livia Jager

February also offered opportunity. The following 75 runners matched dates this year.

2/1/25: Ethel Wilson
2/2/25: All 67 runners who began streaks on January 1, 2019. Amazing!
2/4/25: Cathy Smith
2/6/25: Andrew Mackay, Ashley Meeden, Tove Hovik, Lambert Lobelo, Mark Collier
2/8/25: Brad Lindert

Six runners match dates in March and April.

3/2/25: Dana Piper
3/6/25: Jake Burch
3/7/25: Justin Knapp, Brian Vineyard
4/3/25: Jay Marshall
4/4/25: Patrick Fariss

I will not take the time to extrapolate for later months. Streakers reading this article may notice for themselves. As there are fewer runners in higher thousands, there will be fewer matching dates.

Runners with five-digit streaks between 11025 and 13125 could match dates in January beyond the first nine days of the month. There are currently only 21 runners in that range, however, and none matched dates in January this year. Some five-digit streakers will get a second chance in October – December by changing slashes in the dates. For example, 11225 can be split as 1/12/25 or 11/2/25. Runners with streaks beyond 13125 have no chance to match dates until they reach the 21000's/22000's for February 10 – 29 dates.

Prime Roots. I enjoy calculating prime roots, but limit celebrations to days with prime roots not exceeding 19. For example, I will reach 5616 days in May 2025.  $5616 = 2 \times 2 \times 2 \times 2 \times 3 \times 3 \times 3 \times 13$ . On that day I will exclaim: "Run 13 days. Now double that. Double again and again and again. Then triple all that three times!" Day 5643 a few weeks later reduces to  $3 \times 3 \times 3 \times 11 \times 19$ . Why do I cap special "prime root days" at 19? I admit this is just my own personal choice; ALL numbers may be described as a product of their primes, but I am more fascinated with those that reduce to smaller roots.

Fibonacci Series. Rather than explaining this important mathematical series, I invite the reader to Google the term, or ask Siri. Fibonacci numbers within the streak list are 377, 610, 987, 1597, 2584, 4181, 6765, 10946, and 17711. There are seven runners that have exceeded 17711; the next to reach it will be John Liepa in late June. Incidentally, the next Fibonacci number after 17711 is 28657, or about 78.5 years.

Palindromes. For streaks of four or five digits, each hundred-day segment includes one palindrome (read forward and back the same). Examples include 1441, 6226, 13731, etc. Technically, all equal digits, such as 555, 4444 and 11111 are palindromes too. I recognize five “Lucky Seven” days – 777, 7777,  $7 \times 77$  (77 weeks or 539),  $7 \times 777$  (777 weeks or 5439) and  $77 \times 77$  (5929).

Consecutively rising digits. These include 456, 567, 678, 789; 1234, 2345, 3456, 4567, 5678, 6789; and one five-digit example – 12345, at least until somebody reaches 23456 or about 64.5 years. Rarer are rising digits with equal gaps – 468, 579, 1357, 2468, 3579 and 13579, the latter next to be achieved by Kip Williamson in March 2026. Three runners (David Gulasy, Jamie Parks, K. Tucker Andersen) will reach 12345 in November 2025 within a few days of each other. Mark Washburne shared a startling coincidence with me about 12345; it is the exact number of days between his birth and the beginning of his running streak, meaning that when his streak reached Day 12345 on October 18, 2023, it equaled exactly half his life span.

Lou Gehrig and Cal Ripken Jr. (consecutive baseball games), 2130 and 2632 respectively. I highly recommend streak runners who reach these numbers listen to Gehrig’s farewell speech given on July 4, 1939, sometimes referred to as baseball’s Gettysburg Address. I also recognize multiples of these two numbers, i.e., 4260, 6390, 8520, 10650, 12780, 14910, 17040, 19170 for Gehrig and 5264, 7896, 10528, 13160, 15792, 18424 for Ripken. Can you believe that four streakers have exceeded 9 times Gehrig’s streak and five have exceeded 7 times Ripken’s?! Robert Kraft just surpassed 50 years and will be the next to reach 7 times Ripken’s streak in May 2025. I also note Joe DiMaggio days – any number with 56 in it – to honor his consecutive game batting streak. I look forward to Days 5600 and 5656 coming up in my streak this spring, exceeding 100 times DiMaggio’s record.

The highest possible addition of digits within the registry range is 37 – on Day 19999 ( $1 + 9 + 9 + 9 + 9$ ). The highest I have had so far was on Day 4999, adding up to 31. The lowest is 1, on Day 1000 and someday, 10000. When my wife and I run together, as we do most days (Diane retired her streak of 8797 consecutive days in June 2024), we occasionally compare totals of our digits and syllables. Yes, I also keep track of number of syllables. I reached nine syllables on Day 777 (se-ven-hun-dred-se-ven-ty-se-ven), ten syllables on Day 1127, eleven syllables on Day 1177, and twelve syllables on Day 1777. That is my record as of now, and I tie it every so often, next on Day 5777. Day 7777 equals thirteen syllables and Day 17777 equals 14 syllables (John Liepa is next in line to reach that number). While several numbers higher than Day 7777 can tie thirteen syllables (such as 14777), 17777 is the lone 14-syllable number in the registry until a runner ties it on Day 21777 or reaches fifteen syllables on Day 27777. On the other end of the spectrum, the lowest possible number of syllables for streakers in the registry is three (400, 5000, 12000 are among such). Trivia fact: the next number after 12000 with three syllables is one million.

Streak on, friends, and Happy Counting!

In Search of Distance Runners Over 100,000 Miles By: Steve DeBoer

There are likely hundreds of individuals throughout the world who have surpassed 100,000 running miles. This is an attempt to gather as many of them as possible in one location. I have been tracking those who have running streaks for over 15 years. I have found many others on Amby Burfoot's 100K Lifetime Miles website. On the list below, I include the state/states or countries they have resided in during their years of running. 120 have an S in front of their name, meaning they have had at least one running streak lasting 365 days or longer, running a minimum of one mile.

Ward, at age 85, is the oldest active male streak runner, having run daily for over 44 years.

Of the 317 runners mentioned above, 26 are deceased, and 22 are female. They represent 12 different countries. In the US, the states with the most representatives are CA (46), MN (39), NJ (30), MA (28), PA (25), NY (23), OH (20), FL (19), MI (16), TX and CO (15), and CT (14). The only states not represented are DE, LA, and RI. Many have lived in more than one state or one country while running.

At least the first seven on the list have run the closest (perigee) distance to the surface of the moon, which was 216,900 miles on 10/16/24. The youngest to run 100,000 for males was Jon Sutherland, at 34yr9m, and for females was Camille Herron, at 40y4m. The siblings with the most combined mileage are Paul and Sherry Case of MN (288,000). The couple with the most are Don and Tammy Slusser of PA (325,000).

The 70,000 Mile Club By: Steve DeBoer

A large number of streak runners (at least 172 that I have been able to confirm) have accumulated over 70,000 miles running in their lifetime. Here is an update of their total and streak mileage. Carolyn Mather has run more miles than any other person with verified records that I am aware of.

Darryl Beardall had run an estimated 280,000 miles by the end of 2012 but was not able to locate all his running logs to verify his total. He was only able to confirm his 2007-2018 mileage. He did not run on Sundays, so was not a streak runner. He ran the Olympic Marathon Trials in 1960, 1964, 1968 and 1972.

Dallas Robertson, Bill Rodgers, Suzanne Ray, Jerry Heaps, and Dick Beardsley are also not streak runners, but I have included them because of their high mileage totals. Dallas had logs for all but the first five years he ran. Rodgers won both the Boston Marathon and New York Marathon four times. He twice set the American Record in the marathon, the first time while winning the 1975 Boston Marathon (2:09:55) and the second time while winning the 1979 Boston Marathon (2:09:27).

Suzanne set the American age group 65-69 record for the one hour run in 2019 with 12,850 meters. Jerry is a fellow Minnesotan with the 4th highest lifetime mileage in our state. Dick ran 2:09:37 to win the Grandma's marathon in 1981, missing Bill's American record by ten seconds. The following year, he battled Alberto Salazar at Boston, finishing 2nd in 2:08:53, as they both broke the American record.

Don Ritchie, British ultra runner, who was not a streak runner, logged 208,100 miles from 1962 to 2011. His 100K world record (6:10:20, set over 40 years ago) was achieved in a track 100K race. Ritchie's halfway split in that race was under three hours, the first time anyone had run that fast for 50K as a split in a longer race. It was the longest standing world record in all of Track & Field until broken by Nao Kazami (6:09:14) on 6/24/18. Don also held WRs for 100M on the track (11:30:51) and 100M on the road (11:51:12).

Frank Bozanich, American ultra runner, was not a streak runner. He was the first American to break 7 hours for 100km, running 6:51:20 in 1979, 20 minutes faster than the old mark. He also won the USA 60-mile National Championship three times and continued to run ultras in his 60s. Earle Linwood Dilks, American ultra runner, who was not a streak runner, logged 195,855 miles from 1905 to 1977, and at one time was listed in the Guinness Book of World Records for having run more documented miles than anyone else.

With Darryl, Dallas, Bill, Suzanne, Jerry, Dick, Don, Frank, and Earle, there are 181 runners now mentioned, though only 172 are part of the "streaker" Club.

** not streak runners

+ money found since his first streak began – has found money every day he has run since 1983!

The person with the most miles in 2024 was Carolyn Mather (6511). Those with the most miles who have a current running streak in 2024 were Woody Woodburn (5651) & Roger Urbancsik (5490).

I probably did not get everyone who qualifies. Please send your data if you have surpassed (or will this year) 70,000 running miles, to (stephen.william.deboer@gmail.com) and I'll include you in the next update.

MEMBER UPDATES – SPRING 2025

Jorge Vega

JORGE VEGA'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

I can't believe it has already been 7 years of running at least a mile every day. I began this as a run streak from Thanksgiving to after New Year's to help offset the extra calories I would be eating during that time since I was trying to be healthier for my family.

I initially did 50 days then said, what if I can do 100? Then that turned into 200 and then a whole year. Then it was two years. After that, it was can I make it to 1,000 days and earn my comma.

After so many days running just becomes part of your daily routine similar to brushing your teeth or taking a shower. During the first year I did mainly 1 mile runs during the week and then longer runs on the weekends or holidays. Then each year it seemed like I was adding more mileage.

In 2019, I joined a running club and signed up for my first race. It was a 10k Turkey Trot. I was hooked and completed my first half marathon after that. Then I got the bug and signed up for my first marathon. But unfortunately, Covid showed up and I had to do my first marathon virtually.

I am now training for my 5th marathon. In addition to marathons, I have done other more challenging things such as the David Goggins 4x4x48 challenge. The longest distance I have run is a 50k and am looking at maybe seeing if I can do a 50 miler in the next couple of years.

I have run in all kinds of weather from freezing cold to the 100 plus degree summers. I have had to run sick, injured (roll/sprained ankles), in my neighborhood, on vacation, on the road (my preference) or on a treadmill, and with others or alone. Running everyday has allowed me to see many beautiful places on foot and see many things that I would have not seen had I not run in a new city, state, or country that I was visiting.

Running everyday also has helped me be consistent in other parts of my life and to not be afraid to take on new challenges. The running community is also another positive thing I have encountered. Everyone is very accepting of you no matter how slow or fast you run. I am part of a running group and have met such great people who are a wealth of knowledge when it comes to advice on nutrition, hydration, etc. Even when I run with a new group in a different city or state, they are all so welcoming.

The biggest question I get is how long I will keep the streak going. I do not know the answer to that. My answer is as long as God allows me to stay healthy enough to keep doing it.

TANITA ELLIS' STREAK ENDS AFTER 777 DAYS

I sadly had to end my streak due to having had to go to the hospital. The last day of my streak was 11.04.2024 having made it to 777 days.

Tanita Ellis
Panama City, Florida

ADAM WALLACH'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 2,001 DAYS

My goal was 2,000. We made it!!! Now I'm going to go rest.

Adam Wallach
Prosper, Texas

MARK LAGUNOWICH'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 7,942 DAYS

This is painful to write. All streakers learn how to conquer insane obstacles to keep our streaks alive. I couldn't overcome colitis. I kept the streak alive while staying close to toilets for 3 months before being hospitalized in August. I only missed 4 days before starting a new streak!

Mark Lagunowich
Acton, Massachusetts

CRAIG WHITFIELD'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 2,876 DAYS

After 7 years, 10 months, my runstreak came to an end, after a minor surgery. I have always enjoyed daily running, and plan on racking up the days, once again, in the future.

Craig Whitfield
Bothell, Washington

SUZ CUTLER'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,474 DAYS

My run streak ended on 8th August after I fell and fractured my ankle in 3 places.

Suz Cutler
Solihul, United Kingdom

MICKY CECIL'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

It's been a good thing. I feel this has changed my running for the better.

Micky Cecil
Moses Lake, Washington

JOHN ANDERSON'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 5,784 DAYS

My streak ended on November 1 after 5,784 days. That was my last day running. I am having a knee replacement surgery on December 3rd.

John Anderson
Palo Alto, California

SARAH LAW'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,416 DAYS

I would like to advise you that unfortunately my run streak ended on October 16th after 1416 days due to a back injury. I have previously run through this but this time I wasn't able to.

So sad, but proud at the same time. I wish you and the other continuous streak participants good luck and more importantly very good health.

CHRIS MENNELLA'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Today [26 November 2024] I hit one of my proudest milestones, 730 days (2 years) of running in a row. I run anywhere from 1 mile to 5 miles dependent on my mood, body. My initial goal was 365 days and after I hit that I thought "why not keep it going."

I learned a lot about myself during this time and the excuses I would tell myself to skip a run. Then I would think about the streak and count up my days with the mindset that "you only have to do a minimum of a mile to keep the streak alive." I would then run a mile and feel so great and keep going. Very few runs were the minimum mile as I would feel motivated to keep going and feel great once I started.

There were challenges to get my run in, sometimes running at 4:00 a.m., in cold Chicago weather, in rain, snow, dark, humidity. Those challenging runs made me feel even more accomplished.

I travel quite a bit and some of the best runs were in parts unknown. I saw parts of the country that I would normally not have seen on these runs and became acquainted with some great neighborhoods.

I have been fortunate to only experience minor twinges here and there with no injuries. Running every day seems to be better on my body than running long distances every other day as I was previously doing.

I may not run fast but enjoy my runs and sometimes even throw in sprints to mix things up.

I am not sure how long my streak will continue but I look forward to pushing toward another 365 days.

Chris Mennella
Mt. Prospect, Illinois

DAVE BEVERLIN'S STREAK HITS 21 YEARS

My streak continues as I finished my 21st year on November 21, 2024 and have started into my 22nd year. I am continuing to hold to my personal 3 mile minimum.

Challenges and milestones this past year included transitioning into retirement (more time for stretching after a run!), running (very slowly) after cataract surgery on both eyes, and running in the beautiful mountains near Golden, Colorado (not easy for this Wisconsin flatlander).

Dave Beverlin
Appleton, Wisconsin

SARAH WOOD'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

I am still going!!! Nothing new to add for me. Just running half marathons when I can and started personal training at LA Fitness.

Sarah Wood
Denver, Pennsylvania

CEDRIC MORISSET'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

It's a great day today [23 November 2024], 8k for 8 years this morning!!

Michael Aisbitt

MICHAEL AISBITT'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

It all began just before a Christmas challenge in 2019....and I just kept on going. All through lockdown, multiple COVID infections but no serious injury. A personal rule of a minimum of 5k per day has sometimes been a challenge!!

13,819 miles, 25 Ultra marathons and lots of shoes.

Thank you to my amazing family for putting up with me and understanding that I HAVE to just "pop out for my run." I couldn't have done it without them and my amazing running club Skelmersdale Boundary Harriers.

Michael Aisbitt
Ormskirk, United Kingdom

CHRISTINE CROOKE'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

I was very excited to reach my ten-year running streak. I do consider it one of my most favorite accomplishment in my life. I am continuing my streak into my eleventh year.

In the past years, since COVID, I have not done much racing, so I decided this past summer to train for a half marathon. I picked the Philly Half as my goal. Training went well. It was not quite as easy at age 66, but not too bad either. I ran the race on November 23. It went pretty well. My time was not my best, but better than I thought it would be. I placed sixth in my age group. It was a cold start and pretty windy.

I was pleased to have accomplished my goal. I haven't set any new goals for the coming year except to continue my streak. Thanks again and streak on everybody.

Christine Crooke
Downingtown, Pennsylvania

ALAN LINNANE'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Yes, as my Run Streak started during Covid in November 2020, I said to myself I will go for a week and see how things go. A week became a month and a month a year and so on. Day 1500 is going to be Friday December 20th.

I run in the morning Monday to Friday at 6am and Saturday and Sunday a little later, predominantly it's a 5km run but at weekend I increase it to 5 miles.

As I tell people when they ask you mean you have never missed a day, I say running is a part of my day now.

Alan Linnane

Jared Blank

JARED BLANK'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Been on a Run Streak for 5 years now. It started in 2019 and was only supposed to go from Thanksgiving through the New Year and then it kept going.

Through it I have been able to raise awareness and funds for a cause near and dear to my heart, dyslexia. Even set up the Running The Distance Scholarship at Park Academy, the only school in Oregon dedicated to serving that population: <https://parkacademy.schoolauction.net/runningdistance/homepages/show>.

This past summer, the run streak for me expanded as part of a challenge to raise awareness for cancer. In July the goal was to go three or more miles each day for Team RJ Live Your Best Life. Since July 1 I've been running at least 3 miles a day.

I find that a run streak is so important as movement is great from an individual perspective as well as a community one. Something I have seen from this endeavor.

Portland, Oregon

BONNIE DYE'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Seven years and still streaking! No big news to report although I did my first treadmill run of my streak - adding to my airport runs of many years back as non-traditional running events - after a late international arrival led me to the hotel fitness room as street running after 9pm locally seemed unsafe. Otherwise, it's running as usual. Looking forward to another year (and then some) of running every day. Streak on!

Bonnie Dye
Durham, North Carolina

BARRY BRITTON'S STREAK HITS 25 YEARS

I am celebrating my 25 years running streak. It still continues, but I am struggling with back pain; so, I may have to end it soon. I will notify you if I do.

Barry Britton
Roscoe, Illinois

RACHEL SULE'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I'm grateful for five years of streaking (and counting) and honored to be part of such an inspiring group of runners.

Rachel Sule

SARAH MANLEY'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Delighted to reach 2 years. What started as a 'run up to Christmas' has continued on! Thanks to all those ahead for showing it can be done.

Jarl Odin Herland

JARL ODIN HERLAND'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I love running every day and the last 12 months I've run more and longer than ever before: an average of more than 10 km each day. Next year's big goal is Oslo Bergen Trail: 500 km trail and 28.000 m climb. I think the run streak is the reason I am able to do this.

JOHN HARTENBURG'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

Still running every day for 11 years now. Totally forgot it was my 11-year anniversary until I saw a reminder e-mail from the US Run Streak Assoc.

Keep up the good work everyone.

Chris Jeanes

CHRIS JEANES' STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Five years, never dreamed I would still be going at this point back when I started.

Tough year this year, no longer getting quicker or stronger, no PBs at any distance since 2022... however the run streak is still going strong and with nothing bent or broken and in good health onwards I go. No plans to end the streak. I aim to continue until something major prevents me from continuing.

Highlights this year included the Redway Runners MK 24 event, over 53km completed over 24 hours, as well as six new tourist parkrun events.

Two near misses this year in terms of the streak. Firstly, a cancelled train when on my way home from holiday in France meaning I had to resort to a 1 mile out and back from my front door at 23:50 at night to keep the streak going. Secondly, a major, major, and very messy hangover almost ended the streak but I pulled it together for another 1 mile run from the front door late on a Sunday night.

Still enjoying running every day, no plans to end... hopefully will report in again in a year's time.

Martin and Juri Guldner

MARTIN GULDNER'S JOINS SRI FROM GERMANY

Hello streak-runner-community,

My name is Martin Guldner. I am 41 years old and work as a policy advisor for a health insurance company. I live with my family in Magdeburg/Germany.

I never would have thought that I would develop a passion for running. I started running eight years ago. The first few kilometers were a challenge. Now I just enjoy it and it gives me great happiness. I have completed a few half marathons and a small triathlon.

In November last year I started running every day. First it was three days in a row, then a week, then a whole month. I came across the SRI by chance. This gave me the ambition: I want to run every day. So far, it's working. It's sometimes an organizational challenge. There's still a marathon and an ultramarathon on the to-do list.

The photo shows me at a sporting event and my son handing me water.

Martin Guldner

Shane Ober

SHANE OBER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Year 2 of my run streak complete. Almost identical number of miles compared to year one. Lots of runs, lots of fun! My gym coach Erin even had our class do one of my favorite workouts this morning. Here's looking forward to another year of good health and quality time outside with friends. Keep on streaking!

JORI KENNEDY'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Many exciting things happened over the first three years of my streak; however, the most exciting would have to be my 1000 day. As a Cross Country Coach, who runs with her student athletes daily, we were able to celebrate this milestone together. It was one for the memory books!

Jori Kennedy

GREG SCHRAGE'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 750 DAYS

Unfortunately, my daughter broke her femur and I spent the day in the hospital with her. Time to start a new one!

Greg Schrage
Fishers, Indiana

ANDREW PRYOR'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Yes, 2 years of a minimum 10km a day! 5 kids and work every day is a tough challenge.

Andrew Pryor
Adelaide, Australia

KELLI DAVIS' STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

This year marks my eight-year run streak! It is hard to believe how fast the time has flown, yet at the same time I asked myself every day, "Should I keep this going?"

My four children are the ones that always say yes, Mom, you got this. They have been my inspiration this year because I had my best running friend move an hour away. So, there are many days where I couldn't just call somebody and go for an awesome run. Solo runs are not really my speed, but I have learned to take that time to really enjoy being alone.

Thanks for starting this run platform because it definitely is in the back of my mind on those days that are harder to get out there. I am on to year nine!

Kelli Davis
Decatur, Georgia

MATT RYERSON'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

10 years of joyous running. This last year had the most miles as I trained for an effort at R2R2R (successfully completed in October) and the Tunnel Hill 50-mile race (also completed). I already started on year 11 of the streak!

Matt Ryerson
Knoxville, Tennessee

RICK WALLIS' STREAK HITS 26 YEARS

Nothing extraordinary to report. Just running everyday - no different than brushing your teeth.

Rick Wallis
Port Orange, Florida

Scott Breeden

SCOTT BREEDEN'S STREAK HITS 15 YEARS

Excited to have hit the 15-year mark! One of my recent running endeavors is running every single street in whatever city I currently live. Recently, I finished Cleveland, Ohio (2783 streets). Now I am working on Omaha, Nebraska, and I'm just a little over 80% of the way done.

Other than running every single day, another streak I keep up is running a sub five-minute mile every year for the past 21 years. Usually I come in just under the wire a few days before the new year, but this year I got it done in November.

I am now training for Monumental Marathon in Indianapolis, as I will be moving back to my home state of Indiana next fall.

On a whim last spring I started a push-up streak, adding one push-up each day. As of today [13 December 2024], I am at 227. Planning to stop at 365. I do not recommend.

SARAH BROWN'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

My 4-year runiversary coincided with a trip to Charlotte, NC for the AAU Cross Country Nationals. I accompanied 26 kids from the Hillsborough Harriers, a Tampa-based youth distance running team that my husband and I manage. These kids are my motivation to keep up my streak!

JAN VAN DE ERVE'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Today [13 December 2024], I'm very happy to celebrate my 5 year-runstreak! It was a wonderful journey and especially the last year was very hard because of several private circumstances (sickness, divorce, new relationship and so on ...).

The numbers so far (so good):

- * 5 years / started December 14th, 2019
- * 1827 Days
- * 15,863 km
- * 8.68 km per session
- * 29 marathons
- * 6 ultramarathons

Hakan Stensby

HAKAN STENSBY'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

So now it's been 7 years, the days go by. Since last year I've extended my longest run to a trail run at Idre Fjällmaraton to their 28K distance which worked fine.

I'm aiming for a 35K run during 2025 and if I manage to do that early on then I'll probably do a full marathon before end of 2025. But before I do all that there is two half marathons to aim for, that's the classic Gothenburg race and the other is "Broloppet" starting in Copenhagen and ends in Malmö running over Öresundsbron. These two happen in May and June, then the Idre fjällmaraton is at the end of August so I have some time to train for their 45K, aiming for at least. We'll see when that date is getting closer if it's going to be 28 again or 45.

The everyday runs are by this stage a routine and "everyone" knows I'm doing it so they expect me to. Some still thinks it's crazy but I haven't found out anything else that I can fit into a daily routine so I'll continue. :-) Good luck everyone with your runstreaks!

Gunilla Svantorp

GUNILLA SVANTORP'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

At the end of the pandemic year 2020, the 11th [December], I started my runstreak after reading an article about it. This week I passed four years of running.

I usually run 20 minutes every day in a calm tempo but some days when I'm in a hurry or don't feel being at 100% I run the minimum of an English mile.

I always run first thing in the mornings everywhere I am. I'm travelling a lot for my work and am happy to be able to see more of the cities I'm coming to but usually only see conference rooms. So thanks to Runstreak for that!

THOMAS SISULAK'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 6,016 DAYS

It is with Great Sadness that my 16 Year, 5 Month, 19 Day Running Streak has ended suddenly! Totally unexpected!

My last Run was on December 11, Wednesday morning, 2024, with a 2.0-Mile Run!

Then, I drove to the Loyola Hospital Immediate Care Doctor Center in Burr Ridge, Illinois, that is about 9 miles from my home in Riverside, Illinois.

The Doctor analyzed the dark reddish infection on my face on the right cheek, which I had been nursing at home. The infection was getting closer to my right eye and also had started to become an ear infection!

The Doctor insisted that I drive right away to the Hinsdale Hospital Emergency Room about 5 miles away. The Emergency Room Doctor decided to begin an I.V. Medicine for the Infection! And insist that I stay Overnight in the Hospital for additional Tests.

So, one day became five days and four overnights in the hospital.

I pleaded with the many Doctors and Nurses to disconnect the I.V., so that I might continue my daily run inside the hospital! However, they all insisted, NO!

The strange cause for the Infection on the face cheek is an imbedded tree needle from tree trimming!!! Another aspect of my careers is tree trimming, along with 40+ years as a Math Teacher, Cross Country Coach, Gymnastics Coach, and Track Coach!

Still presently taking several medicines, now at home in Riverside. Waiting for the Doctor's approval to begin a new running streak! My daily life pattern always feels "Normal" when running each day!!

This has been a "Shock" to my system, even at my age of 77years and 5months!

Sorry, that I was unable to provide this information, during previous days!

And, YES, from an earlier email, Nicholas Biddle is my Cousin from previous family generations! He helped with the Louisiana Purchase, establishing the Stock Market, and establishing one of the initial Banking Systems in the "New" United States of America!

I am Praying that the present Medicines will end this Nasty Infection and permit me to RUN, again!

"Thank You" for everything that you do for runners across America and throughout the World!!

ANNA NEKOLA'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

Eight years and going strong! I average 70km per week, aiming for 10km per day. I have run through illness, injury, tight travel days, and garbage weather.

My current challenge is finding how running works best for me as I return to the workforce full-time, after 13 years as a stay at home mom.

I am two weeks into my new job, and have been waking up at 5:15am to run at least 5k (unfortunately at this time of year, it's on the treadmill most days - so much ice out there!). Then I get the kids up and ready, and head to work for 7:45. I've been needing more running after sitting all day (so out of character for me!), so I've been going for round two before dinner.

I don't race, I don't train. I just have fun with running.

The wonderful thing about running is that it can be exactly what you need it to be each day. Some days are for heatmapping, others for transportation. Some days are an adventure somewhere I have never been before, while most are my standard routes. Some days I go for speed, while others it's all I can do to just slog along. The important thing is consistency: running is always there for me, every single day.

CHRISTOPHER BIELINSKI'S STREAK HITS 13 YEARS

My runstreak continues, year 13 highlights:

- Ran 4 marathons in Georgia, Wyoming, West Virginia, and Greenland.
- Greenland was a first time Arctic marathon race that was a good challenge but very fun, with almost 3,000 feet of ascent according to my Garmin.
- Had good weather for all of my marathons and other races.
- Passed the 26,000 miles run mark since the start of the runstreak.

I'm thankful for no significant injuries or issues, on to year # 14!

Been running every day for three years, day and night, in wintry Norway. Completed several ultramarathons. And signed up for my first 100-miler later in 2025 in Sweden.

DIVYA SAHAJWALLA'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

During my first year of medical school I started a running streak as a New Year's resolution that I was a bit overeager about and started early. I never expected it to take me where it did.

I ran after late night anatomy labs and before 4 AM surgery rotation shifts. I ran through times of amazing joy and times of unbearable heartbreak. I ran through days of taking care of COVID patients as a brand-new doctor and while having COVID myself.

In addition to the US, I ran in Japan, Mexico and India, and on countless trips with family and friends. And perhaps most memorably, I once ran a mile by doing loops inside of my one-bedroom apartment during a blizzard. I ran the day after my first marathon (which was later followed by 3 more) and the day after my first ultramarathon.

This streak has taken me farther than I could have ever expected, and I am so grateful for the change it brought me. I can only hope that I can keep running, and hope that I can keep adding on years.

ARLENE BITMANSOUR'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

Today [23 December 2024] marks 9 incredible years—3,287 consecutive days—of running every single day. What began as a simple commitment to myself—to stay fit, healthy, and disciplined—has become a life-changing journey.

Over the years, this streak has carried me through life's highs and lows, moments of strength and challenges, including injuries that tested my resolve. But with a 'mind over matter' approach, I kept moving forward. Through sunshine and far too much rain (seriously, what's with all the rain?), this streak has been my constant.

Each run serves as a reminder of the power of consistency and the joy of showing up for yourself. It's proof that, even on the hardest days, we can take one step forward—literally and figuratively.

To anyone wondering if they can start their own streak—whether it's running, walking, or any other form of exercise—let this be your reminder: You can. Commit to just one day, then the next, and watch the momentum build. Start small, stay consistent, and celebrate every step of the journey.

Here's to health, happiness, and the strength to show up for ourselves. Onward to year 10!

JEFFREY SHUMWAY'S STREAK HITS 15 YEARS

I am thrilled to achieve 15-year status. My first streak ended in November 2009 just after 10 years - 3679 consecutive days. Today [25 December 2024] I am exactly 1800 days beyond that retired streak - 5479.

The past few months have been a new experience for me, as my wife Diane's streak ended in June because of back surgery. I expect most streakers run alone most days, and so I did. Solo runs are not as fun as running side by side with my wife, but I chose to persevere at least until hitting 15 years, and now I am committed and eager to continue for as long as health permits.

Cold, hot, early, late, snow, ice (YakTrax), airports, parking lots, or regular routes - all part of the adventure of streaking.

Incidentally, Diane is well on her way to total healing (back surgery takes up to a year recovery). I look forward to running on a regular basis with her again soon.

BRIAN VINEYARD'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

It is hard to believe that it has now been 10 years since the last time I went a full day without going for a run as that seems like just yesterday.

What always gets me is that prior to taking a day off from running on Christmas of 2014 is that I had a streak of a couple hundred days going prior to that so my now 3,653 (and counting) streak would be even longer if I had just run that day.

My personal requirement is to run at least a 5K in distance for my streak to continue, and what I am most proud of during the last 10 consecutive years of running every day is that I ran a little over 31,000 miles and thus averaged about 8.5 miles per day.

RAZAMAN RIDZUAN'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I'm incredibly grateful to mark this milestone of running every single day for the past four years. It's been an amazing journey, and I truly cherish the gift of staying consistent and healthy!

Beyond running, 2024 has been a year of growth and positive lifestyle changes:

- Cutting out sugar from drinks: A small change that has made a big difference.
- Prioritizing protein intake: Ensuring my meals are balanced and support my active lifestyle.
- Starting Intermittent Fasting in June 2024:
  - Total fasting hours: 2,125 hours
  - Longest streak: 50 days
  - Longest fasting session: 20 hours
  - Average fasting duration: 14 hours, 34 minutes
  - Incorporating weightlifting: Adding strength training to my routine alongside running.

As I step into 2025, my focus will shift to improving sleep while maintaining and building on all the habits I've established.

Feeling truly blessed and excited for what lies ahead on this journey!

BO GRIST'S STREAK HITS A DOZEN YEARS

Yes...the streak is still alive and it was great to celebrate the 12-year milestone this year. I lost my dog and running mate, Afton (standard poodle), to cancer this summer but his nephew (Ivan) and our new puppy (Gracie) are helping heal that loss.

I saw someone state on the Facebook page recently that "running is hard to start and even harder to stop." That has been my experience as well!

I am very proud of this accomplishment and equally grateful to the group for the support. My wife and kids remain super supportive and I hope to stay involved for many more years. Again, thanks for reaching out and best of luck to everyone in the group.

My streak is still going strong 14 years later. I had a great year of running! I completed 2 ultra-marathons, one full marathon, plus several half marathons. I completed 4 more states this year leaving Alaska as my only state left.

DANIEL DANKO'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

I completed the 7th year of my running streak with a down month, as I am nursing a pesky patellar tendon back to good health.

Despite the down month, I had the pleasure of completing my first 100k in May and continued to spend most of my miles on natural surfaces rather than on pavement.

I wish everyone good health in continuing their running streaks into 2025 and beyond!

HANNAH BARTMAN'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

2 years of streaking! It has been filled with a LOT of frustration and many 1-mile minimum days as I battled an unrelated upper body injury affecting my running. I also moved 3 times, started a new job, bought a house, and me and my now husband got married. I am just now getting my mileage back up to 40-60 mpw.

This was by far the most challenging year for us, but I have loved how my streak has given me something I can control and look forward to each day! Looking forward to seeing what the next 365 days bring!

SARAH MILNE JOINS SRI FROM SCOTLAND

21st October 2024 marks my 4-year run streak and also the day after running a personal best marathon time of 3:16:56 in the Amsterdam Marathon. Starting a run streak has been by far one of the best decisions I've made in my life.

The initial goal was to hit a 1 year run streak but here we are 4 years later and do not plan to stop any time soon!

My run streak has taken me on many adventures over the last 4 years with racing distances from 5km's up to a 24hour race and I have met so many amazing running friends along the way.

Roll on the 5-year run streak in October 2025!!

JOHN BOWERS' STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Well that's four years! I thought I was a goner a couple of weeks ago when I could barely walk due to some inexplicable ankle pain. I did a couple of excruciating streak-savers, and then kept my mileage low until the ankle felt normalish. Now I'm back at it.

Four years, 6823 miles on four continents. Rain. Travel. Altitude. Covid. Pfft. A real highlight was getting the opportunity to run eight miles on the beach with Robert Raven Kraft back in 2023. He is an inspiration to us all. Onwards!

JOAKIM KUNGSMAN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I've now reached the two-year milestone on my (hopefully) never-ending runstreak! I began this journey on January 1, 2023. The first few months were undoubtedly the hardest until the habit became ingrained in my daily life. Since starting, I've experienced two colds. To maintain the streak during those times, I reduced the distance to the minimum and ran at a very slow pace, ensuring I didn't overexert myself. It worked for me, but it's important to remember to always listen to your body first.

There are still moments when I feel like skipping a run—just for one day—but the Runstreakr app keeps me accountable. It tracks every single run and will reset my streak to day zero if I miss even one tiny day. This unwavering accountability keeps me motivated to lace up and hit the road.

The freedom and empowerment I feel when pounding the pavement always outweigh the tiredness I felt beforehand. I'm committed to running every day for the rest of my life because running doesn't just fuel the body—it fuels the soul.

Joakim Kungsmann

JONATHAN GOERING'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

My running streak reached 9 years this week. Can't believe it! Every run has been outdoors and unplugged (no music, podcasts, etc.). Helps to clear my mind. Ran a road marathon in November and plan to tackle a trail marathon in the spring. If all goes well, I look forward to celebrating a 10-year streak next year. Cheers!

SCOTT DONALDSON'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

2024 was a great streaking year! However, it started with a small medical emergency in January that caused me to pass out while running. I took a pretty good hit to the face, shoulder, and hand but other than a few scars and some doctor visits, I'm good as new. The doctor, of course, advised that I don't run until my cat scan results came back, but we all know how that went...

In April, I completed my goal of running in all 50 States with a trip to the Big Island in Hawaii (see photo). I also had the opportunity to run in four new countries:

- Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates
- Frankfurt, Germany
- Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina
- Vienna, Austria

I am looking forward to 2025 and the adventures that it will bring. Happy New Year!

GORDON MACLELLAN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

December 2022 was when it began. Inspired by a fellow UK runner who completed an astonishing feat of running an unsupported marathon every day for a year for charity made me think to myself “could I, as a less than average runner, run every day for a year?” Not a marathon obviously but just run the obligatory streak mile? Give it a go and see what happens.

Before I'd even started I was told, “you'll not do that, you'll injure yourself. Impossible.” To a stubborn (or as they say in Scotland “thrawn”) 50 something just made me more determined to do it and prove the doubters wrong.

As the weeks and months went on I saw the benefits of daily running. Physically so much better. A daily mind cleanser, all in all making me so much happier.

Yes, there were days when I couldn't be bothered and felt tired but every time I put on the trainers, stepped outside no matter the weather and ran I instantly felt better.

One day drives you onto the next with the excitement and dare I say pride in what I was achieving.

Race times were slashed with improvements in every category. 12-minute PB in half marathon and 52-minute PB in marathon. No injuries as my body strengthens with every run. The message to myself was simply listen to your body. If you feel tired or a little niggle just slow down and have a recovery day.

1-year streak running has now become 2 and moving into year 3. Why would I want to stop? I'm enjoying it far too much and genuinely feel fitter and stronger than I have before.

I am in awe of fellow streak runners who are into thousands of days and decades of running. Well done whoever you are.

2025 is an exciting year as I am travelling from Scotland to run the San Francisco marathon. Bring it on and savour every mile, step and second.

I often make mistakes race running but I learn and every day is a school day. As they say “education is important but streak running is importanter!”

To all the fellow runners, congratulations on your continuing streak and successes. Good luck and enjoy it to all those starting.

HOLLY ADAMS' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Year #2 of my running streak is in the books. It's a little strange I've been running on/off since I was around 15 or 16 and never really considered myself a "runner." To this day, it's still difficult for me to say it "I am a runner" as I never really feel like I've earned the title.

I absolutely love running - I've covered 1600 miles this year (up 400 from 2023), fought injury, ran in several races but most importantly - it's key for my mental health. And that is what I tell myself on the days I don't feel like lacing up.

Also, proud to say I've passed the love on to my 15-year old daughter who completed her first year of cross country and will start track this January.

Cheers to year 3!

RAY ORTMAN'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

Woohoo! This morning [31 December 2024] I completed 10 full years of streak running at least 5K per day!

It wasn't always easy - I ran despite two bouts of kidney stones and two bouts of Covid, a dog bite, and a few other minor injuries - but I am so excited and proud that I persevered. I ran on four continents (so far) and six marathons, and even at sea.

Honestly, being so deeply invested in my running streak has helped keep me disciplined (and healthy). I also still love the exhilaration of the cadence of running and breathing and getting outside, and I smile every time - especially when I encounter another runner. It is a great way of life for me and I love being part of the larger dedicated running community.

Streak on into 2025!

BOBBY HASTINGS' STREAK HITS 15 YEARS

Another year in the books! I've had some minor injuries throughout the year, and have been road racing 5k's and also cross country as a member of the Hoka Aggies Running Club. I also ran my first track mile in at least 45 years at the Mike Fanelli Invite finishing with a time of 5:45.

My season just ended as I competed in the USATF Club Nationals in Tacoma, Wa. December 14th.

On to the next! Happy New Year!

OLEG LEE'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

This year has been an unforgettable chapter in my running journey, marked by incredible milestones and meaningful progress. I ran 12 states toward my 50 States Challenge, bringing my total to 16 states completed so far. Internationally, I took on the Paris and Berlin marathons, adding global flair to an already exciting year.

I also achieved a major personal milestone, running my fastest marathon ever with a time of 2:57:55, which earned me a coveted spot in the 2025 Boston Marathon. On top of that, I won the Tokyo Marathon lottery, and running it in 2025 will officially complete my five stars of the Abbott World Marathon Majors, having already conquered Berlin, Chicago, and New York.

Reflecting on these accomplishments, it's amazing to see how far I've come since starting my running streak four years ago. What started as a personal goal has become an extraordinary adventure, full of new places, new records, and unforgettable moments. Here's to the miles behind me and the many more ahead!

GREG NERCESSIAN'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

My run streak hit 8 years today [31 December 2024]! No days off in 8 years. In that time, I've run as little as a mile and as many as 62 miles on any given day...and always laced up my shoes the next day.

Running brings me joy and, no matter how tough my day gets, it represents that sliver of my day that is truly my own. This streak has taught me, when something is important enough, we find a way. I know one day this streak will end, but today is not that day.

I remain inspired by others doing amazing things in their own lives. I have friends fighting cancer, setting BIG goals, being awesome parents, overcoming immense obstacles - You all are pretty damn special. My kids continue to be my why. I hope to show them grit through action, not by words alone. Wishing everybody a happy and healthy 2025! Keep going.

TONY RICHARDSON'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

So that's another year done (Year 8) and without doubt my toughest year to date. I had COVID early in the year and it took me 3 months before running felt right again. I still had to concentrate on running a little further each day. Sometimes even a mile felt tough.

I'm now 64 and only took up running later in life. Now it's as important a part of my day as anything I've ever done.

Thankfully as the year went on things seemed to settle down. I didn't run any Marathons this year but very pleased to have continued my daily Runstreak.

To all you other Runstreakers out there, you all have my sincere admiration. I know all too well how difficult it can be to run when the weather is bad or you're ill and just not feeling it.

As with every year since I started running, I've run in all kinds of weather and even in a couple of storms. I've run early in the morning and also very late into the night sometimes too.

All of us rely on others to help us continue this madness... I have Julie, who helps motivate me. She puts up with me running, even when it's inconvenient and we're away on holiday. She makes sure my kit is always clean and keeps me topped up with tea and home-made cake. I really couldn't do it without her love and support.

Congratulations to us all, we've managed to make it through another year... Here's hoping 2025 goes smoothly.

NORBERT GROESCH'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I am very happy that I have been running every day for 2 years. My minimum distance is 2.2 km. The last time I was ill was more than 2 years ago. I am much more capable and have a more positive attitude. That is why I will continue to run my distances every day.

TIM TEEGE'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Over a thousand consecutive days and now three full years – and Gump Day (3y 2m 14d 16h) is in sight as well! It was never my plan. I just slipped into it after making it through a full month. Now, I love it so much and I'm a defender of the practice.

For me personally, the uplifting feeling of running "despite it all" is the most important factor. Horrifying weather, a broken toe, COVID, an unplanned airport layover, the day after a 100k mountain ultra, it's these unusual days I love most. Running is just the best, so why not do it every day?

TJ HERZOG'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

That's 4 years in a row (1,461 days) of running at least 2 miles a day. In total I've run 7,711 miles during the streak, finished seven 100 mile runs and four 100k's. The running highlight of 2024 was winning the Beyond Limits Ultra 24hr race.

I've learned over the years that doing a little bit every day truly goes a long way. I try my best to live and honor Jesus Christ to the fullest. I'm excited to continue the stream and see what 2025 has to offer.

JEFF HAWKINS' STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I appreciate you reaching out to me. Here is some information on my streak:

Started Jan. 1, 2019.

Ran at least 1 mile every day that first year.

Added .25 each year for my minimum.

2024 minimum was 2.25.

2025 minimum is 2.50.

I have run in rain, sleet, 6-8 inches of snow, below zero/15 feels like temps, roads, trails, fields, parking lots, etc. 😊

I am a school principal, so I try to use my running as an example for students and staff in achieving their goals.

Have a blessed day and Happy New Year.

SCOTT DEDEO'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

2024! All I can really say is wow! What a year! I knew going in that I would have to hit the ground running if I was going to reach my goal of completing the Tahoe 200.

The year began with a 50-mile run starting at 2am on New Year's Day and I never took my foot off the pedal after that. I ran 396 miles in January, 464 in March, and completed my first ever 135-mile week in May.

In June, I raced and completed the Tahoe 200 in just under 80 hours, a race nearly three years in the making. After Tahoe, I was forced to back off. I had just put my body through the most intense training and racing cycle ever and needed to heal. While my fatigue level dissipated pretty quickly, it took months for the musculoskeletal damage to heal and even required seeing a physical therapist. Thankfully, I was still able to get my daily runs in.

In the fall, I ran the Newport marathon, the Marine Corps 50k, and finally finished summiting the NH 48 4000' peaks. I finished the year with just over 4100 miles, a huge jump from previous years.

Looking forward to seeing what year 12 of the streak brings. Next up, a marathon on Madeira island.

NAN LUJAN'S STREAK HITS 13 YEARS

My streak hit 13 years today [2 January 2025]. This past year I ran just shy of 1,400 miles and my total streak mileage is a little under 25,000.

Running the streets of different towns is keeping the running every day interesting. This year I completed the streets in Farrington, Pittsboro, Topsail Beach, and Chapel Hill, NC, and Cedar Grove, WI. At some point I'd like to do a 10th marathon. All I know for sure is I'm going to lace up tomorrow and run at least a mile. ❤️👟🏃

Allan Howling

ALLAN HOWLING'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

This year I hit 6 years running every day.

After a false start back in 2018 where I was encouraged to stop a short 6month streak by a doctor, I got started on the 1st January 2019. I started running every day to take much of the question out of my running. I found I often had an excuse, "I'll run tomorrow" and tomorrow often never happened as I had another excuse. The streak running takes all the question of "If" I am going to run and turn it's into "When" and it has made me the runner I am today.

Minimum 2km a day, my average is currently up at 9.5km a day, I had always liked the idea of running further and over the year have raced all distances from 1mile all the way through to 50miles. This year I wanted a 100km but after losing my brother and close work colleague to cancer in the first couple of months of the year I decided to try and raise money for charity. So, I needed a real challenge! This came in the form of a 100mile race along the sound coast of Wales.

Double the furthest distance I had ever run before and very hilly, it was a difficult race, but I met people along the way and dug deep to finish 7th and within my personal goal of sub 24 hours. The run the following day was very difficult and I nearly made my peace with losing the streak but I worried that once I stop I may not start again and there is a risk I will slip back to my old ways of running "tomorrow."

I am pleased to get out every day and keep training through all weathers. It really makes you so much stronger! I hope to return to marathon distance soon and train towards a faster time rather than more of the slow ultras of the last couple of years. Good for age for London was achieved once but the target was later moved a few seconds out of grasp, so I hope to have another go towards that soon.

I often get asked when I'm going to stop, and I honestly can't say. I have no target in mind and running is now as much a part of me as anything else I do. I shall continue while I am fit, healthy, and able to run every day.

Allan Howling

63-year old marathon and ultra-runner here. Just completed 3 years, 1096 straight days of running at least five miles outside (no treadmill runs) every day. I also just retired from my job of 40 years, so I hope to have an easier time keeping the streak alive through 2025!

AARON CAFASSO'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

Run streak did continue through 2024 - reaching the 8-year milestone. Ran many times with one or both of my dogs attached to my waist. They love it as much as I do. I also Ran the Year for the 6th time, totaling 2,027 miles logged in 2024.

I did end my side running streak of 5 miles a day -- that made it to the 5-year mark but I am happy to end that streak as that daily mileage toll has taken somewhat of a negative toll on my lifestyle so I will drop to the high 3's - 4-mile mark for much of the 2025 year to allow my body to recover some. Still doing my daily mantra - "EARN YOUR SLEEP." These are definitely words that I live by.

SIJMEN MULDER'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Celebrated five years on 31 December! A few days prior, I noticed that I was 'only' 65 km off 2,500 km for the year so I ran three half marathons in three consecutive days to finish it off. After the last, I was welcomed home by my family with a '5' cake, a big '5' in the Christmas tree, and a selection of craft beers. What a way to end a year!

This year I ran the Amsterdam marathon, my first, in a slightly disappointing 4:23. Can't say I enjoyed it much but I'm proud to have done it. I also managed to PB at the 10-mile Dam tot Damloop and a local 10k.

It's been an eventful 5 years. In the third, I had to deal with sciatica, and always, with my own procrastination and lack of planning. So many late-night runs and more than a handful plainclothes ones! And as with any such time period, there were several life events that could've warranted an end to the streak. It makes me look with even more awe at those keeping it up for multiple decades already.

For the next year, I plan to keep up the streak but dial back on the intensity and volume, hopefully adding back in some strength training and freeing up time to spend on other hobbies.

JOHN LIEPA'S STREAK HITS 48 YEARS

As I finished my 48th year with a run Tuesday [31 December 2024] afternoon, I thought long and hard about those years. I'll soon celebrate another milestone - my 80th birthday on February 16th. I think none of us on this Registry think of ourselves as bionic men or women. But we all know we share our love and passion of running with a very special group of disciplined and dedicated 'streakers.'

Last August I helped organize my Roosevelt High School's (Des Moines, Iowa) 60th class reunion. Our graduating class had over 700 members; about 125 showed up; and at the end of the weekend, I had mixed feelings. Lots of classmates were deceased; many were dealing with various health issues; and a few of us who had dedicated our lives to a healthy lifestyle, exercise, and running felt good about where we were at this point in our lives.

My run today [2 January 2025] wasn't long - 3 miles; it was 33 degrees with a bit of snow on the ground; I ran near a park next to the Raccoon River and my hosts were 8 white-tailed does who I'm on an almost first name basis with. It was quiet; I had the trail to myself; and it reaffirmed my personal belief that this was part of what my life was meant to be.

When I'm at my Anytime Fitness gym or when colleagues ask me my age, they're surprised, I'm elated, and I share my 'pearls of wisdom,' "keep moving" and as baseball Hall of Famer Satchell Paige said: "Don't look back, something might be gaining on you." My hope is that all of you behind our top "streakers" aspire to pass us, and inspire other runners to a "lifetime of running."

Photo: One of the proudest moments of my 48-year streak was when my wife, Dianne, and I finished first in the "Husband-Wife" Division of the Manitoba Marathon in Winnipeg in 1979. I'm holding the hand of my 3-1/2-year-old son who is now 48. Over these years, my wife, son and daughter have all run marathons - it is genetic!

JESPER PEDERSEN'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I have entered the 5-year club - which I did not expect from the beginning when my girlfriend challenged me to try this just for 1 month. What happened? Yeah, the months went alright so why stop a day 31 - next goal could be 50 and the rest is history.

A history I believe all runstreaker have - the feeling of being a complete idiot of running stupid time and places. I have run on a graveyard in Paris, Amsterdam Airport, before midnight and just after to combine two runstreaks.

My streak has gone from running more and more - to start running minimum and for the first time thinking about stopping my streak - but nope I'm still here. But I have accepted the minimum is good enough for me instead of ending my streak because I need to focus on other training for my body.

The plan is set for the next 5 years!! hope to see you out there someday.

DINA THARALDSEN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Started my streak exactly 2 years ago. I started because I wanted to come out of a postpartum depression after having my third kid. Now having 3 kids that was 0, 2 and 4 years old, I knew I had to do something.

The days and years went by. Mile after mile, I ended up running over 10km every day for over a year.

Next year started and I wanted more. I ran 30km every Monday for 9 months and over 10km for rest of the week or more. I have had a streak with over 100km for 1 year now. In total in these two years I have run 4 ultramarathons and 2 marathons.

I have loved every step of the way. It has helped my depression a lot. Running saved me. In total I have run 3937km the first year, and this year I have run 5404km!!! I am so proud!

Blessed and excited to reach 27 years, 3 mile minimum for the streak. Aches and pain raise here and there but that's par for course. Mentally the mind has never been more passionate about running.

This May 10,000 days is on the horizon. Very few times has a number got me so jacked up. I'm ultra-running. It's right around the corner. We got 20 miles left, lol.

ANDREW STARZEC'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Yipeeeee!!! 5 years of running. This actually my 2nd streak. The first streak ended at 699 days as I broke my clavicle skiing (of course I doubted my decision a day after ending it!) and I took 31 days off and started this current streak.

Starting this streak with my arm strapped to my side to protect my shoulder and running slowly led into the outbreak of COVID. I thank this streak for getting me through all of the isolation we all had to go through during those times.

I love streak running as it has become a fabric of my day to day life. The friends I've made on the Facebook page helps so much. There are some rough days that turn into one and done but I always look forward to that time of day to clear out the clutter of day to day grind.

The daily posts on the Facebook page gives me the motivation to get out there and get that run in when I question why I do this. Then I get that run in and it all comes back to why I love this. You all inspire me and, to the friends who have ended their streaks, I will always carry that torch for all of you and you are in my thoughts.

JOSEFINE GULLO'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Today [3 January 2025] I reached 5 years, i.e. 1827 running days in a row! It's hard to grasp. So much longer than the 100-day goal I set when I first started this RS on the 4 January 2020.

I have been very lucky to avoid illnesses and injuries, at least until this past month where a very sore foot almost forced me to stop. The past two weeks I've been running only, just over the 1-mile limit, and luckily the pain has disappeared a little every day. Today I managed a 3K run and the foot seems ok. So far, the total running distance in this RS is 5300K and will hopefully get even longer. I'll decide about the continuation tomorrow. All the best for 2025!

JASON NORTON'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Completing four years of my daily run streak and entering into my fifth year has been very exciting for me. Running daily continues to give me motivation in my personal life and at work to do the hard things.

2024 was a particularly amazing year for my running streak as I was able to complete my first marathon in January and then went on to complete four more last calendar year, including a 50K at the Marine Corps Marathon.

I also began a 5K a day streak in 2022 and I am currently at 998 days at the time of this post [4 January 2025], as well as a 10K a day streak in May and I am at 222 days. Maintaining a 10K a day has been a bit challenging, but very rewarding.

I was able to connect with Julia Haddad on Strava as her and I share the very same run streak anniversary date of December 30, 2020. Being able to cheer each other on for our daily runs on Strava is awesome. Thank you for maintaining this registry. I remember back in 2020 when I found it, how excited I was to complete my first year so that I could begin my journey on your registry. Here's to many more happy miles on daily runs in 2025 and beyond!

DAVID BALL'S STREAK HITS 16 YEARS

I was horrible at keeping New Year's Resolutions, so on January 5th 2009 I told myself if I could run for a whole month I would have the dedication to keep using a Gym Membership. So, I grabbed a pair of shoes in my closet and began to run 3 miles a day. After a month, I kept running, forgot about joining a gym, and haven't stopped running daily since. Now 16 years later I am still running 3 miles a day.

Notable runs this year were running in Europe and Africa for the first time. Running with my daughter for her first half marathon. I ran from Kings Cross in London to Buckingham Palace, from the Bastille in Paris to the Eiffel Tower, both 8 + miles and both with my daughter. Running with my daughter along the Med in Marseille, France and 2 half marathons under 2:10.

YVONNE BRUCK JOINS SRI FROM GERMANY; STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I started my streak running 5 years ago, on January the 6, in 2020. I read an article about the world record in streak running. I've never heard about streak running before. At this time, I was a "normal" runner. Slowly running a few miles 2 or 3 times a week. Running a strongman run with 7,5 miles was my highlight. I was sure I would never ever be able to finish a marathon or running something special.

When I heard about streak running, I was sure that's for me. That's a goal I could reach. That's possible. Speed doesn't matter and the only thing you can do wrong is not to run.

Of course, it wasn't easy when you've a cold, or a broken toe, toothache, or a surgical procedure. It was not funny when it was rainy, stormy, cold or hot. But nobody can take the feeling that you can be proud of yourself to do your run.

Running is great for the mind, body, and soul. While 1 mile per day doesn't seem much, it's the discipline needed to do it that's the bigger deal. I used to wonder how long it would last and now I can't imagine a day going by without it! Oh, and the stupid things we do to make it happen, lol!!

CHRIS KATO'S STREAK HITS 11 YEARS

On January 1st, 2025, my streak hit the 11-year mark. It was very cool to cross the elusive 4,000-day mark in December.

I had a pretty stressful 2024 in my professional life, which ultimately led to a great new job that I love. Running helped me weather the storm and process the highs (and lows) of the year.

I was very fortunate to have few obstacles in the way of my streak this year. I try not to take any run for granted and find something to appreciate every day.

This summer my family spent a few weeks exploring Michigan's Upper Peninsula. I had many awesome runs in some incredible locations.

My goals for the year were to run 5 miles every day and drop 20 pounds. I'm happy to say I did both! Here's to another great year...one run at a time!

MARION WHITEHEAD'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Hi there! I'm Marion and I'm a trail runner in the Blue Mountains outside of Sydney in Australia. I've just passed my 2-year run streak anniversary! For 737 days I've run with COVID, tonsillitis, happy, sad, sick and well.

I honestly thought it would make me special and unique but it has just made me realize how simple and mundane doing this thing every day is. And while the task itself is simple and mundane, within those thousands of kilometres there was so much magic.

I've met people I'll hold dear my whole life. I've seen the best in humanity. I have had the deepest and dearest heart to hearts with my girlfriends, sharing secrets and heartbreaks.

I still cry when I think of crossing the Grose River in the Hounslow marathon, reflecting on the beauty and terror of the landscape and how important this place is to the Darug and Gundungurra people.

But above all, shout out to the plants. The seasons of terrestrial orchids; the Cryptosylis, Caleanas, Genoplesiums and Rimacolas. The winters of Pterostylis and Corybas peering out of damp cliffs. The cliff dwelling Pherosphaeras and Isopogons, the diverse and spectacular Proteaceae, prolific in the early spring with their weird and wonderful, bold and beautiful flowers.

Getting to be in this world every day, for at least two kilometres, has been the greatest privilege of my life. Here's to two more years!

ANTHONY LIPSCOMB'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I'm incredibly grateful to have reached the 4-year milestone! The people and places that have been a part of this journey are what make it memorable.

My most faithful running mate has been my son, Toby. We've logged many miles together and counting. He's helped me prepare for multiple Marine Corps Marathons and, in 2024, the California International Marathon. We've run Turkey Trots and Fourth of July races. We've run along the Atlantic and the Pacific. We've run on the grounds and in the shadows of state and national parks and monuments. We've logged runs in 13 states, DC, and the Canadian side of Niagara. We've braved nature's elements, from blistering heat to blizzards.

I commemorated my Comma Day with Toby's middle school XC team during one of their practices in a season where they won their league championship.

I celebrated my Gump Day by dressing as Forrest and having my friends and colleagues send me off into town for public amusement.

I hope to keep going for as long as I can and cheer on my son as he grows up to outrun me at any distance.

For 2025 and year 5, I'm looking forward to running alongside Toby for his first Half at the Avenue of the Giants race in May.

I'm also excited about the possibility of running along the Mediterranean Sea during a trip to Turkey in October. And perhaps Toby and I will top off the year as a CIM relay team. Here's to many more miles!

I finished my run the morning of reaching my 5-year streak, or 1,827 days, by throwing my arms wide open to the sky with excited satisfaction. Tears almost instantly froze on my ice-cold skin. This streak is mine. I get to keep it forever. Satisfaction swelled in my chest, while my lungs found the rhythm of breath. I quickly alternated between smiling and crying.

What started out as a journey of healing to trust myself when my world was shaken, has shifted to one of the most joyous daily rituals of my life. Running sets my soul on fire. It reminds me that the world is waiting and I'm ready to take it all in. I've seen many places that I otherwise would have never discovered. I get to celebrate what my body is capable of.

I run. Running from pain. Running to joy. Running with my struggles, stories, and beautiful moments.

I make circles of dancing between steps because this life is ready to light up life. And then I do sudden stops, mid-stride, because life sometimes brings heart-crushing pain. But I'm always stepping into whatever awaits, so I don't miss a thing.

I started running in my late 30's and did Parkruns and quite a few half marathons and even a couple of full marathons, but never in a very structured way and tended not to run for a while after an event.

In 2021, a colleague was running a 5k every day for a year and this inspired me to do the same. I started on 1st January 2022 with the intention of doing the same, but at the end of the year I didn't want to stop and so have carried on running 5k every day since.

My run has become part of my daily life and I am fitter and faster than I have ever been. I intend to carry on as long as I can.

ED AUFULDISH'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

I recently celebrated my 7-year streak anniversary with a Christmas lights run. A bunch of my friends from the Columbia Running Club came over to my house and we started the run with a toast "streak on bitches" and a shot of Fireball.

I've averaged 50 miles a week during the streak and run 14 marathons. I'm currently training for Tokyo which will be my 6th star. When people ask why I run marathons, I respond with "I hang out with the wrong people."

The streak started as a 500-day challenge and has turned into a lifestyle. I tell everyone I can rest when I'm dead. In addition to my run streak, I've exercised every day for over 20 years.

RIKKE EGHOFF'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Today [8 January 2025] I have been running every day for 3 years! 😊

In 2024 I ran at least one-half marathon every month. It ended in December, with me running my first full marathon on December 1st.

Every year I have had challenges during the year. But I have always run at least 3 km, unless I have been sick.

This year I do not have any specific goals yet, other than that I want to keep up my half marathon every month, a trail race during the year, one more marathon and of course run every day.

Some days are wonderful and you can hardly stop. Others are hard, wet and boring. But this year I will be better at accepting the small trips of 2 km, so my legs can recover so that I do not get so many injuries.

Last year I also reached my comma-day. Which means 1000 days. It was a memorable day, where I again 😊 got a homemade medal from Anders Ørberg Hauser, and ran a 10 km run in 1 hour.

I always want to run with others, even beginners. We can run anywhere at any pace and any distance. It just has to be fun.

I'm a 50-year old systems developer from Sweden and have been doing this runstreak for 5 years now. The main reason I decided to do a runstreak was mainly as a way to get my lazy a** out of the couch, and that's still the case in some ways, I guess. I did not set a goal or so, and I'm not planning to do that either. Keep on running!

Happy 4 year run streak to me! The past year of running has seen several new states. I have a job that allows me to travel throughout the United States and I was able to add numerous states to my running territory.

I also had to survive running on a double sprained ankle which was not easy. But that's the price we pay for maintaining our streak isn't it? Congrats to all other "streakers" and here's for 4+ more!

My run streak hits 4 years!!! This past year has definitely been challenging to keep it going, but as said before- it's one of few things I can control, so it lives on. Besides, I'm too damned and determined to end it now.

Year 4 has totaled 1,890+ miles run in 3 countries, 8 different states, 20+ cities and not to mention many 3am treadmill runs before catching a flight. It is something I'm VERY proud of (even if my run coach secretly hates me doing it - both things can be true!).

Mother nature always brings a unique challenge during the winter weather - the simple fact that I know I will be running each day, always makes for an adventure in the Northeast.

My running streak hit 8 years on 12/31/2024.

This by far was the most challenging year of my streak! I was dealing with a long COVID symptom called ocular oscillopsia. It is a vision problem that makes the world seem like it's moving when it's actually still. It's caused by an underlying condition that affects the eyes or balance systems. In my case, it causes dizziness and vomiting while running more than a mile!

I still managed to get 700 miles in for the year and did surpass the 10,000-mile mark for my streak!

All symptoms have resolved and I am back running vomit free and running more miles! Cheers to a healthy 2025!

It's hard to believe that I've been running every single day for this long, no matter the weather or how I feel, through tears, pain and illness. Giving God all the glory who gives me the strength to do this.

Running every day has taught me to be resilient and persistent. “It always seems impossible, until it's done,” said Nelson Mandela.

JENNIE WADMAN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Hi, I'm 36 years old. Ten years ago, I was assaulted by a student at the school where I worked resulting in a head injury. For many years afterward, I couldn't exercise and raise my heart rate without getting a fever and severe dizziness.

I went from being a very active person to being limited to calm walks for many years.

Then, two years ago I started running again after being inspired by the Swedish podcast Pace on Earth and their episodes about Runstreak and slowrunning.

On January 19, 2023, I tried running slowly and my first Runstreak took me over half an hour in sparkling snow, brilliant sunshine, and low temperature without getting a headache. What a boost!

I kept running every day for a week. It felt incredible! I hadn't run a meter in eight years, and suddenly I could run again!

Then it just snowballed. "Let's see if I can keep it up for two weeks." A month? Two months? 100 days? Half a year? A year? 500 days? And now I've been running every day for two years.

And in the darkest of November days, in gray weather, when I need motivation the most, I'm super happy for my Runstreak. I don't want to break my Runstreak just because I don't feel like running when it's cold, gray, and rainy.

For me, running has saved my life. It has given me a lot of joy, a zest for life, and inspiration for movement that doesn't make me sick. It's incredible and profoundly meaningful.

STEVE BICKFORD'S STREAK HITS A DOZEN YEARS

Every year on my anniversary you send me an email asking how my streak is going. I don't reply because I am just a guy who decided to put one foot in front of another for as long as I can. Nothing special about me, just do what I do.

It started out as a health goal, now it is a part of my identity. First, I prayed every day that I could make it. Now I pray every day because I am thankful that I can. I have never run with music, just my own voice and prayers.

I will continue my streak until God stops it. Hopefully, I can inspire others as you long time streakers have inspired me. If I can do it, anyone can. I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me. Philippians 4:13

TRAVIS ENGLISH'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 3,528 DAYS

RETIRED RUNNING STREAK - 9y 8m 3d - I forgot to run my mile on Saturday [18 January 2025]!

TL;DR: I ran ( $\geq 1$  mile) every day for almost 10 years, and ended the streak on Saturday.

To be fair, I did go on a 20-mile bike ride, then surfed for 45 minutes. I had intended to do a mile later in the day. Instead, I did a nap later in the day. And, I just never remembered to do my run.

I've been planning to retire the streak this year on its 10-year anniversary. So, I'd already accepted that 2025 was going to include the retirement of this streak. As it happened, I missed that by 126 days. So, I wound up doing 97% of a 10-year streak - 9 years, 8 months and 3 days. 97% is an A. So, I still get an A.

I'd be lying if I didn't say I'm bummed it's over, and to miss the 10-year mark. I didn't actually realize it had happened until 3 days later, reviewing my logs. Like, "wait a minute... where is the run on Saturday. Oh crap, there is no run on Saturday!" There was a moment of panic, but, it passed pretty quickly.

On the other hand, I'd be lying if I didn't say I'm glad it's over. I'm 51 years old, and looking to move into triathlons this year. I have no plans to be any less fit or any less regular about fitness. But, after 10 years of running, and looking to the rest of my 50s, it's time to start mixing in some biking, swimming, gym workouts, or - heck - just walking.

Thanks to all the inspiration in the USRSA, Streak Runners International, runeveryday.com, and the reddit reddit /r/amileaday groups. You guys are awesome. I wish you all happy streaking! I've loved every day of my streak.

Sad to share the news that I had to retire my streak on 1/13/2025. I had a knee injury I ignored for too long that has turned into a torn meniscus, torn cartilage and a tibial plateau fracture!

Hoping with lots of rest and rehab, I'll be back to a run/walk program in early summer - but likely marathons (and streak running) won't be a part of my running future! I thought I'd have at least 20-25 years to go on my streak, but that doesn't seem to be the case! My husband, Brian, and I both had streaks and I miss our daily runs already.

JOHN KING'S 2ND STREAK
HITS 17 YEARS
"Thoughts on Running from John King"

As I complete my seventy-fourth of life and forty-eighth year of distance running, my gray hairs and body have told me that it may be time to start to slow down. I will always keep running (and my ego says streak running) until I cannot, but not as fast or as far as I used to. I have introduced more walking to my exercise routine as well as my running and resistance bands.

Running will always be a part of my life as it has provided me with so much comfort and meaning. As a metaphor, distance running is a great comparison to life. The key to a successful distance run is to set a comfortable pace and keep putting one step in front of the other until you reach your finish. So, it is with life. If you are in too much of a hurry to get through it you miss all of its beauty and much of its opportunities.

The older I get the more I realize that learning and growth is a life-long process. You cannot rush it. Running also taught me that it is an everyday event. The first day I don't run makes it harder to return to it on the next. So, it is with life. If you don't put your best effort into every day, the next is so much easier to get complacent.

I also love Eliud Kipchoeg's personal philosophy of "Motivation + Discipline + Consistency." I have found that in running and everything else in life if I have sufficient motivation and develop the discipline necessary to achieve it I will be consistent in all of my efforts. I've added my own spin to Mr. Kipchoeg's philosophy that "Motivation + Discipline + Consistency = Excellence."

I am so grateful that I have been able to complete my seventeenth year of my current running streak and retired life in beautiful Naples, Florida is a great place to work on continuing it. Thanks to all the folks at USRSA for making the benefits and enjoyment of streak running aware and available to all.

I recently hit my 5-year mark, December 27th! I had contemplated stopping the next day as I am dealing with some overuse injuries, causing each run to not feel great. As the day was drawing to a close, my 13-year old son said, can't you just do a mile? I guess he didn't want me to end it. lol. He is also a runner and he get's it.

So, I have been doing just 1-1.5 miles a day since then and am up to 1851 days. I have started some physical therapy that I am hoping will help the pain I'm having. If I don't see a big improvement after a few weeks or a month, I may consider complete rest.

ART STONE'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

I looked myself up on the RunEveryDay website and kept scrolling thru the "All Active Running Streak List" page until I found the Experienced (10 < 15 years) category and then scrolled a while longer until I found my name at the bottom of that list.

There are a lot of runners who have been at this for decades longer than I have. Impressive. I'm already an old fart so you have no worries about me putting in 60 years to take the title.

For health reasons, I started walking 3 miles six days a week at about the age of 50. As time went on I started jogging a bit to speed up the walks and by the time I was 53 I mentioned I was jogging to a friend. He said he was a member of a local running club and that I should come out for a run with them. Took a few months to get up the nerve to run with folks in the club. I wasn't prepared for that 1st run, but kept running with them.

I ran my 1st marathon at 54 years old and qualified for Boston in the 50 to 55 age group. Ran Boston at 55 and qualified to run Boston in the 55 to 60 age group.

I ran many races over the next 5 years, won one race overall, and won or placed in my age group numerous times. It was a memorable period of time running with friends, traveling to destination runs, meeting up at the track for sprints, and running almost every trail within 30 miles of home.

I heard about people who run every day, some for decades. The idea intrigued me and after about a year of mulling it over I decided I would run every day for a month and then decide if I wanted to continue.

At the end of that month I decided to give it another month. And so it went for the 1st year. Once I reached that milestone I knew I was committed to running every day. By the end of that year I transitioned from training for speed to do well in races to running steadily at a heartbeat rate. Now I race several times a year to hang out with friends who race, but for the most part just run at a steady heart beat rate. It is a much different style of running.

I am blessed to live where I can head out the door and select from multiple routes in a beautiful, hilly area. My minimum daily run goal is 3.2 miles, but I usually run longer.

My wife and I travel internationally. I study maps of each place we are staying at to pick out the best running opportunities. I've run in many countries.

Travel days present a challenge, especially with long distance air travel east. Hours are lost passing over time zones. There have been several times where after traveling all day I only have an hour left after landing to find a place to run to get the mile minimum in before the next day starts.

If you've read this far, thanks for your interest. I will keep running every day. My left knee is getting to be a problem, but hopefully it will pass.

STEVE LAFORTE'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 2,804 DAYS

It is with heavy heart and tears in my eyes that tonight [29 January 2025] I retired my streak after 2,804 days.

I have raced for 35 years, over 250 running and multisport races, qualifying for Boston twice and racing it, and qualifying for the Hawaiian Ironman, twice, and racing it...but before any of that I dislocated my hip in car accident and lost 25% of the femoral head to avascular necrosis....and it finally caught up with me despite a fierce "no pain no gain" ethic.....and I got my hip replaced yesterday, ending my streak today (I ran a couple of miles before surgery, of course, last run pictured here).

However, my surgeon, a runner, has advised me that in due time, a few months, I can start running and racing again, and based on my mobility increase and pain decrease on day 1, I look forward to starting a new streak on the anniversary of my now retired streak, May 27, 2025! See y'all then Today [1 February 2025] marks the end of year 8 of my streak! I started running when my youngest was 10 months old and set a goal to do a mile a day for 100 days in an attempt to get back in shape. The rest is exactly as you all imagine, why stop now?!

My almost 9-year-old ran one of my miles with me today, and ran his first 5k this year with me on Thanksgiving! He asks almost every night before bed, "Mom, did you run?" just to be sure I didn't forget.

This year, I ran my first Disney challenge, completing the Goofy, and ran in new countries. I'm looking forward to reaching day 3000, running in new countries and year 9 in general. I can't believe I have embarked on year seven of running every day outside.

From September to January, I wasn't sure if I was going to be able to keep up my streak. I became a caregiver for my mother-in-law, Elaine (see picture above), who had Alzheimer's and passed away in January. I would go for a run, then take her for a walk in her wheelchair when weather permitted me. I have never appreciated running as much as I did during this time.

Running has completely changed my life in ways I never expected. What began as a simple attempt to stay fit turned into a life-changing journey.

When I first started running, I wasn't sure it was for me. It felt hard, and every mile was a struggle. But something about the challenge kept me coming back. Over time, I learned that the real joy of running isn't just about fitness, but about self-discovery and growth.

Looking back, I'm grateful I started. Running hasn't just improved my physical health – it's changed my perspective, boosted my confidence, and shown me how powerful small steps can be. If you're hesitant to try, just take the first step. It might seem small, but it could change your life the way it did mine.

DAVID HAASE'S STREAK HITS 16 YEARS

Hi there! 16 years in the books. Still plugging away here on the prairies of west central MN.

In 16 years, the patterns of life change, but the running has been there for a long time, though the form of that seems to change over time, too.

Currently, I like to sign up for 3-4 half marathons throughout the year. So, the training schedule for those adds some variety to the running. Since I farm, I am pretty busy in May and October, so my races need to be scheduled for outside of that time.

I do end up running on the treadmill quite a bit, since I run after dark a lot, and especially in the winter it is a lot easier.

Other personal health news, all to the good:

--I quit drinking almost a year ago, and life is a lot better in so many ways. Not that it was a huge problem, but it was a nagging bad habit. So now I'm getting better quality sleep, living a healthier life all around.

--In the last 6 months I have had some success with intermittent fasting. I'm down to a sustainable weight that allows me to fit into my old clothes and have some more competitive times in races.

--I bought a home gym setup in November, and with the help of a training app, I have been weight training with a program, consistently since December. That has been really satisfying, getting some more strength and definition. Plus, it's a fun activity with my teen and preteen kids!

So, as I embrace middle age, I turn back to a phrase my 86-year-old dad repeats to me, almost every time I talk with him:

"We have a lot to be thankful for!"

Cheers to all the streakers out there. Good health to all, balance and wholeness of life to all.

SETH SICILIANO'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

In my 6-year streak I have run a total of 29,635 miles for an average of 13.52 miles per day. I have run in 9 countries and 22 states. I have finished every Abbott World Major at least one time (many of them multiple times) during the streak.

LISA KOHLER EGGAN'S STREAK HIT 3 YEARS

I passed my 3 years streak on 4 of February. It was just an ordinary day, but I gave it some thinking about how fast days have gone by.

The streak has survived two episodes with prolapse. I had a lot of pain during those months, but never when I ran. The doctor told me to just to keep running as long it didn't get worse. I got through it even though I had a lot of pain and I couldn't sleep at night. I thank my streak for keeping my head above the water and I didn't get crazy.

Next week I'm going to Kenya for vacation and I will do my streak there! In the beginning of March, me and my daughter are going to run a half marathon in Cambridge - that will be great!

I just say: keep going with the streak - it has a lot of positive side effects!

AMINA BOUHLI'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS **Three Years of Running – How My Runstreak Changed My Life****

Today [6 February 2025], I'm celebrating something truly special – three years of running every single day. No matter the weather or how I feel, I've laced up my shoes and hit the pavement for at least 2 kilometers each day. It hasn't always been easy, but this small habit has become one of the most powerful and meaningful parts of my life.

When I started my runstreak three years ago, I didn't know what I was getting into. I wanted to create a routine that would give me some time for myself every day – a time to focus on my body, my thoughts, and my overall well-being. Looking back on this journey, I can honestly say it's been so much more than just physical activity.

**Giving Myself That Time****

It's not just about running. It's about giving myself this little but important moment every day – a time to be present, to listen to myself, and to remind myself that I deserve to feel good. I am the best person in my life, and by taking care of myself this way, I'm strengthening myself to be my best in every other area of life.

It's also about consistency. Even when it hasn't been easy to run, I've learned that this daily run is a way to practice patience and endurance, even when it feels tough. It's about being proud that I keep my promise to myself – to give myself this time every day.

**Running as a Tool for Personal Growth****

It's incredible how much a small run every day has taught me about myself. I've learned to accept the days when I'm not feeling my best, but I've also learned to appreciate the days when my body feels strong and light. And most of all – I've realized that it's this little act, every day, that allows me to become my best self.

But it's not just for me. I love sharing my experience and hope to inspire others to find their own ways to become their best selves. Because when we start taking care of ourselves for real, we're better equipped to help others and create positive change around us.

**Celebrating Three Years and Looking Ahead****

Hitting the three-year mark of my runstreak feels like a big accomplishment, but it's also a reminder that I'm capable of so much more. It's about taking small steps every day, being consistent, and always striving to be the best version of myself.

So, what's your next step? What can you do every day to give yourself that little time and become your best self? I hope my runstreak can inspire you to find something that makes a difference for you, whether it's running, meditation, or any other habit that gives you energy and well-being.

KYLE WALLITNER'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

What began years ago as a one-month challenge, has for me, never ended. It has been over four years since I've seen a day where I did not run.

I have successfully run quite literally through Covid, broken ribs, tropical storms, migraines and countless hangovers. I have run on beaches, hotel hallways and treadmills. I have run barefoot, in sandals, muck boots and croc's.

At this point it is part of me. A daily routine similar to brushing your teeth or going to the bathroom. No matter the day or how I feel, I run. The novelty of having an active streak has long since worn off but for me running is an escape, a way to calm my mind in a positive way and I have no plans on stopping. Cheers to another year!

TIM MCLEAN'S STREAK HITS 13 YEARS

I'm still at it, after all these years. I really appreciate each and every run! It's my daily "respite." I really mix it up, any and everywhere; along wooded trails, busy city streets, and even highways. It's important to find different places to get it in, to keep it exciting and interesting. Thank God for another year!

JIM PEARSON'S STREAK HITS 55 YEARS; HAS LONGEST ACTIVE STREAK IN WORLD

Possibly more important to me than reaching the 55-year mark today [15 February 2025] is a pair of recent additions to the SRI/USRSA list that remind me that my strange habit may mean more to others than just myself. Shiv (age 11) and Jag (age 10) Ubriani as of today have run 505 and 503 consecutive days, respectively.

Since I am rarely seen wearing anything other than running gear, my new dermatologist a few years ago asked me about running. The running everyday part excited him and prompted him to say, "My kids run a mile everyday as part of their school program." I didn't ask anything more definitive but showed a favorable response for what the school was doing.

Each visit (running hatless for most of these 55 year now requires two sessions a year to spray my ears and bald head for pre-cancers, scrape a few emerging cancers away, and to cut out the more advanced ones) would start the same. Dr. Ubriani: "How is your running going?" Me following my positive response: "How are the kids doing?" The kids, he said, were excited about what I was doing. His response during the January 23 visit: "Both of them have now run over a year without a miss." He talked about how each recorded daily in their journals, that they even ran while sick, ran on a cruise ship, and were really excited about their running.

When I mentioned the SRI/USRSA, he was intrigued. I gave him the runeveryday.com address, and now they are both on the list. I have two kids (Hopper, 7.5 years, and Paige, 2.8 years) and brother Don (3.1 years) on the retired list and son Joel #66 on the active list at 30 years. Former Ferndale High runner Jay "The Jet" Kammerzell is on the retired list five times with streaks of 23, 6, 4.7, 3.4, and 2.7 years. His job as a fire fighter interfered at times. His daughter Stephanie had a streak of 2.5 years.

FHS runner Ken Hartzell had a streak of 4 years before surgery and will soon be back on the active list. FHS wrestler Bob Carlstrom is still active at 4.5 years. Harrier track Club runner Emily Uhlig is on the retired list at 2.6 years.

So, this is a big part of what I have to say about running every day for 55 years. I have made a positive impact on a few people. That is always a good feeling. I am sure a good number of streak runners have made the same impact.

I had felt I had really accomplished something when I hit 20,000 days back in November. I realized that mark was approaching around 180 days earlier. It was actually pretty stressful since I was going through a painful injury and "one day at a time" seemed to last forever. The 55-year mark was much easier to approach.

Being at the top of the active list brought a strange feeling. I had never hoped to be there. Jon Sutherland is six years younger than I am and had a 266-day lead over the entire time. I just imagined him holding off Steve for several years after my streak would end. He was never a target. When I was notified on January 10 that Jon's streak had ended, and a target had been created.

I will have to run for five months after I turn 81 to break Jon's all-time record which may not be possible. Fortunately, I have Lois Bastien, age 88, and Barbara Latta, 82, out there as my inspirations.

Though I now run as slowly as any other 80-year-old, running every day allowed me to record times much faster than I had ever dreamed. It is one of the best decisions I have ever made.

Jon Zaid and Toby

JON ZAID'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Today [17 February 2025] is my 6-year streakversary. I am attaching a photo of myself and my sometimes-running companion, Toby, a 2-year old sheepdoodle.

I guess running is an addiction, at least for us streakers. In 2020, at the tail-end of my longest running year (3,305 miles) I developed Achilles Tendinopathy. My minimum run was 5K. I have been able to "manage" my tendinopathy.

In 2022, I "degloved" my heel in a marathon, and for a few weeks, this did not help my achilles. I had to lower the minimum to a mile for a month and then cautiously to a 3K, all the while keeping the daily average over 5 miles.

In 2025 I felt that I needed at least 5K; the first 3K is probably the hardest part of the run, and I was missing the good part after warming up.

My tendinopathy persists and at times can be painful even at rest, other times it seems to have disappeared. My podiatrist told me that if I stop I have a 100% chance of recovery, and if I don't, 15%. My coach, Mike, is helping me work through it. It's slow progress but I can keep running. I don't know if this is a good model for streakers, but I know there are many streakers who have continued through more dire conditions.

On the happy front, my efforts have been an influence on my family. My wife started running, seriously, two years ago. In 2024 she qualified for the 2025 Boston Marathon and she also won her age group in the Canyons 50k ultra, giving her entry into the UTMB OCC 50k. So, this year we will be travelling to Boston in April and in August we will be in Chamonix for the UTMB.

I just wanted you to know that my streak is alive and well.

JEFF GOULD'S LATEST STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I may have the longest non-streak possible. In February of 2021, I had a stroke, ending my longest streak at 3992 days, just short of 11 years. Two weeks later, the day after I came home, I ran 2 slow miles (I'm stubborn, I'll say that). The following year, I worked overnight unexpectedly, ending my 'streak' at 364 days. A day short :).

I do have 5 streaks now on the registry, most ended by a long workday. Such is life. I'm now retired, and though a streak could end for any number of reasons, a long workday will now not be a reason.

If I have a claim to fame, it's that I've run at least on race on each of the 366 possible days of the year. Yes, I ran a race on Christmas Day, the Fresh Pond 5 miler in Cambridge, Mass, December 25, 2010. Fresh Pond is run at 10am every Saturday. When Christmas fell on a Saturday, I went down and ran. I drove down there thinking, If nobody's there, I can always just drive back home, nobody will even know. There must have been 60 runners there, just to get a race in before going home to celebrate Christmas. It was great.

I also ran one race on leap day, the Amherst 10 miler in Amherst Mass, February 29th, 2004, always run on the last Sunday in February.

Amongst us runners, there must be a few that can claim a race on each of the 366 days. I'd be interested in hearing about this. Anyway, in a nutshell, my two cents worth.

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

The Winter quarter for our running streak association was one for the history books with two big stories dominating the news and our newsletter cover. Of course, one of our big stories concerned the end of Jon Sutherland's running streak. Coach Sutherland's streak ended on New Year's Eve 2024 after 55.6 years. At the end of his consecutive daily running, the American writer and coach, 74, from Washington, Utah, was first on our active running streak list and now his streak is first on our retired running streak list. In that regard, Coach Sutherland's streak has been first on our active list ever since the late Ron Hill, an Olympic athlete from the United Kingdom, ended his world record setting streak on 28 January 2017 after 52.11 years. Ironically for students of United States and British history, the American athlete broke the British athlete's world record of 19,032 consecutive running days on American Independence Day, the 4th July, 2021. Coach Sutherland went on to become the first athlete to run every day for over 55 years, then over 20,000 days, and ended his world record-setting running streak at an amazing 20,309 days. Wow! We here at SRI/USRSA wish Jon Sutherland much happiness and luck in the future.

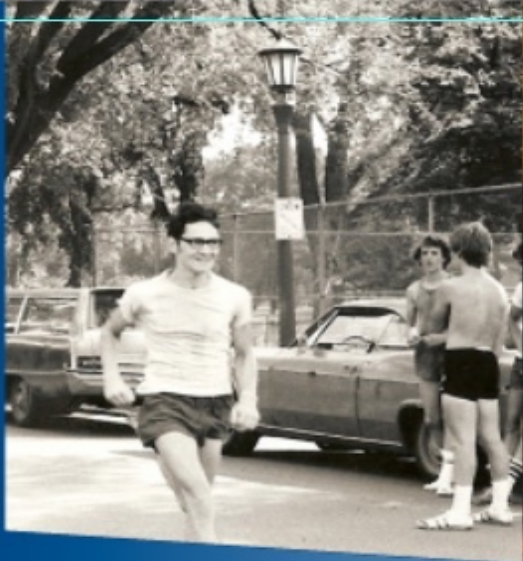

The other big running streak news story is that Robert "Raven" Kraft became the 7th athlete in the world to reach his 50th year running streak anniversary. Ironically, Raven (his preferred nickname) reached his Golden milestone on the same New Year's Eve 2024 date that Jon Sutherland ran his last day of his streak. Not realizing that a world-record running streak was ending in Utah, my wife, Diane, and I were in Miami Beach, Florida for Raven's big 50th celebration joining scores of other runners that day. Before the run, there was a ceremony at the 5th Street lifeguard stand, the start and end of all 50 years of Raven's run, that was attended by the Mayor and City Council from Miami Beach for speeches and presentations. Steve DeBoer, the 4th athlete in the world to reach the 50-year running streak mark, also gave a speech and made a presentation at the lifeguard stand on behalf of our running streak association. There were many highlights at the ceremony and run that day but a couple that stand out for me was the announcement by Miami Beach Mayor and Council that they were naming a street after Raven and seeing a plane fly a banner with the sign that read in part "RUN RAVEN 50 YEARS." Later that night, we were treated with a party that included food, drinks, more speeches, and even a band performance by Raven and the Dark Shadows. At the evening party, I gave a short speech on behalf of our running streak association but the highlight was the speech given by the Master of Ceremonies, Alan Davis, who has kindly allowed us to reprint his inspiring words about Raven in this newsletter (see page 17).

During the last quarter, we also received the sad news that John Morgan, from Emmett, Idaho, had passed on 24 January 2025, at the age of 83. In honor of Mr. Morgan, who had a 34+ year streak from 1979 to 2013, we have reprinted some of the stories he shared with us over the years and also a tribute by his Idaho friend and fellow streak runner John Watts (see page 10). We at SRI/USRSA send our condolences to his widow Susan and the rest of the Morgan family.

This winter we also heard from John Byrne, 68, from Centreville, Virginia, who made the decision to end his streak on Christmas Day that also happened to be his 30th running streak anniversary. Long before we were involved in streak running, Mr. Byrne and I were Political Science majors and classmates at Marquette University both graduating in 1978. We lost touch with each other but became reacquainted through our involvement in streak running and even learned that we were born a day apart from each other in March 1956. While I will miss seeing my old classmate's name on the active list and wish him much luck in the future, I hope not to end my streak anytime soon (fingers crossed) completing my 35th running streak anniversary in Miami Beach running with Raven the day before his big celebration.

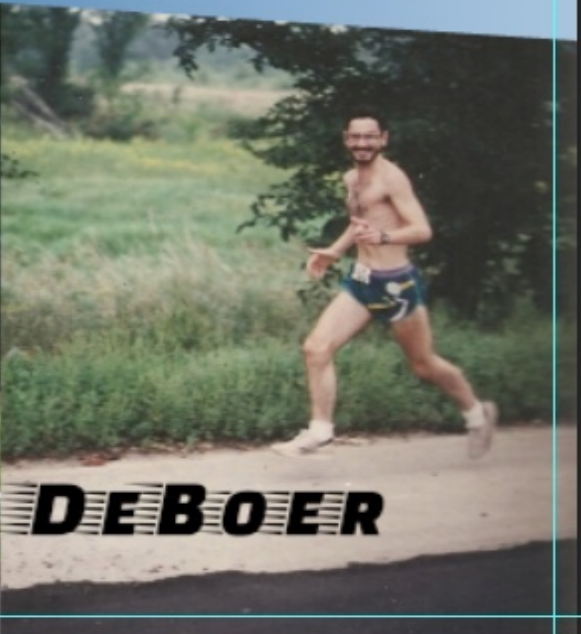

As always, I also want to wish all of you good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!
